'Action Stations' For Grits

By ALEX YOUNG

OTTAWA—The Liberals take their "action stations" in Parliament Thursday and begin to deliver in volume on their promised "60 days of decision."

It is the day the Progressive Conservatives formally take their place as the official opposition, after having tasted for six years the joys and troubles of governing.

And it is the day the other two parties, in opposition as always, try to regroup their diminished forces.

It is the opening of the first session of Canada's 26th parliament.

Actual preparations have been going on feverishly in offices of the Liberal cabinet ministers, working over legislation to be introduced, for three weeks.

CAUCUSES HELD

Today all four parties held caucus meetings to discuss sessional strategy and tactics.

The governing Liberal party, although in a minority position, was making no secret of its strategy. It is simply to keep pouring out a steady supply of business for the House of Commons and Senate to work on.

During the session the Liberal emphasis will be on measures to improve the economic development of Canada. During the election campaign Mr. Pearson foreshadowed his approach to the business of the nation in these words:

"The first 60 days of a new Liberal administration will be days of decision, with Liberal members at action stations. This will be in startling contrast to the delays, confusion and bad management of the last session. A Tory government and Tory leadership was fumbling and indecisive, even when it had a large majority. When it was supported by a minority in parliament it was completely hopeless. Our session of decision will be very different."

FEW SURPRISES

The throne speech is usually the big newsworthy event of the day at the opening of any session of Parliament. This one, however, probably will contain few surprises.

For, again, the government's intentions have been made quite clear. During the campaign Mr. Pearson promised for his first session (and these things wil be mentioned in the throne speech):

- Action for investment expenditures and setting up new machinery of government to bring jobs and full employment through expansion of production;
- Establishment of a municipal development and loan fund to help create 200,000 new jobs in Canada;
- Promise of a June budget with fiscal and tax provisions to stimulate production and create jobs, at the same time aiming for fiscal measures designed to balance income and outgo;
- Establishment of a department of industry, and legislation to create the post of another minister of agriculture, to look after eastern agricultural interests;
- Creation of a national development corporation, a national economic council, and provision of a capital fund for the present Atlantic Development Board;
- Establishment of a federal agency for development of economically backward areas;
- Work towards establishment of a contributory and portable pension plan;
- Action to strengthen national unity by setting up a national commission on biculturalism;
- Setting up of all-party committee on defence policy, to provide for a review and discussion of the issues of Canada's acceptance of defensive nuclear warheads as pledged by the Liberals;
- Action towards providing Canada with a distinctive national flag and anthem.

As this session opens, the question of how long a government can last wtih only minority status is not the much-discussed topic that it was prior to the last session, when the declining Diefenbaker gov-

U.S. ASTRONAUT ON WAY TO 22 ORBITS

'Great Sport' Says Cooper

—AP Wirephoto

Landing Set Late Thursday

He was reported in good spirits and health "and very much on top of his mission."

Minutes after entering orbit, Cooper reported that everything was "mighty good."

Astronaut Walter Schirra, in communication with Cooper at Cape Canaveral, said: "Great sport, isn't it?"

"It sure is," Cooper replied as he whizzed along.

The 36-year-old air force major rose into the sky atop an Atlas rocket at 9:04 a.m. EDT (6:04 a.m. PDT) under orders, if all goes right, to soar around the earth 22 times in about 34 hours.

As he went into his fourth orbit at 1:35 p.m. EDT, Walter C. Williams, operations chief of the Mercury flight program, issued this word:

"He is very much on top of his mission. He is in good spirits and in good health."

Cooper completed his first orbit at 10:33 a.m. EDT, his second at 12:06 p.m., the third at 1:35 p.m., the fourth at 3:03 p.m., and the fifth at 4:32 p.m.

He had reported at the end of his second flash around the world that he was "very comfortable."

Williams said after the third round trip that Cooper was performing all of his space experiments—designed to aid the longer Gemini and Apollo moon flights of the future—on schedule.

Experiment Not Complete Success

As Cooper's Faith 7 spacecraft sped high above the South Atlantic Ocean during the third of his intended 22 orbits, the pilot pushed a switch which ejected a 10-pound sphere from the base of the capsule.

The sphere, 5.75 inches in diameter and equipped with two high-intensity flashing lights, settled into an orbit slightly different from that of Faith 7.

The idea was to see whether astronauts could easily spot beacons in the sky. Such beacons might be used to guide astronauts of the Gemini and Apollo programs to other spacecraft in orbit.

Cooper reported to a tracking post on Ascension Island that the sphere had been released successfully. But there was no immediate report on his observance of the xenon-gas lights which were to blink once every second.

However, Mercury control centre reported later that it had received a partially-garbled message from Cooper which indicated that perhaps the experiment was not as successful as originally thought. A full report was expected later.

100 to 166 Miles Above Earth

Faith 7 reached a peak speed of 17,546 miles an hour and circled the globe once every 88.45 minutes.

The flight, conducted in the full glare of publicity in contrast with the secrecy of Russia's manned space flights, was hailed by people around the world.

President Kennedy in Washington expressed happiness at the success of the launching and said he would follow the flight closely.

"Beautiful," was the way Cooper's wife Trudy described the launching, which she watched on television in her Houston, Tex., home, with their two teen-age daughters, Camala, 14, and Janita, 13.

Tears were the only visible emotion from the 82-year-old astronaut's grandmother, who rocked slowly in a rocking chair as she watched the rocket rise.

As Faith 7 whirled through the heavens, Cooper continually made satisfactory reports about his personal condition and the systems in the space-craft. Early in the flight, there was some concern about high temperature in the cabin, but this quickly cleared up.

As he passed above California near the end of orbit No. 2, he told the tracking station at Point Arguello that he was "comfortable, real comfortable in fact; I even had a little nap."

If Cooper completes the full flight, he will have been up for more than 34 hours, dropping to a parachute landing in the Pacific Ocean southeast of Midway Island shortly after 7 p.m. EDT Thursday.

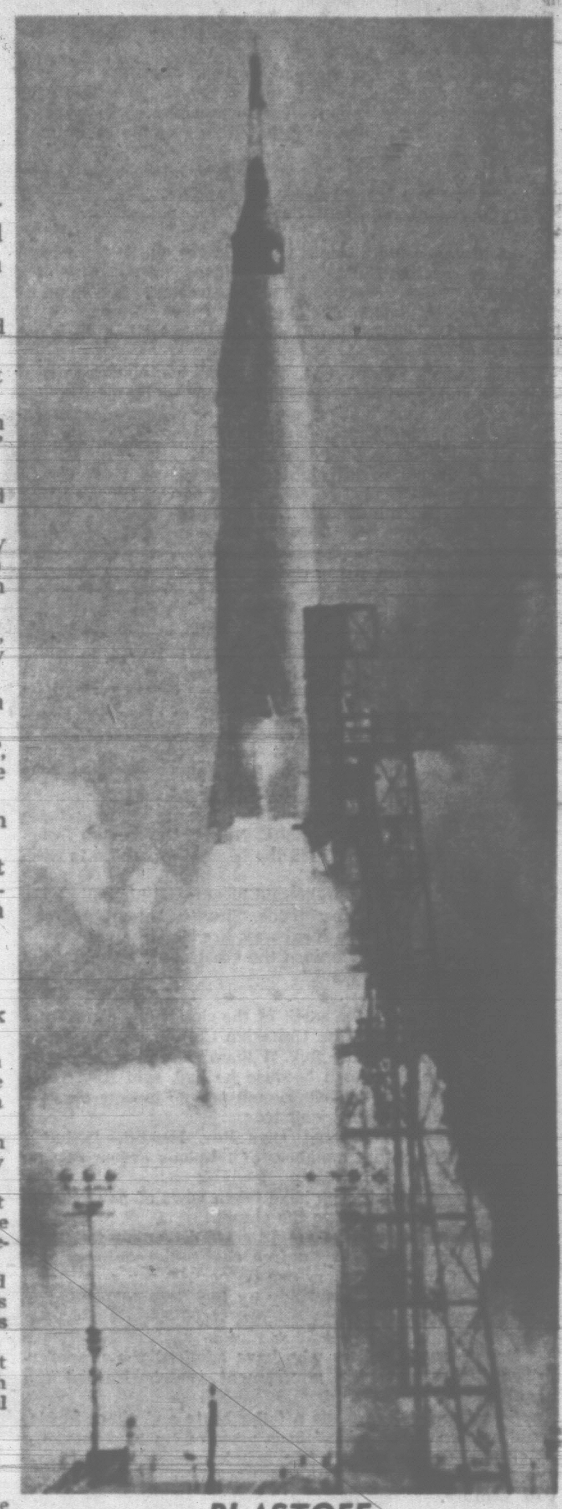

During the first orbit he gave his spacecraft systems a thorough wringing out and pronounced them all in excellent shape. Mercury control centre at Cape Canaveral then relayed the word that he was "go" for at least six more orbits.

That was the first of three critical "go" or "no-go" decisions scheduled for the 34-hour flight. The other two were set for orbits seven and 17.

Principal landing areas in the Atlantic and Pacific were at the end of each of these passes. However, alternative landing areas were located around the world in case of an emergency.

The decision was passed on to Cooper by astronaut Gus Grissom, capsule communicator at the Guayamas, Mexico, station.

Armed Forces Get Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay increases for all ranks in the armed forces were announced by the government today. They are retroactive to Oct. 1, 1962.

The last general increase in wages and salaries for the forces was in October, 1960.

The announcement by Associate Defence Minister Lucien Cardin added that procedural changes have been made so that increases can be "granted at more frequent intervals than heretofore."

Increases also will result from a revision in the system of trades pay. This, too, is retroactive to last Oct. 1.

The revisions apply to both the regular and reserve forces.

The boost in basic pay means an annual increase of $48 for the first four ranks in each of the three services.

Other examples of pay boosts: Leading seaman, and army and air force corporals—an increase of $96 a year.

'COPTERS STANDING BY AS MACKENZIE RISING

EDMONTON (CP)—The water of the Mackenzie River delta was reported rising today by Canadian Army officials in Edmonton.

An army spokesman said at the current rate the peak flood conditions would occur within a week to 10 days. The river was reported jammed by ice north from Norman Wells, N.W.T., about 925 miles north of Edmonton.

About 500 residents in the Mackenzie Delta area, where the river empties into the Arctic Ocean about 1,600 miles northwest of Edmonton, would be affected by a continued rise of the river level.

RCAF helicopters have been ordered to the area on a standby basis in the event they are needed.

U.S. to Have Custody Of A-Arms in Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today that American servicemen will be responsible for the custody of nuclear warheads that are to be acquired for Canadian armed forces.

He said following a cabinet session that negotiations for an agreement with the United States on acquiring the warheads will start in a day or so.

Custody by American servicemen is the course now followed by all nations which have worked out arrangements to take U.S. nuclear weapons, he said.

Mr. Pearson was asked about a Toronto Star report that Canadian troops would be given the right to guard nuclear warheads.

He replied:

For "any American warheads which were on a Canadian base or on a Canadian camp, the actual guarding—the immediate guarding—of the warheads is the responsibility of the United States."

He said the report may have been confused "by the fact that if it were a Canadian base the security outside the particular place where they are stored would be a Canadian responsibility."

DEATH DEADLINE TODAY

Duvalier Still Controls Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—President Francois Duvalier remained firmly in control of Haiti from within his heavily fortified palace today despite the arrival of an announced deadline for his assassination.

Rumors circulated outside the country, however, that he planned to fly to European exile today via the Dutch Island of Curacao.

A Haitian exile leader in Santo Domingo, capital of the neighboring Dominican republic, charged Tuesday night that Dominican authorities blocked preparations for an invasion of Haiti today by raiding rebel headquarters near the border and taking arms away from 67 men.

"We planned to invade Haiti early Wednesday when constitutional government ends, but now we are forced to postpone it," khaki-clad Jacques Casagnol said.

In New York, a spokesman for Pan American Airways said Tuesday night that "a party of four registered in the name of Duvalier" had booked passage on a Pan Am flight from New York to Paris tonight.

The spokesman said there was no indication the "Duvalier" on the passenger manifest was the Haitian president.

VENEZUELA BREAKS TIES

CARACAS (AP)—Venezuela broke diplomatic relations with Haiti Tuesday and recalled its charge d'affaires from Port au Prince, the Haitian capital.

FLYING SINCE A BOY

'Destined for Space'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—As a boy, Gordon Cooper read the comic strip Buck Rogers and wondered whether man would fly into space before the 25th century.

Today he's amazed at the swiftness of events which have sent astronauts into space in his lifetime—and his participation as one of the pioneers of this great effort.

If anyone seemed destined for space flight, it was Cooper. He has been flying as long as he can remember.

His father, an air force colonel, was a close friend of such aviation greats as Wiley Post and Amelia Earhart and Gordon used to listen to their flying conversations. The elder Cooper took his son aloft almost before he could walk.

"Gordo"—as his fellow astronauts call him—recalls first handling the controls of a plane when he was six and flying his first solo at 16.

Cooper's mother says her son always was interested in airplanes.

"Gordon made a lot of model planes," she reported recently at her Carbondale, Colo., home. "Later, when he was a senior in high school, he had a good friend who ran an airport. Gordon worked there to pay for flying instruction. He soloed then, while his father was serving with the air force in the Pacific."

The senior Cooper died of cancer in 1960.

Had Mrs. Cooper ever worried about Gordon's early-day flying?

"I worried about it, yes," she replied. "But once I asked that question of another mother who had three boys who were flying. She said 'Don't you know that God's up there the same as on the

TV BEAMED TO EUROPE VIA RELAY SATELLITE

By United Press International

Americans, President Kennedy included, watched the air force major blasted into space on instantaneous live telecasts from Cape Canaveral and within a few hours millions of Europeans also saw the liftoff in a videotaped transmission across the Atlantic via relay satellite.

Other millions in Europe, Asia, Latin America and Africa followed the early stages of Major Cooper's orbital mission on radio. His flight was covered minute-by-minute in some European countries and on the U.S. armed force's worldwide radio network.

Singer Jimmie Rogers, who headlines the stage show at the Victoria Exhibition, is one entertainer who probably would not have much trouble passing President Kennedy's fitness targets.

The young entertainer played 18 holes of golf at Oak Bay Tuesday morning, followed it up with his afternoon show. He then rushed out to Uplands for another round at golf and capped his day's performance with the evening show at Memorial Arena.

"It wouldn't take much to get me to live here. Even your water is great. After drinking that stuff in Los Angeles, your water tastes like candy."

A large tree with bright yellow leaves on the front lawn of the Legislative Buildings has aroused the curiosity of a number of Victorians during the past week. It is a thing of beauty against a deep blue sky.

But what puzzled many people was why had they not noticed it before.

Dr. Adam Szczawinski, provincial botanist, identified the tree, and explained why it has become such an attraction. It's a 60-year-old "golden oak" whose leaves turn bright yellow in spring if the days and nights are comparatively cool.

Dr. Adam

"It so happened the nights have been cool in the past week," he said. "This enabled the yellow pigment in the leaves to predominate. But the leaves will soon turn to green because of warmer days."

The tree is situated to the east of the flagpole.

"Granted, a person should take care in handling these chemical controls," said Ronald E. Nutter, 1565 Mount Douglas Cross Round. "But I think the harm they can do to wildlife can be overemphasized."

In support of his case, he said he sprayed his holly trees with malathion, a toxic insecticide. Situated among his trees, some not more than two feet away, are 35 bee hives.

"The hives were examined the other day," he said, "and there was no damage done."

Another salvo in the battle of the clerics has come from Rev. Philip Hewett, of the Unitarian Church of Vancouver.

Local Anglican padre Rev. William Hills took issue with the Vancouver clergyman because he had, said Rev. Hills, made the statement that clergymen pay no income tax.

This, said Rev. Hills, isn't true.

Of course it isn't true, says Rev. Hewett. "What I actually said was that members of religious orders pay no income tax.

"These are people who have taken vows of poverty and donate all their earnings to the church.

"Ordinary citizens are permitted to deduct up to 10 per cent of their incomes as tax-free charitable contributions, but persons in this category can deduct 100 per cent.

Kennedy Cautious On Race Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is delaying a decision on asking Congress for broader federal authority in civil rights cases while awaiting the results of efforts to end racial disturbances in the south.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader, said a request for authority to permit the attorney-general to initiate cases for individuals alleged to have been denied their rights remains a possibility.

Humphrey told reporters Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy "does not feel at this time the need for this authority," because the president's brother felt any such immediate request might "agitate" the situation in Birmingham, Ala., and elsewhere.

But Humphrey said he is confident "there will be a decision made later" on whether to add the controversial proposal to the administration's voting right recommendations now before Congress.

Doctor 'Unjustly Convicted'

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Court of Appeal has dismissed the conviction of Dr. J. Conrad Simard of Hull, Que., on a charge of criminal negligence.

Three appeal court judges ruled unanimously that the physician was unjustly convicted in the February, 1962, death of a three-day-old boy.

The baby was born prematurely to an unmarried 27-year-old schoolteacher at a private clinic in Aylmer, Que. The mother was 7½ months pregnant at the time.

Dr. Simard was charged with negligence in "the unnecessary use of forceps during the delivery."

Evidence at the trial was that a nurse had telephoned the doctor shortly after the birth to inform him the child was extremely ill and that he had replied "let it die, we shall soon be burying it."

Dr. Simard denied saying this.

NO ADEQUATE PROOF

Mr. Justice Pierre Badeaux of the appeal court said the doctor, awakened in the middle of the night, might have said anything on the spur of the moment.

Mr. Justice Badeaux said there was no adequate proof that it would have made any difference to the life of the baby if he had been rushed to hospital.

Several witnesses at the trial testified that Dr. Simard used the only technique possible to deliver the baby.

The appeal court ruled that in a case of this nature a physician should be given the benefit of every possible doubt.

QUIET IN BIRMINGHAM

Negro Charges Governor Trying to 'Sabotage' Pact

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A Negro leader says Governor George C. Wallace is trying to undermine a biracial agreement on Birmingham's racial problems by keeping state troopers in the city.

And while Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth was calling on Wallace Tuesday night to remove the highway patrolmen, Wallace again was calling on President Kennedy to withdraw federal troops he sent into Alabama.

Wallace replied to Shuttlesworth, one of the leaders in the desegregation campaign, that the state troopers would remain in Birmingham as long as he thinks they are needed to help maintain law and order.

The White House announced no reply to Wallace's latest telegram protesting the federal troops, but the president has shown no inclination to recall the soldiers in previous exchanges with the Alabama governor.

In his latest telegram, Wallace demanded that what he termed "an advance echelon of a military striking force" be withdrawn from Birmingham. This was a reference to about 25 officers of a headquarters planning unit in the city. Wallace said their presence invited new rioting by Negroes.

SENT TO POSTS

About 3,000 soldiers have been sent to military posts in Alabama, but they are not in Birmingham.

The president had lunch in Washington Tuesday with 25 Alabama publishers and editors and the main topic of discussion was the state's racial problems.

Kennedy urged co-operation between local Negro and white leaders, and said that any Negro trend toward extremism would best be offset by conferences between moderates on both sides.

Developments relating to Alabama's racial problems included:

President Kennedy delayed decision on asking Congress for broader authority in civil rights cases pending results of efforts to end racial disturbances in the south.

About 300 Negroes met in Selma, Ala., 100 miles to the south, to plan a voter registration drive. The sheriff and about 600 deputies stood guard, turning away carloads of white persons. No trouble was reported.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., southern integration leader, said in Cleveland, Ohio, racial discrimination "must be uprooted from our society." He said desegregation in Birmingham would send repercussions throughout the southern states.

URGES RESTRAINT

Negro leader Roy Wilkins in New York urged "forebearance and restraint" in the use of federal troops in Alabama. He is executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

A rally in New York's Negro Harlem district supporting the integration drive in Birmingham ended in scuffling Tuesday night. Two persons were hurt, store windows were broken, and four men were arrested.

Birmingham has been relatively quiet since Saturday night's rioting, set off by the dynamiting of the home of a Negro leader and a motel headquarters of the integration movement.

The agreement provides gradual desegregation of public facilities in downtown areas, improved Negro employment opportunities, efforts to dismiss charges against demonstrators, and a permanent biracial study committee.

Failure of white business leaders to back up publicly the limited desegregation agreement reached Friday appears to make it nearly useless.

Only one white businessman of the biracial group which participated in the agreement has allowed his name to be made public. He is Sidney M. Smyer, Sr., and he told a press conference Sunday night the agreement is limited in scope.

Cabinet Offers Swap On Courthouse Deal

The city originally offered a straight property swap. The counter offer was not detailed.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said after the closed meeting that if the deal is completed, there is a strong possibility the Bastion Square Courthouse would be used for about 18 months as a temporary City Hall while the present building is renovated and extended.

Long term use for the old Courthouse likely will be as a home for the Maritime Museum of B.C. More than a year ago the museum asked city help in obtaining the building.

Mayor Wilson said council still wants to know how much it would cost to renovate the building and provide it for the museum before deciding to acquire it.

If the Courthouse deal falls through, the city has two alternatives for temporary City Hall accommodation — rental of the vacant Mc & Mc building nearby or use of vacant buildings within the precinct before they are demolished.

PROBLEMS IF SPACESHIP LANDS IN CHINA

Reds Would Treat Cooper as Spy

SUITING UP before launching, Cooper and technicians helping him are reflected in mirror in Cape Canaveral's Hangar "S". (AP Wirephoto.)

ABOARD THE USS KEARSARGE (UPI)—Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper will spend 34 minutes of his scheduled 22-orbit space flight over Red China—and probably would face imprisonment and prosecution as a spy if he should be forced to land there.

John Graham, national aeronautics and space administration team leader aboard the aircraft carrier Kearsarge, told newsmen Tuesday he knows of no agreement to rescue Cooper should he fall in Chinese territory.

Graham recalled that other airmen who accidentally violated Communist Chinese air space have been either killed or imprisoned by the Reds, who conduct an unceasing anti-American campaign and label all such intrusions as "spying attempts by the imperialistic Americans."

The probability of a Red China landing is extremely remote, but the possibility has to be considered, Graham said. However, nothing has been done in anticipation of such a mishap because of the lack of diplomatic communications between the United States and Communist China.

"Recovery units would move immediately to the boundaries of the country and await instructions from the state department, which would try to arrange for the rescue teams to enter the country," Graham said.

He pointed out that Cooper would be in serious trouble on another count if his space flight ended in Red China. The great desolate area in the interior would make it extremely difficult to locate the capsule without special recovery and locating equipment.

ground?" and she went on knitting. I have always tried to remember that."

Cooper, a Methodist, feels much the same way.

Cooper was born March 6, 1927, in Shawnee, Okla. After graduation from high school in 1945, he entered the Marine Corps and spent some time at the Naval Academy Preparatory School. After his discharge in 1946 he attended the University of Hawaii for three years.

WIFE A PILOT

At the university, he met and married the former Trudy Olson of Seattle, Wash. Under Cooper's instruction, Trudy soon had a pilot's licence and the couple explored the Hawaiian Islands in a Piper Cub. They took their first baby for a plane ride soon after she was born.

The Coopers now have two daughters, Camela, 14, and Janita, 13.

While at the University of Hawaii, Cooper received an army commission and then transferred to the air force. He was assigned to the air force experimental flight test school, Edwards Air Base, Calif., in 1956, and helped design and test experimental fighter aircraft.

Cooper, now a major, has logged more than 2,600 hours flying time, 1,600 in jets.

NARROW ESCAPES

As a test pilot, he has had several close calls. He and fellow astronaut Virgil Grissom had a near-fatal plane accident before their selection in 1959 as space candidates. They were taking off in a T-33 jet trainer when the landing gear collapsed. The plane crashed and burned but both men escaped unharmed.

Trudy was elated when Cooper was selected to make a space flight which could keep him in orbit for more than a day.

"I'd go with him if I could," she said.

She also shares his enthusiasm for wanting to travel one day to the moon.

. . . COOPER

"You're go for seven," Grissom—who made a sub-orbital flight two years ago—reported.

As Cooper completed orbit No. 1, he talked with astronauts Alan Shepard, the first American into space, and Walter Schirra, whose six - robit American space flight record he was to break.

Shepard told the pilot: "It was a beautiful shot."

Schirra, who was serving as capsule communicator in Mercury control centre, shouted "have a good ball" as Faith 7 zipped out of radio range and on into the second orbit.

During the first orbit Cooper became the first American space television personality. As his Atlas pushed him into space, a TV camera in his spacecraft relayed pictures of him in action and they were converted from their jerky slow - scan speed to normal television by the TV networks.

As he whirled into his second orbit, Cooper shut off all controls and electrical power and commenced drifting flight, allowing the craft to move freely on its yaw, pitch and roll axes.

ROTATES SLOWLY

In this condition the vehicle rotates slowly, making about one revolution every 30 minutes if control is not re-established by the pilot. The capsule will not move far off course because it is flying an orbital path determined by the laws of nature.

The only concern during the first orbit was a high cabin temperature reading of 118 degrees made by an instrument at one of the tracking stations. But control officials believed the reading was in error because the astronaut reported his cabin temperature a continual 100 degrees.

As he swung into orbit No. 2 Cooper reported he was slightly warmer than normal but felt there was no problem.

His suit temperature was only 58 degrees but the cabin heat made him feel warmer than that.

In his discussion with Grissom at Guaymas, the 36-year-old U.S. Air Force major said he had seen many of the same sights witnessed by previous American astronauts, including the air-glow layer on the horizon. As he passed over the Pacific near the end of orbit No. 1, he saw the "fireflies" first seen by John Glenn on his pioneer U.S. orbital flight last year.

The fireflies are created by flakes of frost falling off the capsule and being illuminated by the rays of the rising sun.

As on all previous Aherican manned-robit flights, the city of Perth, Australia, turned on all its lights as a greeting. Cooper said he saw the lights clearly from his vantage point about 160 miles in space. He hit the high point of his orbital path over Australia.

Five minutes after launching, Cooper took the control stick to rotate his capsule 180 degrees on its yaw axis so that he was riding upright and backward, with the craft's blunt heat shield pushing a path through space.

As he turned the capsule around, Cooper told Schirra he could see his spent Atlas booster following close behind him in another orbit.

Cooper reported that it was "silver."

TALK BACK AND FORTH

A tape recording played at the press site at Cape Canaveral several minutes after launching showed this exchange of conversation between Schirra and Cooper when the Atlas released Faith 7:

Cooper—"Boy, oh boy!"

Schirra—"Have a good ride, boy."

Cooper — "Thank you, buddy."

Cooper is the 10th man and sixth American to rocket into space.

The scheduled mission is nearly four times longer than Schirra's six-orbit trip last Oct. 3. But it falls far short of the tandem flights made last August by Russian cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich, who remained aloft for 64 and 48 orbits respectively.

The shot had been postponed Tuesday because of trouble with a tracking radar on Bermuda.

Family Hears Dad's Words

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Special radios taken from Walter Schirra's Sigma 7 capsule were placed in astronaut Gordon Cooper's Texas home today so his family could hear his words as he spun across the United States.

The radios from Sigma 7, which flew last October, were able to pick up Cooper's transmissions from Faith 7 whenever he passed near Houston. The Cooper home is located near there.

B.C. Expert Plays Part In Flight

Ken Archibald, head technician of Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corp., is responsible for relaying most of the messages from tracking stations in Australia and parts of Asia to the Cape Canaveral launch site-control centre.

He must listen to Cooper's heart beats and record his body temperature.

"We are also connected with the direct line from Washington to Cape Canaveral and there is nothing that goes on in the space capsule or control tower that we don't hear about."

The corporation, a Crown company, has the only cables from North America to Australia and Hong Kong. The first was laid in 1907, the second in 1929 and a third is planned for telephone calls.

Liferaft, Whistle On Board

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—If all goes well, astronaut Gordon Cooper will land in the Pacific Ocean off Midway Island after 22 orbits—and scientists have loaded down his capsule with safety devices to keep him alive and well until a rescue ship arrives.

The liferaft is equipped with a first aid kit, distress signals, a signal mirror and a portable radio beacon. There also is water, survival rations and matches, a whistle and 10 feet of nylon cord.

Cooper has a hand-held radio, if he needs it.

The liferaft, which weighs just slightly better than three pounds, is painted orange to make visibility easier for the recovery team.

The reason for this is that the Liberals were the only party to advance in strength during the April 8 election; all others suffered setbacks and thus wil be little inclined to try to force the Liberals out of office.

The prospect is that the Liberals will be able to comfortably chart the course of the nation for at least two years and probably, with deft manoeuvring, will be able to last out a full four-year terms before the next election arrives.

Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said he would invite the party's former whip, Dr. Guy Marcoux, MP for Quebec-Montmorency, to explain his position.

Dr. Marcoux quit the party's Quebec wing during the week-end and announced he will sit in the Commons as an independent-Social Credit member.

However, Dr. Marcoux said Tuesday night on the CBC television program Inquiry that he has not been invited to the Social Credit caucus. He also said he would not attend if invited.

Soviet Schedules New Rocket Tests

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union was scheduled to start a series of rocket tests in the Pacific today which western observers said may be the prelude to some new space spectacular.

The Soviet press played down the space shot of U.S. astronaut L. Gordon Cooper. It all but ignored the postponement of Cooper's launching Tuesday. The only mention was a brief Tass News Agency item, without comment.

600 Suites Planned In Four High Risers

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Details of a $6,000,000, four-building high-rise complex for West Bay, heralded in Monday's Times, were announced Wednesday afternoon by city lawyer Lloyd McKenzie.

Mr. McKenzie was acting for a group of eight Vancouver Island businessmen, headed by Harold R. Hines of Nanaimo.

He is president of West Bay Investments Ltd., the developing company which has purchased four acres of land and taken an option on two additional acres, with about 450 feet fronting on Esquimalt Road and running to the waterfront.

The plans call for four 12-storey buildings containing a total of 600 one and two-bedroom suites in a park-like setting and with a private marina connected to the property by a causeway.

First step necessary to get the project going, Mr. McKenzie said, was to secure rezoning of the property to high-rise use. Then the developers would enter negotiations for long-term financing. Several large financial institutions were interested, he said.

OLYMPIC POOL

Initially, one building would be put up with 190 suites and the whole project, including a covered gymnasium and Olympic-size swimming pool for year-round use, would be completed within three years.

Architect will be Wilfred Buttjes of Vancouver who has designed the Beacon Towers, Bickerton Court and Rudyard Kipling apartment buildings here.

Announcement of the project was made to an audience mainly composed of city councillors, city officials and district planners who questioned Mr. McKenzie closely on a number of details.

It was pointed out by city engineer James Garnett that sewage disposal in the area would be inadequate for the project and a high-lift pump system would be needed.

Mr. McKenzie said his principals were aware of this need.

Mr. McKenzie was also questioned on the financial capabilities of his clients and their willingness to go ahead if the land were rezoned for high-rise use.

He replied: "I can assure you of the good faith of the developers," and added that they felt no aprehension about their ability to raise the additional funds needed for construction.

STREET LOCATION

As well as rezoning, the plan calls for relocation of Maitland and part of Seaforth Streets and this was questioned on the basis that, according to the plan, the required 50-foot setback requirement for high-rises would not be met.

The lawyer said that the project would put the land to the "best and highest use" and would bring in an estimated $100,000 a year in taxes, as well as benefits to the city from a population of about 1,000 people who could generally be expected to be retired with good incomes.

Rentals for the suites would range from $105 to $120 for one bedroom and from $125 to $140 for two bedrooms.

More Haste, Less Speed

WHEN THE NEWLY-ELECTED Canadian Parliament opens its first session tomorrow there seems to be no danger that it will lack ample business. The danger, on the contrary, is that it will try to do too much, too fast, as evidence of its energy.

To be sure, some things must be done at once. The speech from the Throne, one expects, will be crammed with immediate priorities, as promised for Mr. Pearson's sixty days of decision. Within a month or so the government's first budget must be introduced and expenditures long authorized by Governor-General's warrants must be approved in detail by the House of Commons. But most of the nation's basic problems cannot be settled when Parliament adjourns, as planned, for a midsummer break.

While the government can plan, for example, to introduce a system of contributory old age pensions next year, months of actuarial study should precede such a huge undertaking which must touch virtually all pay cheques and all employers in the nation. Surely the government's objective should be to make the scheme sound rather than to establish it in a hurry.

Again, though Mr. Gordon may be ready to make some peripheral amendents to the tax laws, any fundamental changes in the financial and economic system will need careful preparation since the results must affect the nation for a long time to come.

On the other hand, the government presumably will move at once to establish its promised Municipal Development and Loan Fund and make investment capital, at relatively low interest rates, available to municipalities.

Actually the groundwork for this scheme has been laid already with a reduction in the lending rate of the central Bank of Canada—a signal for easier money throughout the credit system. A general reduction in interest rates is perhaps the government's largest decision so far.

Presumably also, Parliament will quickly authorize the establishment of a National Development Corporation which can lend public money to promising industries unable to borrow otherwise but the proof of this huge pudding will be in the eating. How much money is to be lent, to whom and under what conditions? After securing authority from Parliament, the government will have to feel its way in unmapped territory.

This is also true of a new department of industry. It can easily be established by statute but must learn by experience. A National Economic Council can be authorized without delay but this central brain trust can perform no miracles.

Besides, all the government's economic planning is overhung by the great imponderable of the forthcoming GATT tariff negotiations because they involve all our industries, directly or indirectly, and they will not get fully under way before next spring.

All things considered, some six weeks or two months of the parliamentary session can do useful preliminary work. They cannot lay down the government's long-term policies in many vital areas. It will be wise, therefore, to call a recess in July and give the government a quiet summer to prepare for the larger decisions when Parliament re-assembles in early autumn.

Good Ferry Tale

BRITISH COLUMBIANS, ALL of whom are shareholders, have been told that the provincial government ferry system grossed more than $1,000,000 last month and thereby showed an increase of 31.2 per cent over April of last year.

This figure does not, of course, reveal the net profit. That will presumably be announced later when all expenses have been set against earnings.

The monthly total does, however, underscore two points of continuing interest. When this newspaper and other organizations and individuals were calling for a ferry service between a point near Sidney and the lower mainland, they were told by operating transportation companies and other experts that it couldn't be done economically.

Granted the ferry system on that run benefits from extensive highway work on the lower mainland and the Deas Island tunnel. But quite obviously it could be done and the present government did it.

The other point of interest to the shareholders, many of whom are users, centres on the question of fares. If the money is rolling in, shouldn't some of it go to reduction of ticket price? This is our link with the mainland, just as bridges are links between different parts of the mainland. Wouldn't it be fair to cut costs for people travelling to and from the Island, as costs have been cut for users of former toll bridges?

Mr. Bennett suggests this type of relief will come in time.

They're All Out of Step But Good

ONLY ONE THING SEEMS clear in the comedy of cross purposes which has erupted in the federal Social Credit Party — as a national entity it is a sorry mess.

Six of Mr. Caouette's members offered in writing to support the Liberal minority government. At first this was denied, then admitted. Now Mr. Caouette says they did it to forestall a move by others of their colleagues to support a Conservative minority government. Mr. Diefenbaker says no comment. Mr. Douglas, whose party was supposed to be part of the arrangement, says nonsense. Mr. Knowles, the NDP stalwart who allegedly was to be made Speaker under this arrangement, says utter rubbish. And Mr. Thompson, Mr. Caouette's national leader, says Mr. Caouette's revelation is "a fabrication of somebody's imagination." Dr. Marcoux, one of the Social Credit strongmen, has resigned from the Party and says Mr. Thompson's head will be the next to roll. Mr. Caouette says Mr. Thompson is the boss of the Party and that's the way he likes it. And everybody agrees that there is nothing but peace and harmony within the Party and everything is fine.

All of which must make Mr. Bennett, who flew east to appear on an election platform with Mr. Caouette during the recent campaign and gave the national deputy leader his full support and approval, feel a little giddy. If this is the Social Credit march on Ottawa, somebody ought to call the step.

Dollars and Dirty Talk

IN BRITAIN, WHERE CAREFUL judgment has been rendered on some of D. H. Lawrence's more controversial work, a new stage has been reached in the debate on obscenity.

Mr. Harold Hobson, writing from London for The Christian Science Monitor, points out that the judgment in the Lawrence case was intended to guarantee to the artist the right to say, in his own words, anything that was relevant to an overriding artistic purpose. "But it was assumed as essential that the overriding artistic purpose should be there," he adds. "The freedom of offensive expression was strictly subordinate. Now, however, this offensiveness does not even pretend to be subordinate. It is in itself the aim and object."

The issue has come to a head through the refusal by Britain's home secretary to give a work permit to an American comedian whose record apparently indicates a penchant for off-color patter.

Hence it seems that the discussion of obscenity has passed well beyond a weighing of cases for or against "good taste." "Good taste" apparently is old hat and doesn't count.

But if professionals in various fields seek to exploit for strictly cash gain the inclination of some people to pay for being shocked, insulted, or startled by foul language and brutal insult, undoubtedly a strong body of public opinion will arise to check the professionals.

Here, it seems, is another instance in which freedom—in this case of speech—has become licence, which invites strong counteraction intelligently inspired and executed. The intent must be not to curb legitimate expression, but to discourage the transition into general usage for no artistic purpose at all of the obscenities scrawled on the walls of illkept public conveniences.

Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

"Well, here I go again . . .!"

FROM WASHINGTON — By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Story Behind the Birmingham Story

THE desperately ugly story in Birmingham, Alabama, may end happily after all—for which everyone should be fervently thankful. One way of celebrating is to tell the story's untold part. The untold part of the Birmingham story began just over two years ago, when Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, newly sworn in as his brother's youngest Cabinet member, ordered a careful Justice Department survey of all the potential centres of racial trouble in the South.

Alsop

The survey, for which all the Justice Department's information-collecting resources were used, pin-pointed Birmingham as just about the most explosive Southern city. No less than 18 months ago, therefore, an effort was forehandedly started to de-fuse the Birmingham problem insofar as this was possible.

The Department's quiet but effective civil rights specialist, Burke Marshall, and the head of the Tax Division, Lou Oberdorfer, who comes from Birmingham, went there to talk with the local editors and leading Birmingham businessmen.

Same Plea

Attorney-General Kennedy meanwhile approached the national executive of the Scripps-Howard and Newhouse newspaper chains, which own the Birmingham papers, national executive of the chain department stores doing business in the city, and certain Alabama political leaders. Kennedy, Marshall and Oberdorfer all made the same plea, for measures of reform in Birmingham before things got out of hand. Their pleas did not fall on deaf ears.

The wiser businessmen in Birmingham were already beginning to realize that the city's established, iron-fisted habits of segregation could not be maintained, without grave danger and heavy losses all around. To avert the danger, a Senior Citizens' Committee was formed by the City Chamber of Commerce, under the leadership of Sidney W. Smyer, a lawyer and real estate executive.

In the city election, moreover, the more far-sighted white community leaders strongly supported the reform ticket headed by Mayor-elect Albert Boutwell, against the incumbent, extremist city government controlled by the Police Commissioner, "Bull" Connor. With the help of Negro votes, which in turn resulted from a registration drive sponsored by leaders of the Birmingham Negro community, Boutwell won the election.

Adverse Effect

During the climax of the election, the Rev. Martin Luther King three times began to organize anti-segregation demonstrations in Birmingham. Each time, the Justice Department watchers-on-the-spot relayed the word to Waschington, and Attorney-General Kennedy managed to dissuade King, on the ground that demonstrations would adversely affect the election result.

When Boutwell won, however, and Bull Connor began to contest the election result in the courts, Martin Luther King moved to Birmingham and began to lead demonstrations on a small scale. After some weeks, the school children were called out. The mass jailings began. And so the grim events started to unfold which every newspaper reader will remember.

On Saturday a few days ago, Assistant Attorney-General Burke Marshall therefore returned post-haste to Birmingham, to seek a peaceful settlement. Among the Negro leaders, there had not yet been any agreement on the reforms the mass demonstrations were intended to produce. And even the most moderate white leaders had no notion what the Negro demonstrators desired, since they had never sat down with the Negro leaders to discuss common problems.

While Marshall was organizing the difficult beginnings of a dialogue, Attorney-General Kennedy was on the telephone to persons with some leverage in Birmingham, and especially to the national executives of the Birmingham chain department stores. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, and even Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara, who has friends in the Birmingham business community, also joined the telephone campaign.

The first result was an agreement by the chain department stores to meet the Negroes' demands, now clearly formulated by Burke Marshall's request, for desegregation of lunch counters and other facilities. But the department stores did not wish to take action in isolation.

Thus the key episode of the Birmingham story was a secret meeting on Wednesday, of the bankers, steel executives, and other chief persons in the city's economic life. The two-score and more persons at the meeting voted with only one dissenting voice that the time for reform was now.

Rug Pulled

After that meeting, which was strongly influenced by the telephone campaign already described, the rug was effectively pulled out from under the last-ditch segregationists in Birmingham. The arrest of Rev. Martin Luther King was in fact a final, fairly desperate attempt to inflame Negro passions, and thus to prevent the reforms already agreed on by the leaders of Birmingham's white community.

Yet it is pleasant to recall the roles played by common sense and moderation and long-headed preparation, which was all the more effective because it was not aimed at the grandstand.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Colwood Post

On Feb. 21, 1963, I was in charge of the 4 p.m. to 12 midnight watch at Colwood Post.

It was a bad night with much fog and at 11:59 p.m. two of the relieving watch failed to report for work. I phoned to both of their homes but could not contact them.

Two absent men and only one relief available at 12:15 a.m. I called in this relief, he arrived at 12:50.

This procedure has been carried out for years without comment, but on Feb. 22 it seems that the defence department decided this procedure was wrong and someone had to be fired, but they also decided that one relief man was not sufficient for the Colwood Post; they now have three.

Who was wrong, the change hand who was two men short and only one relief man available? Or the adjutant whose job it was to see that sufficient relief men are available to all posts at all times and who failed to do so?

If Mr. Wurtele is so confident the complaints are groundless why is he afraid to have an inquiry?

Clerical Taxes

In your May 4 issue, the Rev. A. Phillip Hewitt, minister of a Vancouver Unitarian church is quoted as saying that "under the Federal Income Tax Act clergy are permitted to deduct the whole of their earnings as charitable contributions."

He also states that "further, the ministers of the churches should pay income tax."

Both these statements are very misleading as ministers of the Anglican church not only pay income tax on their stipends but also on the Easter offerings which by Canon law (XVI) are also part of their stipulated income.

Any Anglican minister like the rest of us may not claim any more than 10 per cent deduction of his salary under the Federal Income Tax Act.

'The Old Fogies'

May I crave space to reply to Mr. Edwin Haw who wants to take the jobs away from the "Old Fogies of the Parking Meter Patrols."

He states "there are too many of these old fogies tramping about Victoria streets, many of whom are getting good pensions."

May an "old fogie" who is not a parking meter commissionaire but who earned the right to wear campaign medals in both world wars and did a lot of overseas service in between wars give Mr. Edwin Haw a few straight facts?

The old fogies now tramping the streets are the same men who marched between cheering crowds, under waving banners, and with brass bands on their way to the troopships and troop trains and were fortunate enough to return to the cheers, banners, crowds and bands even if some were limping or pushed in wheelchairs. How long does it take a man (or woman) to reach the stage of jeers instead of cheers?

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor George R. Pearkes, VC, spent a very enjoyable evening on Saturday, May 11, when he again had dinner with about 250 men, the old fogies holding their 16th annual dinner and reunion. His Honor addressed them as "comrades."

If Mr. Edwin Haw is envious of an old fogy's good pension this writer will make him an offer but he must be warned that the right to wear medal ribbons does not put a person into the super-tax bracket. How did the old fogy earn his alleged good pension? Was it for leaving some part of his antomy in foreign lands or is it for the piece of metal he still carries about inside his body?

Mr. Edwin Haw and the other snipers should leave the old fogies in peace to do the job they obviously must do efficiently.

This old fogy will assign to Mr. Edwin Haw or his union all his armed services pension rights in return for a guaranteed 25 dollars per month income but it cannot include the medals of both world wars he is occasionally proud to wear or the honorable discharges that went with them.

I hope you, Mr. Editor, will be permitted to publish an apology to the old fogies from Mr. Edwin Haw.

HYANNIS PORT:

Fireside Chat

By MAURICE WESTERN

THE open fireplace will be remembered as the symbol of the Hyannis Port talks. Nothing could be more appropriate for the purpose of the Pearson-Kennedy meeting was to dispel the extended chill in Canadian-American relations. A roaring fire is the ideal medium for restoring circulations. It is unlikely that this was in the president's mind when he invited Mr. Pearson to Hyannis Port. Washington, after all, is associated with air conditioners. But the clammy cold of wind-swept Cape Cod dictates a fire and the seascape is best viewed from indoors.

Western

While the cape probably has its charms, they are not visible to the untutored eye of the non-yachting outsider. The pilgrims, one gathers, by-passed Hyannis and it is difficult to blame them. The sand and scrub pine of the neighborhood would probably be hard-pressed to support a good-sized colony of bush rabbits. But Mr. Pearson had an advantage denied the pilgrims; he traversed the cape by helicopter, settling on the well-tended lawns within the Kennedy compound.

It was obvious, many hours before the appearance of the communique, that a variety of problems had melted to manageable proportions in the fireside glow. The first intimation of success came on Friday evening when the prime minister, in a gay and puckish mood, bantered about baseball with the correspondents who jammed the Robert Kennedy home. No one was prepared, however, for the flood of announcements which came a few minutes later when the two chief executives held an impromptu press conference, with Mr. Pearson doing most of the talking and the president beaming assent.

Two Subjects

The talks, which ranged far and wide, dealt with two sorts of subjects. There were general discussions, covering such matters as diarmament, nuclear tests, NATO nuclear policy, tension points, co-operation in the GATT negotiations and balance of payments difficulties. But in addition — and far more than was the case in London—the president and the prime minister tackled specific problems and irritants in the relations between the two countries.

At least one, the situation created on the Great Lakes by the SIU and allied American hoodlums, was obviously urgent. On the initiative of the prime minister this is to be taken up at a joint meeting of labor ministers and union heads.

On the larger problem of continental defence, the two leaders agreed to open negotiations, almost immediately, on a political agreement covering custody and control of nuclear warheads. Mr. Pearson pointed out that this would have to be followed by technical talks which might run for some months, during which there would be opportunity for Parliament to discuss the defence problem. This presumably is the meaning of the phrase in the communique which speaks of talks leading without delay to the fulfilment of Canada's existing commitment "consistent with Canadian parliamentary procedures." The political agreement as such does not require formal parliamentary approval.

Communiques are like icebergs. One can see, sometimes through a diplomatic fog, the small part above the water surface. It was revealed at Hyannis Port that the two governments will undertake early discussions on the Columbia River treaty. The remainder of the paragraph is obscure.

Mr. Pearson proposed "certain clarifications and adjustments in arrangements" which would be included in a protocol to the treaty. When these are agreed upon, Ottawa will consult at once with British Columbia and move in Parliament for ratification. But the nature of the "clarifications" and "adjustments" is Mr. Pearson's secret. Such mild phraseology could scarcely cover the objections to the treaty taken by General McNaughton and by some Liberal critics. It may be that the protocol will spell out arrangements which might be considered as implicit in the treaty, affording greater satisfaction to Canada without risk of further trouble in the United States Senate.

General Understanding

It was obviously the intention of the two leaders to seek general understandings which might later be explored in detail by ministers and experts. Thus Mr. Drury is to meet with Mr. McNamara, the U.S. defence secretary, on matters of defence production sharing. Mr. Pearson and Mr. Kennedy also approved negotiations on the vexed question of landing rights. The communique foreshadows "a good deal of addition and activity" over the next few months.

Both leaders expressed dissatisfaction at the press conference over the inadequate utilization of the existing machinery for co-operation between the two governments. Mr. Pearson made specific reference to certain of the joint committees, including the one on economic matters which has not met since January, 1962. There is a determined effort to breathe new life into these committees.

There was no agreement on the fisheries issue. Mr. Pearson advised the president that the Canadian government, with due regard for historic American rights, will establish a 12-mile fishing zone. The president reserved his position in support of the three-mile limit.

The main point is certainly clear enough. While there will always be some differences of viewpoint, Mr. Pearson has established a solid working agreement with the U.S. president. Beyond that the two countries are committed to a period of intense co-operative effort in a variety of fields of mutual interest. This prospect promises large benefits for both countries and must materially strengthen the Pearson government as it prepares to meet Parliament.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Requiem for Ichabod

CHARLES GUIGUET, a gentleman who knows such things, tells me that a Great Blue Heron may live to be 15 or 20 years old—with much more than a little bit of luck.

Stott

"The point is," he explained, "that you must distinguish between longevity and life expectancy. Among all wild creatures, life expectancy can be very short."

In some species of game birds, or water-fowl, I wasn't sure which, a "population turnover" of 80 per cent isn't unusual or necessarily unsatisfactory from a reproduction point of view. That means that a generation of birds large in fall after the year's hatch, may be down to a fifth of its number by the following spring, after the winter kill, starvation and the attacks of predators, humans included.

Big birds, if they survive a season or two, develop particular caution—much more than most little birds who aren't such easy targets. And if a Great Blue Heron gets past its years of indiscretion, it may reach a reasonable old age.

This knowledge comes to me late and destroys a concept I had developed about Ichabod.

Long before we knew that the big waders fishing in the shallows of Foul Bay and roosting out by the kelp beds were Great Blue Herons, we used to call the species cranes. This is wrong, ornithologically, but if my long-legged acquaintance was a heron and not a crane, he looked enough like the latter to call him Ichabod in a simple translation from a Washington Irving character.

I thought I had known Ichabod from my childhood. On Charlie's vital statistics, I must have known a succession of Ichabods—two at least, maybe many more.

My first memory of him (or perhaps the first Ichabod) runs back to early boyhood when, from our boathouse deck I watched the dignified, angular heron fishing at low tide where the eel-grass covers the spongy sand between our rocks and Pig Island.

Ichabod was an angler of rare patience and amazing efficiency. He would stand on his pipe-stem legs minutes at a time without apparent movement. Suddenly he would drive his wedge-shaped head down into the water with a whip of his long neck and bring it up with a fish in his bill. The performance would be repeated almost by the hour.

A person naturaly lazy could justify his indolence by explaining that he was watching Ichabod fish. Ichabod and I, he as the fisher, I as the bird-watcher, were completely complementary. Inert staring is one of the things I do rather well.

Over the years I developed a genuine affection for the ungainly creature, though, as a small boy, he had given me moments of terror.

At one time, our home was a sort of summer resort for relatives and friends from other parts of Canada. When they descended on us in July and August, I vacated my bedroom and slept in the boathouse, which was a sort of Boy Scouty thing to do in several ways.

Alone, in the dark of night during the first week of this routine, I was awakened by an unearthly noise at approximately the same hour. This, to a boy who had just finished Sherlock Holmes and "The Hound of the Baskervilles", was a pretty shaking experience. The hair bristled on the back of my neck. I was certain that I had heard the anguished cry of a lost soul floating in torment.

One night, greatly daring, I stayed awake and crept outside about the time the noise was due. It came. Looking upward, I saw a darker shape drifting down the blue-black sky above the boathouse and I knew I had encountered a lost soul. This I duly reported to my elders. They didn't believe in lost souls and made appropriate inquiries. The inquiries provided a simple, factual explanation. The ghosting shape was Ichabod gliding to roost at the kelp line and offering his form of a goodnight to me on the way.

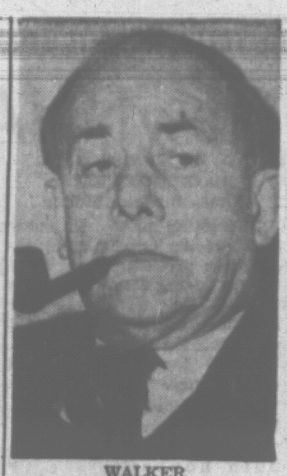

After that I listened for Ichabod in the darkness, bade him goodnight also and went to sleep.

So we've been friends ever since, with me thinking it was the same old heron returning year after year to the shallows.

Now, it turns out, it could have been any of a half a dozen herons—according to the Guiguet statistics on longevity and life expectancy.

Which makes it a little less sad to report that the other day, while beachcombing, I found the remains of a blue heron, awkward-seeming even in death, on the tide line of Woody Bay. That might explain the absence of Ichabod from his favorite fishing ground.

Perhaps it wasn't even Ichabod—and at all events the bird, everlasting, was a misconception on my part. A nice misconception, nevertheless, and one that I hope will be replaced by more Ichabods from the heronries Charlie tells me exist on Chatham Island and where tall trees stand by Island View beach.

WALKER
. . . Home's successor?

His Target: Diplomatic Complacency

LONDON (AP) — Patrick Gordon Walker—an intellectual and a tennis-playing suburbanite—expects to be Britain's foreign secretary by this time next year.

If he gets the post, he intends to war on some of the complacency in diplomacy.

The Labor party must win Britain's next general election if Walker is to succeed the Earl of Home. However, the Laborites are convinced that their long trials in the political wilderness are drawing to an end.

Walker, 56, believes diplomats everywhere need to rethink their basic concepts. It is not good enough, he says, to regard the Western-Soviet rivalry in terms of conditions eight years ago. If you do, you tend to miss the point of "the growing division betwen the world's rich and poor countries which cuts across the old pattern in places."

Or, take the business of Britain's special relationship with the United States. For 12 years Conservative governments have used that phrase like a magic incantation.

In the end, Walker says, this created tension inside the North Atlantic alliance — with the French, West Germans, Italians and others getting to feel like second-class members of NATO.

"We don't want a special or privileged relationship with Washington," Walker told an interviewer. "Naturally we expect a close understanding to exist."

For one thing Labor would steer away from Britain's separate nuclear deterrent — a course directly contrary to Conservative policy.

"We are prepared to accept the United States as the nuclear power in the West with a monopoly of weapons if the American government gives us a proper degree of sharing in the deployment and targeting of such weapons," Walker says.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Britain's Horse-Loving Royalty

LONDON—At random . . . The royal love of horse racing can cause those who live at Buckingham Palace and environs to get things a bit out of perspective.

Reyburn

The Queen comes in for a degree of cattiness every now and then over her devotion to horse racing, which, it's said, is exceeded only by her husband's ardor in killing other animals.

The Queen's face is not normally too animated, but it does come to life when she's watching the races, and it's not unusual to hear the odd snide remark, about that.

Now the Queen Mother, who is as ardent a follower of the geegees as her daughter, has come in for criticism for a gesture she has just made which is generous enough, but not too good from a public relations point of view.

The Big Freeze meant that Britain went without winter racing for seven weeks, which was a hardship for the jockeys who ride the horses "over the sticks" (steeplechasing).

Since their earnings were nil over the period that should have been the height of their season, a fund has been set up for the National Hunt jockeys. The Queen Mother gladly contributed $300.

But it has been rather tartly pointed out in the press that the Big Freeze also threw out of work 141,000 building workers, 4,000 farm workers and 12,00 industrial workers—and there is no record of Royal interest in a fund for their benefit.

Jack Hylton, former dance band leader and now theatrical impresario and TV tycoon, has gone right to the top of the Age-marrying-Youth League by his marriage to New Zealand beauty queen Beverley Prowse.

Among celebrities Earl Beatty and Charles Chaplin had been joint leaders, each taking a bride of 18 when 54—a 36-year gap. Character actor Wilfred Hyde White was runner-up, marrying a girl 29 years his junior when he was 54.

But Hylton, 70, emerges easy leader of the league as he honeymoons in Spain with his Beverley—31 years younger than he is.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

'Some Have It; Some Don't'

It is not always easy to find a reason for a plant failing to grow happily in a garden, especially when another member of the same family appears to be thriving under the same conditions.

Hilda

This peculiarity may seem impossible to casual folk, but we who live with our hobbies find that among the perennial family known as geum is one variety, Prince of Orange, which will endure a stiff wet soil in winter, while the more usually seen Mrs. Bradshaw (red) and Lady Stratheden (yellow) disappear during the second winter.

In some instances plants which have this habit are classed as biennials, and others can be restrained from the tendency by preventing flowers from developing in the first year.

But in the case of the red and the yellow geums we believe the cause to be something inherent in the strain which does not endure winter wetness in heavy soils, yet they will be long-lived in sandy loam.

We have lost two-year-old plants and also divisions of two-year-olds. First-year plants from seed live over the first winter almost 100 per cent.

Other gardeners with predominantly stiff garden soil also report the loss of geums, but state that the variety Prince of Orange lives on year after year. The color is that pleasing warm orange which has a tinge of red and a gleam of yellow. The individual blossoms are double, on long, branching flower stems, and the ultimate stem length is likely to be around 18 inches.

This is a wholly delightful addition to the perennial garden. With the long flowering season of the varieties Mrs. Bradshaw and Lady Stratheden, combined with longevity in a stiff soil, it will make a reliable cut flower if not given too rich a diet.

It is said that fertilizer or fresh manure tends to make soft growth on guems which certainly will not live over winter.

DUNCAN — Funeral services will be held at St. John's Anglican Church Thursday for Miss Elizabeth Agnes Norcross, a member of a pioneer family, who died here Monday. She was in her 91st year.

Born at Liverpool, England, she came to the Cowichan district in 1887 at the age of 15 years. She resided in this district until 1905. From then on until 1922 she lived in Oak Bay and later in Vancouver.

She was a life member of the King's Daughters' Hospital and a former member of the WA to the St. John's Anglican Church.

At present the schedule prevents anyone getting to Nanaimo after 9:20 p.m.

Ald. George Bryce told council it should exert more pressure on the government if it wants a better ferry service during the summer months.

Councils Meeting On Cricket Pitch

By JEAN BAINS

DUNCAN—City council plans to meet members of North Cowichan Council in the near future to discuss a proposal to save the 53-year-old cricket grounds from being sold by the cricket club.

Council will suggest that if North Cowichan council helps maintain some of the parks in Duncan, particularly Pioneer and Kinsmen Parks, the city will use some of the money budgeted for parks to buy the cricket grounds.

The suggestion that North Cowichan share the costs of maintaining some Duncan parks was made by Ald. Robert Mason who noted that 65 per cent of registered players who use Pioneer Park are from North Cowichan.

A parks agreement between the two councils would enable Duncan to raise sufficient funds to buy the historic cricket grounds for playground use, he felt.

The proposed sale of the grounds is the subject of a controversy here, even among some members of the cricket club.

Some members feel that the grounds should be preserved because of historic background.

Some famous cricket players have played on the field.

Trout Are There Ready to Bite

There's a catch to what the provincial fish and game branch has been doing—now it's up to B.C.'s anglers to find it.

A spokesman said today that lakes across the province were stocked with 223,237 trout in the last half of April.

The fish came from the Cultus Lake, Summerland, Nelson and Loon Creek hatcheries.

Measuring from three to 12 inches, the trout were put into 23 lakes.

On Vancouver Island the biggest stocking was 2,665 fish at Quamichan Lake near Duncan.

Other lakes stocked in the area: Durrance 980, Kemp 864, Divers 380, Glen 975, Fullers 1,080, Westwood 2,350, Maple 1,830 and Henderson 900.

Mayor Happy Talks Re-Open

Mayor R. B. Wilson Tuesday welcomed Saanich council's decision to reopen negotiations with the city over Saanich purchase of Elk-Beaver Lake property for park purposes.

Coun. Gregory Cook had suggested "starting a little dicker" with the city over aquisition of the land even though last week Saanich council had vowed to let the matter die.

"I think rather than reject the city's value outright, we should offer them what was once the suggested value of the property and get an outright refusal," he said.

Coun. Leslie Passmore suggested Saanich should be able to get the land for "less than $1,000 per acre."

'FORGIVE AND FORGET'

Willing to forgive and forget, Mr. Passmore did say he thought the city "could have been a little more discreet in their proposal."

This morning the city parks committee tabled the earlier Saanich reply saying council had received and filed the letter from the city giving the figure of about $3,500,000 as the appraised value of the land.

Mayor Wilson said he would be "very pleased," to reopen negotiations.

"The city's attitude is reasonable. We realize that the land could be a long range asset to the whole community," he said.

But he would not comment on the "less than $1,000 per acre" price suggested by Coun. Passmore.

PTA Meet Asks 'Supps'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation wants supplemental examinations for students writing junior matriculation to be reinstated.

The plea to the provincial education department was in a resolution to be presented to the federation's annual convention which opened Tuesday at University of B.C.

The federation also will be asked to press for a provincial board to censor newsstand novels and magazines considered obscene.

Also sought is a royal commission on school financing and a request that B.C. have a full-time education minister.

'Carney' Folk Magicians Change Fair to Funland

By MARGE GILROY

To date over 20,000 people have gone to the fair, Jaycee sponsors say.

Why—what is the attraction?

Is it to see vacuum cleaners, pots and pans, the newest in roofing, rabbits or the floor shows? They are all free.

Yet how many would go if it wasn't for the midway?

The piercing screams, the organ grinder music, the dazzling lights and the barkers cast a spell transforming fairground into a carnival.

ANOTHER WINNIE

One such man is Winston Churchill. He is not the cigar-smoking statesman-author, but a quiet, unassuming man who describes himself as a "has-been" musician.

In 1954 Mr. Churchill became interested in "Dancing Waters," which he now operates, a show which synchronizes fountains of water, colored lights and music.

What is it like to have the same name as such a well-known world figure? Nobody believes it.

During the war Winston says, "I was nearly court martialled once just because of my name."

There were seven Winston Churchills during the Second World War serving in the United Services armed forces. They never met but they kept in touch with a round robin.

On the other side of the midway there is Ralph Meeker who makes running a midway big business.

Ralph's father was a circus painter for the Levett, Brown and Huggins Show, a carnival that travelled the Pacific Northwest in the 20's. At 12 years of age Ralph joined the carnival brigade. He never left.

In 1943 he bought out the Huggins show and has kept on expanding.

REAL BOSS WIFE

Ralph's wife Josephine travels with the show but she stays backstage as business manager. She dispenses everything from apron strings to large rolls of dollar bills.

Operating a midway is big business, a gamble and a challenge. Just to bring the midway to Victoria cost $10,000. Ferry transportation alone from Anacortes to Sidney cost $2,000. Light bulbs for the week will run into hundreds of dollars.

Then there's Jim Rose and his wife Rosie. Jim used to be a bartender and as he says "I used to see people coming into the bar who had more money to spend than I made, so I thought why can't I do that."

He now owns and operates a number of concessions. As for Rosie, she is the gal who ended up marrying the boss.

There are more like Ray Barber who says he was born on the midway and it is the only life he knows.

The work is hard, the hours are long, the competition is tough, but it is a life and a business they understand.

Heads B.C. Dentists

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP)—Dr. O. F. Wright of Vancouver was elected president of the B.C. Dental Association at the annual meeting Tuesday. He succeeds Dr. M. J. T. Dohan of Victoria. Dr. H. G. Pettapiece of Qualicum was named president-elect. Other officers include Dr. C. C. Russell, Victoria.

SURCHARGE CLAIMS HIT $1,000,000

The law firm of Gowling, MacTavish, Osborne and Henderson filed 20 more claims in the Exchequer Court, seeking recovery of surcharges collected by the former Conservative government as part of its austerity program.

The firm filed its first claim last week on behalf of a women's wear chain—Reitman's — seeking the return of $112,000.

The petitions contend that the surcharges were wrongfully imposed and collected under an invalid order-in-council.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere. Advt.

London Lord Mayor to Plant Tree

The Lord Mayor of London will plant the first tree in Victoria centennial square at the end of August.

The civic square committee Monday decided to invite the Lord Mayor to perform the ceremony when he visits City Hall.

By then about a third of the civic precinct will be cleared of buildings and planning for the landscaped park in the centre of the square will be completed.

Committee approved immediate demolition of two garages in the precinct and authorized calling demolition tenders for three more buildings which will become vacant this summer.

THEATRE DELAY?

Possible delay of renovation of the civic theatre until 1965 was noted after committee decided to use only two-thirds of a $350,000 advance borrowing against the T. S. McPherson bequest to the city.

The remaining third will be held in reserve for other beautification projects — possibly Bastion Square or the Cathedral Hill precinct.

This means that almost $167,000 would have to be raised by tax sale lands fund for completing the renovation of the Pantages Theatre, a process that could take up to 20 months, city comptroller-treasurer James Bramley warned.

City planner Roderick Clack said even without financial obstacles, it would be physically impossible to open the theatre before November, 1964.

Committee invited executive of the Festival Theatre Society, which hoped to stage a six-week opening festival in the renovated Pantages by September, 1964, to discuss the situation.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Advt.

20-MILE LIMIT

Council Studies Speed Reduction

Esquimalt council will consider cutting car speeds on Rockheights Avenue.

But it must decide between resident petitioners who want a 20-mile limit—and Police Chief J. K. Smart, who doesn't.

Monday, council decided to think it over, in committee.

Kenneth Klee, 856 Rockheights, spoke to council on behalf, he said, of 95 per cent of the residents of Rockheights Avenue.

DOCKYARD ROUTE

Completon of paving of the street would make it a thoroughfare for employees of Dockyard and Yarrows, he said.

There are two or three children in each house on Rockheights, he said, averaging four to six years old.

"It's impossible to keep them off the street.

"Cars have a tendency to do 35-40 miles an hour down the hill.

In a written report to council, Chief Smart said that reducing the speed limit would not alleviate the situation, and in fact would lead the council's being swamped with such requests.

Police patrol the area during the hazardous peak traffic hours, the report said, and speed limit signs would not help if police patrols do not.

KEEP CHILDREN OFF

Streets are for traffic, the report said, and children should be kept on the sidewalks.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele told council he had rejected a request by Ald. A. W. Toone that he be allowed to address council on reconsideration of Esquimalt's decision to pull out of the Industrial Development Research Commission of Greater Victoria.

Council also:

Confirmed its withdrawal from the Industrial Development Research Board of Greater Victoria;

Recommended that all Greater Victoria municipalities concentrate on the one major Canadian centennial project of improving the Gorge waterway;

Approved a local improvement petition to put concrete curbing on both sides of Agnes Street for its full length.

BRITISH COURT HEARS SPYING DETAILS

Code Details Found Inside Cigarettes

SOUTHEND, England (AP)—Giuseppe Martelli, an Italian nuclear scientist, was accused in court today of being a spy for the Soviet Union.

Martelli, 39, was employed by the European Atomic Energy Community (Euratom) and had been working since last November in Britain's Culham Research Laboratory in Oxfordshire.

He was arrested Apr. 28 upon his return from a trip to Brussels and accused of committing "an act preparatory to the commission of an offence" against the British Official Secrets Act.

At a preliminary hearing, the Crown prosecutor conceded that Martelli was engaged in research at Culham that was not subject to security restrictions. But he declared:

"The case for the Crown here is that this defendant is a spy working for the Russian intelligence service and that he was in possession of information as to how to communicate with that service—and the method to adopt if he should wish to communicate with the Russian intelligence service."

The prosecutor said searches of Martelli's home at Abingdon and his office at the Culham laboratory turned up a packet of cigarettes in which seven had ben hollowed out. Inside each were two small slips of paper bearing a series of numbers which a detective concluded were for use in coding messages.

Another find, the prosecutor said, was a diary containing the London address of Nicolai Kerpekov, a Soviet intelligence officer.

He said the diary also contained a password system to be used in meeting with a Soviet intelligence operative.

A pair of Martelli's shoes, the prosecutor continued, had hollowed-out heels.

Another diary offered in evidence had the name "Agrefenni" written in it. The prosecutor alleged that this was the name of the third secretary of the Soviet embassy in Brussels in 1962.

Martelli, six feet, one inch tall and darkly handsome was born in Pisa and studied for his doctorate in physics at the University of Naples. From 1946 to 1949 he was engaged in research at the University of Rome. He became a professor there in 1950 and held the post until 1958, when he became a professor in physics at the University of Birmingham, England.

He went to work for Euratom April 1, 1962, and at Culham had been doing research into the theory of controlled nuclear fusion for the development of power.

LOS ANGELES—In 35 years as a baseball scout, Fred Hofmann, through no fault of his own, has lost more good players than Las Vegas.

"One more stickout," said Dutch Hofmann, now far west scout supervisor for the Baltimore Orioles, "and I'll cut my throat if I have a Wilkinson blade."

BOOG POWELL

Hofmann, the New York Yankees' catcher of the early 1920's, was moaning about losing Charley (Cap) Peterson to the San Francisco Giants. It quickly developed, however, that his despondency dates back to the loss of Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra and Mickie Mantle, and no wonder.

"Name another scout who lost three players like DiMaggio, Berra and Mantle," he said. "You can't, but if you could you'd find him a sure candidate for hari kari.

"I was managing the Missions, the second club in San Francisco in 1932, when DiMaggio, then a high school shortstop, worked out. The Missions signed four youngsters you no doubt will recall, Eddie Joost, Babe Dahlgren, Walt Judnich and Johnny Babich.

"The offers were $125 a month. I offered DiMaggio $125 a month. He demanded $150. But the office said no, so Vince DiMaggio, playing with the San Francisco Seals in the same park, took Joe to that club. So, for $25 a month, I missed signing Joe DiMaggio, Good old days, eh?

"I was with the old Browns in St. Louis in 1942, when the Cardinals gave Joe Garagiola $600 to sign. I liked Berra, also a catcher, even better and was close to him, but Bill DeWitt, then running the front office there, wouldn't go higher than $500. Yogi wanted to play so badly he could taste it, but had grown up on The Hill in St. Louis with Garagiola.

"'Joe got $600,' he kept insisting. 'I gota have $600.'

"DeWitt finally went to $550, but no dice. And the first thing I knew, Johnny Schulte, then coaching the Yankees and who lived in St. Louis, had taken Berra to that club.

"Mantle and another kid came to the then Sportsmen's Park in June of 1949 for a tryout. DeWitt told me to look at them and I took them to the clubhouse. The minute I saw Mantle, then 17, undressed, I wanted to sign him. Those arms and shoulders and a neck as big as his head made my eyes pop.

Peterson Certain To Be Big Player

"But as the youngsters were getting into their uniforms, it started to rain pitchforks. After a long wait, I asked them if they could come back the next day. They did, but it rained all that morning and when it stopped in time for the game the umpires wouldn't let me work out anybody on any part of the field.

"Mantle had to go back to Commerce, Okla. It was the last I saw of him until he popped up in a Yankee uniform.

"Peterson, now 20 and an infielder with Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League, can't miss being a big player. Last season in his first full season in organized ball, he was the unanimous choice as the Texas League's most valuable player.

"Our Pacific Coast League scout, Don McShane, was very high on Peterson while he was in high school in Tacoma. I was sent up to look at the boy and meet his parents. When the boy and his dad were ready to sign, the Orioles definitely were in the picture for big money, but as they were negotiating for the then phenomenal Danny Murphy, we were told to hold off on Peterson.

"When the Cubs signed Murphy, we were given the OK on Peterson, but when we called on the family we found we were several hours late. The boy had signed with the Giants.

"If the Orioles hadn't signed John Powell, I'd really have slashed my wrists when we lost Peterson," concluded Freddie Hofmann. "Jim McLaughlin and Jim Russo signed Powell, but I had done my part knowing the Powells and seeing Boog in high school and on sandlots for two years. I knew then that this big kid should make it big.

"As Izaak Walton once said, you can't land 'em all."

Your ER Average Is Just Fine, Ray

Chisox Hurler Spins Fourth Straight Gem

By UP International

Ray Herbert wants to rewrite baseball's official scoring rules but first he may rewrite the American League's pitching records.

The 33-year-old Chicago White Sox' right-hander insists some of the rules governing pitchers' earned run averages "don't make sense", and adds, "my earned run average is my bread and butter."

In the meantime, however, he's taken the matter into his own hands with a string of four consecutive shutouts and a 1.80 ERA that makes him the pitching sensation of the year. He needs just one more shutout to equal the major league mark of five in a row set by Doc White of the White Sox in 1904. His current string is the longest run of consecutive shutout innings in the major leagues since 1950.

The curve-and-control artist —he's yielded only eight walks while striking out 28 batters in 50 innings—beat the Detroit Tigers, 3-0, Tuesday night enabling the White Sox to retain their one-game first-place lead. He's allowed a total of 15 hits in scoring consecutive shutouts over the Tigers, New York Yankees, Washington Senators and Baltimore Orioles. His first victory of the season—on April 17 — was a three-hit shutout over Kansas City.

Herbert has been hit pretty hard in other starts but even so has allowed only 34 hits and 10 earned runs this year. A native of Detroit, Mich., Herbert was a sub-.500 pitcher for nine years before he blossomed out with a 20-9 record in 1962.

LANDIS HELPED

Jim Landis provided Herbert and the White Sox with all the runs they needed with a lead-off homer in the first inning and a two-run single in the fifth. The unlucky loser was Jim Bunning, who allowed three hits and struck out eight but suffered his fourth defeat.

The Yankees shaded Minnesota Twins, 2-1, the Athletics topped Cleveland Indians, 5-2, and the Orioles beat the senators, 6-1, in other AL games.

In the National League that new contract looks mighty good to Milwaukee manager Bobby Bragan, but old Warren Spahn looks even better to him.

Bragan was signed through the 1964 season shortly before Tuesday's game with St. Louis Cardinals and what should have been a festive occasion nearly turned into a nightmare.

SPAHN REACTED

Stan (The Man) Musial threw a damper on the proceedings with a wicked second inning liner that struck Spahn in the pit of the stomach and knocked him to the ground.

Acting instinctively, the 42-year-old Milwaukee southpaw groped for the ball, came up with it and threw out Musial but then fell back to the ground.

The game was delayed for several minutes before Spahn finally got up and went on to pitch the Braves to a 4-3 victory that snapped their three-game losing streak.

Spahn was touched for 11 hits, including a homer by Julian Javier, but he was in front from the third inning on and personally singled home what proved to be the winning run in the seventh off loser Bob Gibson.

The victory was Spahn's fifth in seven decisions and put him well ahead of the timetable he has set for himself for his 13th 20-game season.

San Francisco Giants lengthened their National League lead to 1½ games with a 3-1 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates, Houston Colts shaded New York Mets, 4-3, for their sixth straight, Philadelphia Phillies downed Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-1, and Chicago Cubs ended a four-game losing streak with a 2-1 win over Cincinnati Reds.

FRUSTRATION

Pounding home plate in angry frustration after striking out in American League game is Baltimore slugger Jim Gentile. However, big Jim had happier moment at Washington Tuesday night, hitting sixth home run of season as Orioles whipped Senators 6-1.

Help is on the way for Victoria Shamrocks, who make their next Inter-City Lacrosse League start at New Westminster Thursday night.

Barry Ashbee, delayed by his chores with Hershey in the American Hockey League playoffs, is finally headed west. Barry boarded a TCA jet for Vancouver this morning and is expected to arrive in Victoria tonight. The Ontario import will join the 'Rocks for Thursday's game.

Just how big a boost six-foot, one-inch Barry will give the Shamrock defence is a question. Most reports on his activities in the Ontario League last season inidcate he is a rugged and capable boxla battler. A few suggest the 24-year-old 185-pounder is just an average lacrosse performer.

"I just hope he's as good as some people say he is," commented Don, who chased the Rocks through an outdoor workout Tuesday night at Stevenson Park. "But we'll have to wait and see."

SHOWERS RETURNING

Ashbee, cheerfully optimistic after the Rocks had played a great game although losing an 11-9 heartbreaker at Vancouver, May 7, and disappointed when the Irish came apart at the seams the following night at Memorial Arena and took a 14-7 beating from Vancouver, had other bright news Tuesday night.

Defenceman Jack Showers, who topped a term at the University of B.C. with a teaching stint in Quesnel, is expected to rejoin the club next week.

Sohen Gill, an acquisition from Burnaby, is apparently recovered from a back injury suffered in Victoria's opening game and ready for action. And team captain Ed Kowalyk, who had the tip of a finger splintered May 4 at Nanaimo, plans to step back into the lineup next Wednesday—if he can obtain a suitable protective device for the injured finger.

Shamrocks, who have won one and lost three games, play their next home game against Nanaimo next Wednesday.

IKE MACKAY

No-Hitter Highlights Pony Play

Rotary made no runs, no hits and no errors in losing a Carnarvon Pony League game 2-0 to Jokers.

MacKay, never better, struck out 11 in the abbreviated five-inning contest called after five innings because of darkness.

The classic pitching effort was the second no-hitter of the season. Brian Lucas of Porters threw the first but lost 2-1 to Estevan.

Filipino Fighter Dies After Bout

Sabino (Rocky) Mangubat, a Filipino bantamweight boxer, died in hospital Wednesday, three days after being knocked out. It was the fourth boxing fatality in the Philippines in a year.

Mangubat was knocked out by Johnny Lozaga Sunday night in the eighth round at Angeles in Pampanga province north of Manila. He was brought to the hospital unconscious, revived somewhat Monday, but lapsed back into unconsciousness Tuesday.

A hospital spokesman said that, pending an autopsy, the cause of death apparently was "some sort of head injury."

Meanwhile, at Springfield, Ill., a bill to ban professional boxing in Illinois was endorsed Tuesday by the state Senate licence committee. The 7-to-3 vote advanced the bill to the Senate floor for final action. A similar bill is at passage stage in the Illinois House.

French Team Hands Nats Third Defeat

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—Lethbridge Nationals suffered their third straight defeat in the preliminary rounds of the world basketball championships Tuesday night when France outclassed the Canadians 79-57.

Canada was defeated 58-45 by the Soviet Union in the opening round Sunday and suffered its second loss Monday night when Uruguay scored a 66-56 win over the Nationals.

Canada's poor showing left the team out of the running in the finals which begin Thursday.

In other games Tuesday night, the Soviet Union defeated Uruguay 94-75 to hold a perfect record. Mexico defeated Argentina 84-82, the United States, also unbeaten, defeated Italy 87-77 and Yugoslavia edged Puerto Rico 83-78.

Form 'Atrocious' But Big Canadian Runs Rapid Miles

HONOLULU (UPI)—Canadians may not know it but the University of Hawaii may be grooming the Dominion's first sub-four-minute miler in Al Birtles.

The gangling 6-5, 200-pound senior from Vancouver, B.C. has come a long way since he began running competitively two years ago.

Before that he was prominently known as a basketball player, good enough in fact to make the 1960 Canadian Olympic basketball team.

His best official mile to date is a 4:05.3 which he ran last year in Toronto. But this year, against almost no competition, Birtles has forced himself a nifty 4:01.5 effort.

In an exhibition 880-yard run Monday, Birtles broke the Hawaiian AAU record with a 1:51.8 clocking in finishing second to world record holder Peter Snell of New Zealand.

"Birtles is very serious about running," Ome said recently, "and he could be a surprise man for Canada in the 1964 Olympic Games."

Former English distance runner Stan Hattie, who has been coaching Birtles, is equally enthused about the progress made by the quiet sandy-haired Canadian.

"If you take a look at the graph of Birtles for the mile, you can see by the steady drop that he not only can run a four-minute mile but could go lower. The sky's the limit," Hattie says.

RUNNING TWO YEARS

Birtles came to Hawaii three years ago on a basketball scholarship and took up running only two years ago. But since then he has cut his time for the mile by better than a full minute.

His running form has been described as "atrocious" by some track observers. He runs with his arms close to his sides and sways. But Ome quickly points out that "it's not the form that counts but the time."

Sooke Earns Softball Tie

Sooke rallied in the final inning to force a stalemate with McLarens, Tuesday night, in a senior men's softball league game at Heywood Avenue Park.

Sooke scored twice in the bottom of the seventh inning to even the score at 4-4. The game was then called because of failing light.

LENNON HIT 82 HOMERS . . . . . JOSH GIBSON SUPERB SWINGER

Old Negro Players Greatest, Says Suitcase

By DICK MITTMAN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (NEA)—As the charter bus carrying the Indianapolis Indians chugged along busy U.S. 40 Harry (Suitcase) Simpson talked of other bus rides and other days when he was a recruit of the Negro Leagues.

"It was a tough life," he said. "Sometimes you'd play in five cities in five nights and never see a bed. We thought nothing of playing three games in the same day. A lot of times on holidays we'd play a double-header at the Polo Grounds in the afternoon, then drive 60 or 70 miles to some little town in New York and play that night. We played every day.

"We never had a trainer. You carried some liniment and rubbed it on whetever you hurt.

Suitcase has high respect for the old-timers of the Negro Leagues who never had a chance to play in the majors.

"Josh Gibson was the greatest hitter I ever saw," Simpson asserted. "Ted Williams? Stan Musial? They are nothing compared to old Josh. He was dying when I saw him. That last year he couldn't even stoop behind the plate, but man, he could still swing.

"Buck Lennon played first base on the same team with Josh. You know the year Babe Ruth hit 60 home runs, Lennon hit 82. He was a lot like Lou Gehrig. Gehrig was great, but always in the shadow of Ruth.

"I played against Satchel Paige and he wasn't the fastest pitcher in our league. Maybe he had better control, but he wasn't the fastest.

"Remember Ray Dandridge? He won the American Association batting crown with Minneapolis when he was 50 years old. Think what these fellows could have done if they'd had the chance when they were in their prime.

"I bet I could take 25 of our best and finish in the first division in either major league."

Simpson said the Negro stars earned as much as $2,000 a month during the summer, then would play in Mexico or South America for as little as $50 a month. Many of them, like Gibson, contracted fatal diseases while earning eating money south of the border.

Simpson's nickname, Suitcase, came after his Negro league days and didn't refer to his travels.

"A sports writer asked me if I had a nickname. When I said no, he said, 'I think I'll call you Suitcase after a comic strip character.' The next day there was a cartoon in the paper of me lying across the bed and the feet were the full length of the bed.

"At first I didn't like the name. Whenever anybody called me it, they just naturally looked at my feet. Now I'm used to it.

"When I'm introduced as Harry Simpson, it doesn't mean anything.

"But when I'm introduced as Suitcase, people say, 'Oh, the big league ballplayer!'"

TRAP TITLES ON LINE AT GUN CLUB SUNDAY

On tap is the annual Vancouver Island trap championships, which are expected to again draw a flock of out-of-town trigger aces.

Practice shooting gets under way at 9 a.m. and competition starts at 10.

Contestants will be firing in four classes in the first event—100 singles targets at 16 yards. Next on the list is the doubles—25 pairs of targets, for A, B and C classes.

Also scheduled is a handicap event—100 targets at 19 to 27 yards. A Calcutta sweepstakes will be held on the handicap.

AT SPEEDWAY SATURDAY

Hold Your Hat, Modifieds Set!

Hold on to your hats—here come the modifieds! The modified hard-tops—little cars with big accelerators — will be chewing up the asphalt oval at Western Speedway Saturday.

The modified race will be the second of four for the fast cars on the holiday weekend. Friday night they will be in Nanaimo, and they leave after the Victoria race for a two-day event in Vancouver.

What is a modified? Well — basically it's an engine with a roof on top. The rule book says the mill can't be any larger than 330 cu. in., but there the restrictions end. A mechanic can put all the "go-fast" equipment he wants—and he usually does.

The result is a 2,000-pound, 7,500 rpm screamer that can run the speedway circle at better than 18 seconds.

TOP YANKS COMING

Twenty-five of these cars are scheduled to appear, including Bob Gregg from Portland and Bill Crow from Boise, along with cars from Edmonton and Salt Lake City.

Ray Pottinger will head a contingent from Nanaimo, and Billy Foster in a new car will be the man to watch from Victoria.

The Canadian American Modified Racing Association, which has sanctioned this event, was formed just last winter in an attempt to consolidate the modified rules and set up a schedule of races.

The inaugural circuit organized by CAMRA looks to be a dilly.

Time trials start at 7:30 p.m. and first heat at 8 on Saturday night.

DAY OF DECISION

Will League Expand Or Shrink?

SEATTLE (AP) — Western Hockey League directors expected to learn in a hurry today whether their circuit, which now stretches from Edmonton to Los Angeles, is shrinkproof or expandable.

"All I know," said president Al Leader on the eve of the annual league meeting "is what I've been reading and hearing. The agenda merely calls for discussion of normal league problems."

What Leader has been reading and hearing in advance of the three-day meeting includes reports that:

Calgary, unhappy with its working agreement with the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, wants to withdraw for a year;

As Calgary goes, so goes Edmonton. This would leave the WHL a six-team circuit.

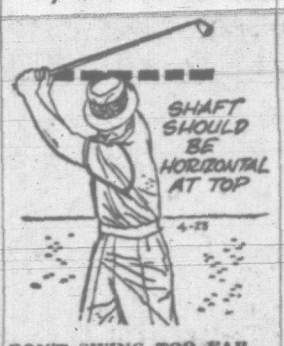

Spokane may transfer its franchise to Denver;

The rule requiring each team to carry at least one rookie may be scrapped;

Three California cities—Long Beach, San Diego and Oakland - have been mentioned as franchise possibilities.

GOLF SCHOOL

By SAM SNEAD

DON'T SWING TOO FAR

The golfer in today's illustration is swinging a long iron, and is nearing the top of his backswing. The dotted line indicates the position the shaft should be in when he completes his backswing.

Those who swing farther than this, so that the shaft dips below the horizontal, are courting inconsistency. The reason is that they usually lose control of the clubhead and have difficulty in bringing it back down to the ball in a consistently accurate arc.

Football Moguls Set Up Formula For Foggy Days

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian Football League general managers Tuesday decided on a formula to deal with Grey Cup games postponed by weather or any other eventually League commissioner G. Sydney Halter announced at the end of two days of closed meetings the formula is designed to protect the public.

Under it the public returning the next day to see the end of a postponed game is guaranteed at least 20 minutes of play instead of the nine minutes and 50 seconds Toronto fans got in the fog-bound Grey Cup game between Winnipeg and Hamilton last year.

The nine general managers also recommended the appointment of a "revenue producer" to continue efforts to have CFL games viewed on United States television and asked for the plugging of a loophole in league regulations under which certain import players are classified as Canadians.

RELEASE DETAILS

The postponement formula:

If postponement is forced before a game starts it will be played the next day;

If it is forced during the first three quarters it will be continued the following day with the score, field position and down exactly the same as when the game left off;

If the game is halted in the last quarter the league commissioner will have the choice of declaring the game ended or ordering its continuation the following day at which time two 10-minute halves will be played with a kickoff at the beginning of each half. The score will be carried on from the previous half.

Halter said he would declare a game ended if one team had what would appear to be an insurmountable lead, say 24 points.

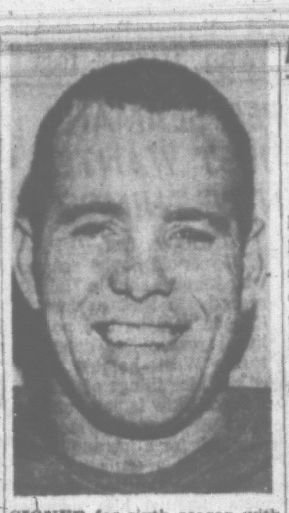

DECIDES LEAGUE GAMES

The formula applies only to the Grey Cup—there was no discussion of a formula for postponed league games which will continue to be subject to the ruling of the commissioner.

The general managers voted to recommend to the CFL executive the creation of what B.C. Lions' Herb Capozzi called a "revenue producer" or "business development officer."

He said a committee will define the new appointee's exact duties. The officer would meet advertisers now supporting Canadian football, seek new ones, and take over the clubs' attempts to have league games broadcast on American TV—a move the clubs feel would increase the league's revenue and be an assistance to recruitment of players in the U.S.

The general managers asked Halter to draw up regulations for approval that would close a loophole under which players born in Canada but who have lived most of their lives in the U.S. are classified as Canadians. As such they do not come under restrictions limiting teams to 15 imports each, although they often receive the same pay as imports.

Researchers Isolate Horse-Cough Virus

CHICAGO (AP) — Research teams in Miami, Fla., and Kentucky have isolated a virus that apparently is responsible for an epidemic of coughing and fever among race horses in the United States, an official of the Harness Racing Institute said Tuesday.

Stan Bergstein, institute director, said the Miami team has reported that the virus isolated from infected horses at Gulfstream Park is related to type-A influenza virus.

The Kentucky team has isolated a virus apparently responsible for the outbreaks at Buffalo Raceway in Hamburg, N.Y., Bergstein said.

He said if further tests reveal the two isolated viruses are similar the way will be clear to develop a vaccine to prevent future outbreaks.

The viral cough does not affect humans and is not fatal to horses, said Bergstein, but it keeps horses on the sidelines for two weeks or more.

Tracks in Delaware, Cleveland and Chicago have closed because of the attacks, Bergstein said.

FREE TICKETS FOR LIZ, BURTON

Stars in Soccer Storm

LONDON (AP)—Film stars Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton became involved in a soccer storm Tuesday—all because they have been invited to the English Cup final May 29.

Sidney Needham, chairman of Leicester City, started it.

He sent the two stars complimentary tickets to the final between Leicester City and Manchester United at London's Wembley Stadium.

The game is the showpiece of the English season and traditionally is a 100,000 sell-out months before being played.

Thousands of fans who have followed the finalists throughout the season cannot get tickets.

It read: "I feel I must protest most strongly against the board's decision to offer complimentary tickets to Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor.

"I wonder if we are not reaching the stage where the VIP seats will be filled by glamorous stars and the football match becomes incidental."

An official of the Leicester club said: "Every year the chairman of each cup final team invites a few personal friends. The invitations to Miss Taylor and Mr. Burton do not affect the allocation of tickets to the supporters."

Canada Now Last 'Holdout' On Atlantic Air Fare Hike

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada, at least for the time being, is the cheapest place in North America from which to catch a scheduled flight across the Atlantic.

The United States government beat a strategic retreat Tuesday from its position as one of two staunch opponents to a higher transatlantic air fare, leaving Canada as the last holdout.

All other countries involved had previously approved the suggestion by the International Air Transport Association that the discount on return tickets be cut to five per cent from 10.

The higher rate was to have gone into effect April 1, but instead a battle between the British ministry of aviation and the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board developed.

Until Tuesday, the CAB ordered the two U.S. transatlantic carriers, Pan-American and Trans-World, to keep flying at the old low rate. The British ministry told them that if they did, they would be subject to having their planes detained in the U.K.

Canada's Air Transport Board rejected the new fares also, but Canada is protected by its bilateral agreements with European carriers which provide that where fares are in dispute, the old rates automatically stay in force until the dispute is regulated.

The U.S. has no such agreements, and the CAB actually has no authority to regulate international air fares as Canada's ATB has.

Legislation to give the CAB this power is being prepared. It would put the CAB in a stronger bargaining position.

The economy class round-trip jet fare from a Canadian point to Europe is about $28 cheaper than the fare from an equivalent U.S. point.

IATA, welcoming the U.S. decision not to dispute the higher fares at least for the time being, expressed worry about the "two-fare structure" created by Canada's position, and the possibility that some traffic would be diverted through Canada from the U.S.

An emergency policy meeting of IATA, the 94-member organization of the free world's air lines, has been called for Thursday in Bermuda to discuss the fares.

IATA can set suggested fares —and the vote has to be unanimous on them—but in most countries, governments also have power to regulate fares. In 18 years, about 97 per cent of the IATA-recommended fares have been accepted unmodified.

Canada's ATB said it is against the higher fares because Canadian airlines are making money already on transatlantic flights, and 80 per cent of their business comes from Canadians. To set a higher fare would be penalizing Canadians and subsidizing less profitable European lines.

Air Fare Backdown Angers U.S. Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Influential senators, angered by the United States backdown on a fare increase on transatlantic air routes, called on government officials today for a public airing of the international dispute.

In advance of an afternoon hearing of the Senate commerce committee, its chairman, Washington State Democrat Warren G. Magnuson, protested that the U.S. had capitulated without a fight.

He estimated a five-per-cent increase in roundtrip economy class fares will cost Americans travelling to Europe about $15,000,000 a year.

A passenger will pay an extra $27 for his New York-London economy (tourist) roundtrip ticket, according to state department officials. His fare will go up to $513 from $486.

The increase, voted last fall by the International Air Transport Association, actually is a reduction in the discount allowed for return tickets—five per cent instead of 10 per cent.

CHANGED ITS MIND

The change went into effect Saturday in Europe, but until Tuesday the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board had refused to permit American airlines to adopt the higher fares.

It announced then through an exchange of letters between CAB Chairman Alan S. Boyd and State Secretary Dean Rusk that it was yielding to diplomatic pressure.

Rusk had suggested that in the absence of CAB authority to regulate international air route fares, Pan American World Airways and Trans-World Airlines should be permitted to file the increased fares.

But Pan American said it planned to continue present rates for several days "until the situation clarifies." Trans-World also seemed in no hurry to act.

The fare controversy has its roots in a basic difference between European and North American carriers in their approach to the business.

Western European governments have heavy financial stakes in the airlines which represent their countries internationally. The airlines are subsidized heavily in most cases and the various governments retain either complete or partial control over policy.

A financial pinch has been felt by all international airlines with the advent of jet travel in the last four years. The United States - Canadian approach to the problem of overcoming operational losses is to develop a mass market, making air travel cheaper and more popular and filling up the excess capacity which has resulted from over expansion of jet-plane fleets.

European governments have not been sold on this mass-market philosophy. Following tradition, they see higher fares as the answer to deficits.

MORE EFFICIENT

The commercially - administered U.S. carriers also appear to operate more efficiently than European airlines. The U.S. argues that international fares should be geared to the costs of the more efficient carriers rather than the least efficient.

RED SEAMAN 'JUST WANTED NICE THINGS'

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI)—A 27-year-old Soviet seaman who jumped ship in Halifax recently to seek asylum in Canada said he had no political reason for defecting to the West—he just wanted the nice things of life.

Petro Ilkiw is now settling down in Windsor where he will look for a job and begin to become a Canadian.

Life Memberships For Naturalists

Honorary life memberships were awarded three long-time members of the Victoria Natural History Society at a meeting Tuesday night.

Freeman King, a past president of the society and leader of its junior branch; Albert Davidson, editor of the Victoria Naturalist for 10 years, and George Winkler, 92, who is an original member, received the awards in the Douglas Building cafeteria.

Other officers elected were: Edith Valens, secretary; J. L. Rimmington, treasurer; Freeman King and Allen Poynter, publicity and programs, and W. D. Reith and Dr. Clifford Carl, editors.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eight youths were sentenced here Tuesday to two years probation which included midnight curfews after they pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance at a house party and sending a number of guests to hospital.

Another Sugar Price Boost Seen

Price of sugar could be over $1.70 for a 10-pound bag by the weekend, Victoria retailers indicated today after learning of another 50 cents per hundred jump on the wholesale price at Vancouver Tuesday.

The latest increase has pushed the wholesale price up from $13.15 a hundred early last week to $14.90 today.

Price of sugar is now more than double what it was last October before the effects of world shortages caused by European beet crop and Cuban cane crop failures.

There has not been much indication of sugar "hoarding" in Victoria, retailers say, although a few people have obviously been buying more than there normal requirements.

Sales of sugar in larger quantities than the usual five or 10-pound bags have increased a little which is not normal outside of the canning season, one store official said.

Most people do.

They count on advertising in print to give them the information they want on products that interest them—information on features . . . designs . . . and prices, for example.

People not only read about products and services, they show ads to their family and friends; they clip coupons for information and samples; they tear out ads to take along when they go shopping.

People read an ad because they want to (it's never forced on them). They can even check back later; the message is still there.

When you add it all up, print advertising—the kind you read in the pages of this newspaper—makes sense. And because it measures up to the buying habits of consumers, print makes sales.

Most people read and then buy. Don't you?

All Those Beds And No Nurses!

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolitan Toronto has a new $6,000,000 hospital ready to receive 808 patients but can't open its doors for lack of a qualified nursing staff, Metro Chairman William Allen said Tuesday.

"Metro government has been unable to recruit a nursing staff" to open the just-completed municipal Riverdale Hospital for convalescent and chronically ill patients, Mr. Allen told a Metro executive committee meeting.

Metro Welfare Commissioner Robert J. Smith and Personnel Director George Noble are in England trying to hire 135 employees, including nursing supervisors, head nurses, general-duty nurses, nursing assistants and orderlies.

But Mr. Allen said that even if 135 are found, only 200 of the 808 beds would be available to patients. Metro had been unable to recruit anywhere near the required staff to open even 25 per cent of the hospital.

One wing of the hospital was scheduled to open last December but this was postponed to May 1. The latest suggested date is July 1.

Follow the Pigeons The Only Way to Fly

From Chilliwack to Victoria in less than two hours is good time, even for pigeons, and for old birds particularly.

One hour, 47 minutes, 21 seconds was the best time set Sunday in Capital City Racing Pigeon Club's second "old bird" race in a current series.

Eighteen lofts were shipped to the mainland city 82 miles away, and 17 reported back under clear skies with light winds. A total 195 birds took part in the race.

This week the race will be from Hope, a flying distance of 110 miles.

Charlie Woolley, 1:47:21; George Thomas, 1:47:32; Bernard Woolley, 1:47:37; James Blackstock, 1:48:07; Harvey Roth, 1:48:33; Doug Wood, 1:48:37; Ray Matthews, 1:48:28; Ernie Eckdahl, 1:50:09; Bert Owens, 1:50:13; John Arnaud, 1:50:26; Geert Norder, 1:50:41; Dave Hill, 1:52:28; Dick Roe, 1:54:07; Charlie Lennin, 1:55:52; Mike Polz, 2:00:42; Dick Nellestyn, 2:00:45; Pasquale De Cicco, 2:08:19.

Ferries Plan More Passengers Each Crossing

Government ferries Sidney and Tsawwassen will be able to carry 20 per cent more passengers this summer than they could last year.

Refitted with additional life-saving gear, the two ferries will join their newer sisters, Queens of Victoria, Saanich, Vancouver and Esquimalt as 1,000-passenger ships, when summer service starts Friday.

Ferry manager Monty Aldous said the first two ferries built for the Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay service previously were limited to 800 passengers.

Hourly service (7 a.m. to 10 p.m.) starts on that run Friday.

Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay vessels will run every hour and 20 minutes. The new Gulf Islands service starts July 1 when the new Queen of the Islands will be in operation.

The United Kingdom's gross national product increased to £22,291,000,000 from £11,136,000,000 between 1940 and 1950.

COLLEGE EXAM RESULTS OUT NEXT WEEK

Final marks of Victoria College students will be released May 23, it was learned today.

The marks were approved at a meeting of the college council Monday night. They now will go before the UBC Senate at a meeting May 22.

The marks are those earned by students who wrote final exams between April 16 and May 2 at the college.

ASK CONGRESS FIRST

U.S. May Resume Hungary Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department thinks the time may be right for resuming full diplomatic relations with Communist Hungary and is sounding out key members of Congress to see if they agree.

An informal memorandum is being circulated among members of the Senate foreign relations committee and the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee. It contends the Hungarian government has been relaxing its oppressive rule.

Among the recent developments cited: A March 21 amnesty that the department estimates freed 3,000 to 4,000 people and efforts by the Kadar government to work out "some sort of accommodation" with the Roman Catholic Church.

The United States has declined to send a top - ranking diplomat to Budapest since the 1956 fighting which crushed an uprising by the Hungarian people and put Premier Janos Kadar in power.

Legally, congressional sanction is not required to restore full diplomatic relations with Hungary. However, the state department would be reluctant to take the step if it felt a storm of protest would erupt on Capitol Hill.

CHEVROLET TRUCKS

WORK HARDER...LAST LONGER...COST LESS!

C. A. Auclair Ltée
Lac St. Charles, Quebec.

General Motors Products
of Canada, Limited,
Oshawa, Ontario.

Dear Sirs:

Back in the early '40's when we entered the haulage business, we used Chevrolet trucks. We are still using Chevrolets and at this time have one '51, two '52's, one '61, and one '62 in operation.

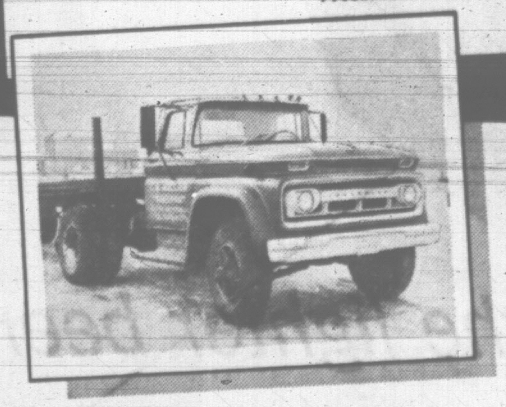

Our '62 is a C-80 tractor, equipped with the 409 V8 engine, 5-speed transmission and 2-speed rear axle, which we use to haul cement products on short city and suburban runs. It is perfect for this operation. In low range there is plenty of power to take the steepest grades, even when we are loaded to our maximum of 51,000 pounds. There is plenty of speed as well, and so we can take advantage of the new expressways around Quebec.

Our '61 has proved to be extremely reliable despite some very hard use.

We are more than pleased with our Chevrolet trucks, for they are built to do a job and do it well.

Yours truly

C. A. Auclair
President

"Power and performance are excellent."

THE LAHAVE CREAMERY CO. LIMITED
MANUFACTURERS OF LAHAVE BRAND BUTTER AND ICE CREAM
BRIDGEWATER, N.S.

General Motors Products
of Canada, Limited,
Oshawa, Ontario.

Dear Sirs:

For our wholesale deliveries of butter and ice cream throughout south-western Nova Scotia we are using two Chevrolet T-60 Tilt Cab Trucks. They are averaging upwards of 50,000 miles a year on winding, hilly roads and drivers report that power and performance with the Chevrolet power train are excellent. They are also very pleased with the handling and riding qualities of these Chevrolet Tilt Cabs.

We plan to keep these units on the road for at least five years and from past experience know that they will perform dependably and economically for that length of time.

Yours very truly,

THE LAHAVE CREAMERY COMPANY LIMITED

R. E. Gillingham,
Secretary-Treasurer.

"Low operating costs are making the difference between profit and loss."

Transport Frontenac Ltée
QUEBEC.

General Motors Products of Canada, Limited
Oshawa, Ontario.

Dear Sirs:

This company operates a fleet of 24 Chevrolet trucks, hauling mail and baggage on a contract basis for the Post Office.

Our larger units haul from Quebec City to Forestville, Montreal and St. Prospere and make the return trip the same night. Their schedule is extremely tight and breakdowns are no excuse for lateness. Our 11 panel trucks pick up mail at boxes throughout Quebec 4 times a day, a total of 160 stops a day each. On each run, the maximum over-time permissible is 5 minutes.

To keep these demanding schedules we need extra reliable trucks and that is why we have chosen Chevrolets. From past experience, we know they can do the kind of job we want.

Maintenance costs are reasonable and despite the high mileages and hard use, we can keep our trucks on the road for 4 years. The low operational and maintenance costs for these Chevrolet trucks are making the difference between profit and loss on this difficult operation.

Yours truly

Geo. E. Lachance
President.

"Chevrolet Trucks are 100% when it comes to economy and dependability."

W. C. BROWNRIDGE
STREETSVILLE - ONTARIO

General Motors Products of Canada, Limited
Oshawa, Ontario.

Dear Sirs:

In our business we are on 24-hour a day call and so we need trucks we can depend on. That's why we buy Chevrolets. From experience we know that they will really stand up. They will go where and when we want them to, and that can mean concession roads or unpaved roads anywhere within a 15 mile radius of Streetsville, at any time of the day or night.

We traded our '58 Chevrolet pickup with over 61,000 miles on it, and in all that time, it required only routine maintenance. We now have '59 and '61 Chevrolet panels and a '62 Chevrolet pickup with the 262 cu. in. Six and Custom Cab. It rides and handles extremely well and can carry a good size load too.

As far as we are concerned, Chevrolet trucks are 100% when it comes to economy and dependability.

Yours truly.

W. C. Brownridge
President.

Anthrax Quarantine Placed on Dairy Herd

VANCOUVER (CP)—A dairy herd of 107 cows was quarantined on a farm in nearby Richmond Tuesday following discovery of anthrax in one of the animals.

The remainder of Zelweger's herd, none of which has developed the disease, was vaccinated.

A federal health department spokesman said anthrax is rare in Canada. It is infectious by direct contact with a diseased animal.

He stressed there is no cause for alarm in the case at Richmond, which appears to be isolated.

The Second World War cost the Soviet Union $350,000,000,000 and left more than 25,000,000 Russians homeless.

. . . BEFORE ANYONE KNOWS'

Old Home to Tumble Soon Unless Angel Intercedes

By ARTHUR MAYSE

Unless some free-spending philanthropist moves to the rescue, the Tolmie house on Lovat Avenue must soon tumble in a cloud of dust from century-old mortar.

Built by a pioneer Hudson's Bay Company factor-physician in 1859, and home of the British Columbia premier who was Dr. William Fraser Tolmie's son, the landmark residence is to be wrecked on June 1.

Interested groups and individuals have tried at various times to save the staunch old farmhouse.

For Expansion

But all attempts have failed, and present owner A. L. Miller needs the site for an expansion of his Garden Park Court apartments.

Mr. Miller, vigorous and middling young, was occupied with a survey crew when a Times reporter drove in through what was once the Tolmie family's 80-acre Cloverdale farm.

The owner expressed his intentions bluntly.

"We want to get it down before anyone knows about it," he said, "least of all, you fellows. The historical people have been driving me crazy!"

Demolition 'Tragedy'

Among those who have hoped to see pioneer Dr. Tolmie's log and roughcast-covered stone home preserved is Mrs. J. H. Hamilton, 931 Foul Bay Road. She regards the pending demolition as a tragedy.

"This is the worst news I've had in a long time," said Mrs. Hamilton, who once worked in provincial archives. "I understood as recently as last week that the Tolmie house might be saved."

She added, "It's a much more attractive place than Helmcken House, on which I believe the government has spent $35,000. I can't understood what's wrong with Victoria people . . . they let our most precious treasures go down the drain while spending money on projects of little value, and urging tourists to visit the city."

As much a fortress as dwelling when Dr. Tolmie built it in deep woods three miles from the HBC bastion, Cloverdale passed to Simon Fraser Tolmie on his father's death.

The fur-trading doctor from Inverness, Scotland, sat in the Legislative Assembly of Vancouver Island, and later, in the B.C. Legislature. His son represented Victoria in the federal House from 1917 to 1928, then resigned to lead British Columbia Conservatives to a provincial victory.

Simon Fraser Tolmie's five-year tenure as premier ended in 1933, but in 1936, a by-election returned him to Ottawa and a seat which he held until his death here in October, 1937.

Occupied by Tenants

Under Wartime Housing in 1943, Cloverdale was remodelled into eight suites, which in 1951 reverted to the owners. Today, six of these apartments are occupied by tenants, and the remaining two by caretakers.

Although Tolmie descendants didn't occupy it, the house remained in the family until 1959. It was then sold by Mrs. L. S. Andrews of West Vancouver, the former Jean Tolmie. Rental construction has since islanded it with its tall California redwood and 800-year-old Garry oak, in a crescent of apartment buildings.

Asked Aid

Unsuccessful in earlier attempts to have her childhood home preserved, Mrs. Andrews the day before her death last September, wrote a letter urging government intervention.

Her son, John R. T. Andrews, discovered the letter when he flew up from Chile, South America, for his mother's funeral. Mr. Andrews crossed to Victoria, where he delivered his mother's letter personally to Premier Bennett.

At the premier's request, a government study was made. But even though Mr. Miller proved entirely co-operative, it was decided that too many practical difficulties stood in the way.

Close proximity of apartment buildings was one, another the lack of parking space for visitors.

OFF 30 PERCENT

Membership Dip Studied by PTA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three hundred delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Parent - Teacher Federation turned the spotlight on themselves here Tuesday in an effort to learn why membership has dropped 30 per cent in the last four years.

The problem of declining membership will be the theme of the week-long convention.

Despite obvious increased general interest in education, the federation now has 38,000 members compared with 53,450 in 1957.

Gordon Selman, assistant director of the University of B.C. extension department, said the drop in membership was partly due to a changing community and a changing organizational set-up.

"Everything in our society is getting more complex today, so organizations must specialize to have an impact," he said. "The PTA will have to specialize and narrow its field of interest."

He said other problems were more women working and more members becoming interested in glamorous international organizations.

Despite all that, Mr. Selman said the need for PTA was great and the challenge greater.

John Stanton, the federation's school education chairman, said the membership drop has been mainly confined to the last two years.

He said PTAs are disbanding throughout the province. Others are dying because no one is willing to act as president. Some are replaced by new organizations in many fields the PTA pioneered.

GATT—'A Sort of UN of Trade'

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

GENEVA (CP)—An array of complex concepts is involved in the GATT conference at Geneva May 16-21.

GATT—the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—is itself a puzzler. Merely a multilateral contract by legal definition, it is really a world organization with a growing permanent staff.

With only 24 signatories at its first meeting in 1947, GATT saw 44 countries attend its last conference with another 40, many of them newly - independent, taking some part in the sessions.

GATT is a sort of United Nations of trade but so far only one Communist country—Czechoslovakia—is a member. It has long sought tariff reduction on a world basis, rather than regionally, through the "most-favored-nation" device.

Under this technique, if Canada chopped tariffs on greaseguns from Britain, for instance, it would also be expected to do the same for other countries. Some progress was made but negotiations were item-by-item and country-by-country, a tedious process.

GATT now enters its most ambitious phase as a result of the United States Trade Expansion Act of 1962, which gives President Kennedy unprecedented scope for negotiation of tariff cuts on a linear basis.

TACKLES BIG PROBLEMS

The Geneva meeting also assumes new importance because it tackles two big problems previously neglected. The first — particularly of interest to Canada—is agricultural protection which either excludes tariff reductions for farm products outright, or makes them an illusion by side measures.

The second is the special situation of developing countries who — through a forthcoming UN meeting—can be expected to raise a political storm if their problem of primary products and tropical commodities is left unsolved.

The so-called Kennedy round aims at getting away from item-by-item bargaining on industrial and other projects and achieving a linear, or across-the-board attack, reducing tariffs by 50 per cent.

One advantage of this would be the diminishing power of pressure groups which, in the U.S. and elsewhere, wield considerable influence over governments when tariffs are negotiated singly.

Perhaps the biggest prod in bringing the U.S. trade act into being was competition from the six-country European Common Market. At that time the Kennedy administration believed Britain would be admitted to the Market.

Kennedy's authority actually allows total abolition of tariffs on those goods for which the U.S. and the Common Market account for 80 per cent of world trade.

But with Britain's exclusion from the Market, these goods are reduced to only a couple of commodities, so that the trade act has lost some of its effectiveness. But the Canadian government and others still feel that progress is possible.

Much depends on the attitude of the Common Market and the British-led European Free Trade Association. Diplomats feel that because of heated political developments some people may be confused about the structure of the two groups.

The Common Market, a customs union, aims at eliminating all internal tariffs among its members—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands—by Jan. 1, 1967 maintaining a common unified tariff against the rest of the world.

The EFTA—Britain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Austria, Switzerland and Portugal—also has agreed to abolish internal tariffs, in 1966, but it allows members to maintain their own separate customs duties against other countries.

'Rich Man's Club'

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Rumblings of revolt against GATT as a "richman's club" reverberated today as the scene of world trade discussions shifted from London to Geneva.

Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, heading the Canadian delegation, left London for Geneva today after attending a preliminary two-day round of Commonwealth trade talks that ended Tuesday with a communique formally recognizing the need for an expansion of world trade.

FAVORS RICH

One point that emerged from the Commonwealth discussions, observers agreed, was the dissatisfaction felt by African, Asian and West Indian members of the Commonwealth with the way GATT is working so far. There appeared to be a feeling that the multi - nation organization set up after the Second World War tends to operate in favor of the more highly developed industrial countries.

There was some suggestion that the "have-not" countries of the Commonwealth, the Afro-Asians and the West Indians, may divert some of their interest from the Geneva conference to the wider United Nations world conference on trade and development set for early 1964.

A preparatory committee of the UN conference will hold a preliminary meeting after the GATT ministerial session.

The communique said: "References were made to the deterioration during the last decade in the prices of primary products and raw materials and to the adverse effect which this has had on less-developed countries and the exporters of temperate agricultural products and raw materials."

44.5 Mill Rate Now Is Official

Oak Bay's 44.5 mill tax rate was officially struck Monday night by council in special sitting.

This will raise $1,750,539 for a total budget expenditure of $2,138,983 in 1963-64. The difference is made up from grants, licences, rents, fines and interest.

This year's rate represents an increase of four mills over 1962, and means that on a residence having $13,600 market value, the $70 provincial homeowner grant will cancel out the increase in taxation.

CENSORSHIP APPROVED

JAKARTA (Reuters)—President Sukarno has given Indonesia's attorney-general power to ban foreign and Indonesian publications "endangering the interests of the Indonesian state," Antara news agency reported Tuesday. The new regulation applies to books, magazines, newspapers and publications of all kinds.

Victoria Daily Times

Monte Roberts

If you are one of the loyal constituents who has been asking, where on earth has Roberts gotten to, I will be happy to answer.

It is a well-known fact it takes something mighty big to get me away from This, the Fairest City of Them All.

And I submit that Alaska is mighty big.

Mind you, all I saw of Alaska was a teenty-weenty bit, less than a zillion square miles, known as the Alaska Panhandle.

If I ever got into the pan itself, you wouldn't hear from me for nigh unto 40 years.

The way I got to see the Alaska Panhandle was aboard the Alaska Cruise ship Glacier Queen, a perky little ship which loves to rub noses with glaciers at the end of long and scenic fjords.

I am not an especially travelled man, but I have seen Banff, Lake Louise, the Grand Canyon, the Painted Desert, Niagara Falls, Yellowstone, Lake Opeongo and a few more of the natural wonders of the world.

After my recent trip, I'll match Tracy Arm and its twin glaciers with any of them.

But I do not wish the constituents to think my vacation aboard Glacier Queen was all play and no work.

On the contrary, I determined to find All the Facts about Alaska, and to report them in this space.

Accordingly, at the Glacier Queen's first port of call, namely, Ketchikan, I enquired at dockside where I might find the state representative, this being Saturday evening.

You will find him, I was told, at his place of business.

On a Saturday evening? I asked.

Of course, I was told, because his place of business is none other than the Sourdough Bar and Liquor Store.

Visiting bars had been no part of my intention on this trip, but duty called. And thus I met Wally Kubley, state representative for the Ketchikan area, and we discussed statehood and what will you have? and all like that.

Still being conscientious, and with my duty to the constituents firmly planted in my mind, the first call I made at Skagway, on the northern end of the Lynn canal, was at the city hall.

There I met the mayor, a thin-lipped, razor-minded individual who had many facts to parade before me.

But it was then 9 o'clock in the morning, and the mayor had a little work to do.

Why do you not meet me at my place of business at, say, 10 o'clock? asked the mayor.

My place of business, he added, is the Frontier Saloon. You can't miss it.

I assure you, I didn't miss it, and the mayor gave me many facts, and we discussed statehood, and what will you have? and all like that.

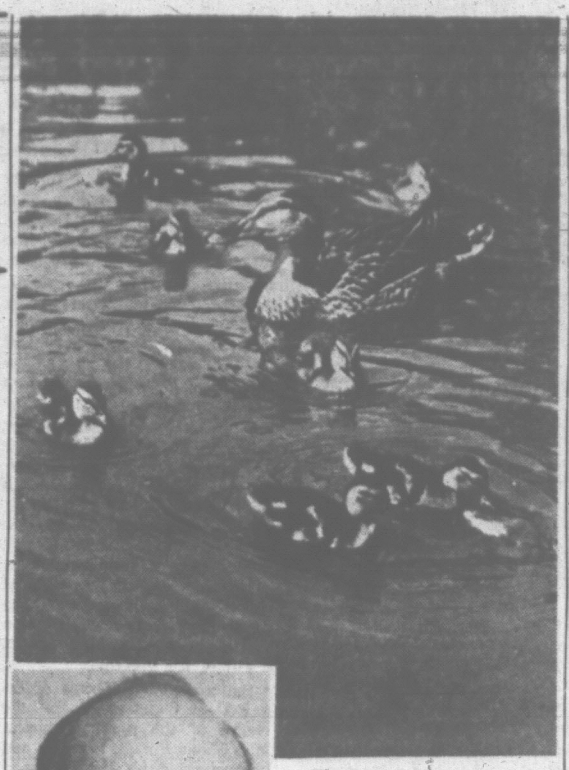

So I said to the mayor, whose name is Malcolm Moe, now that I have the civic viewpoint, do you think I could find the state representative?

And Mayor Moe said, sure, why not, his name is Morgan Reid. You can't miss him, said the mayor. His place of business is the Igloo, third bar down the street on the left-hand side.

Thus I met Representative Reid, and we discussed statehood, and what will you have? and all like that.

Oh, I almost forgot to tell you, I failed to meet Hon. William Egan, the governor of Alaska, because he was in Fairbanks when I was in Juneau, the capital city of Alaska.

However, I did talk to him on the phone, and I guess that was good enough. Governor Egan being one of the few elected officials in the Alaska Panhandle who doesn't own a bar.

They're Mother Nature's responsibility . . .

. . . not Parks Administrator Herb Warren's

PARK BOSS DUCKS DUCK OWNERSHIP

To whom it may concern: parks administrator W. H. Warren does not own the mallard ducks—or any others for that matter.

"Apparently everyone thinks every stray duck around here belongs to us—it just isn't so," he said today.

"The mallard ducks are wild—they don't belong to anyone and can fly away at will."

Every spring Mr. Warren is harried by numerous calls from citizens in the city and even deep in the surrounding countryside asking him to pick up "his" ducks.

"They'll waddle along streets, through people's gardens and even parade around with their young," he said.

"People see them, associate them with the mallards they see in Beacon Hill Park and then call us to take them back.

"We don't feed those in the park and in fact they go out every evening and spend the night at sea."

THINGS THAT SHOULDN'T REACH PRINT

Weather forecaster William Mackie today said "one or possibly two weather systems approaching us" could make it a gloomy holiday weekend.

He said clouds and showers are on the horizon for late Thursday and Friday.

The outlook after Saturday "may be a little more encouraging but of course nothing is settled yet."

He indicated that hopes for fine weather depended on the second weather system, expected to arrive Saturday.

Parking Ban Proposed Near Willows

Rowdyism on Willows Beach can be stopped by banning car parking on Esplanade after 11 p.m., Reeve George Murdoch said today.

The reeve, also chairman of police commission, said the commission has made this recommendation to council.

At its last regular meeting, council heard complaints by petitioners of excessive traffic noise, wild parties, rowdyism and beatings taking place in the early hours of the morning along the three-block stretch of sand.

Mr. Murdoch said police reports disclosed the only "beating" dealt with involved three young men who were fighting, and subsequently charged in juvenile court with disturbing the peace.

Police also investigated a considerable time ago an alleged mugging of a Victoria College student, but could not substantiate his story. In fact, records showed a police car had actually patrolled the Esplanade at the time of the reported incident, the reeve said.

Ex-Victorian Wins Post In Virginia

Dr. John Redford, 34, son of Capt. and Mrs. Walter Redford, 105 Beach Drive, attended Oak Bay High School and Victoria College here.

DR. JOHN REDFORD
. . . now at Seattle

He received his BA degree from the University of B.C. and graduated in medicine from University of Toronto in 1953.

For the past three years he has been at the University of Washington, Seattle, where he was appointed assistant professor at the Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Centre.

Policy Blocks Victoria Bid On Timber

A new B.C. government policy has blocked sale of timber at Squamish to a Victoria man who bid almost three times more than a competitor.

Forests Minister Ray Williston said today there were two reasons for his decision to cancel the sale.

PROXY BUYER

Mr. Cottyn was actually trying to buy the timber for somebody else, which the forest service frowns upon.

His bid was so high it was uneconomic and violated a new policy set at the request of the legislature's forestry committee this spring.

The committee will continue investigation of what is known as "spite bidding" at next year's session.

Mr. Brennan sought the timber under terms of the forest service quota assigned to him in the area. If he lost the sale to an outsider, his quota would have been reduced.

MANY COMPLAINTS

The forestry committee heard numerous complaints from small operators that outsiders were deliberately bidding unreasonable prices to try and squeeze them out of the areas in which they held quotas.

Mr. Williston said his new policy is to cancel a sale if the high bid is more than double the "upset price."

This is an evaluation by the forest service, representing the lowest amount it can accept from any operator.

The "upset price" at Squamish was $44,530 for 1,600,000 feet of timber. Mr. Cottyn bid $113,165.

"Basically you are losing money when you are past twice the upset," Mr. Williston said. "There's no point in allowing him to commit economic suicide."

Hotel Strike Now 'Certain'

Empress Walk-Out Imminent

Breakdown of special conciliation talks will bring a strike at the ivied Empress Hotel "in the very near future," union general chairman J. R. Grealy said at noon today.

"I'm very sorry to have to say that, but the decision could come at any time. It is just a matter of considering when to strike," Mr. Grealy said.

Two separate approaches to management since provincial conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin last met the sides Tuesday have brought no reply, the union spokesman said.

SOLID FRONT

Empress employees — 300 strong—and the executive of Local 276 Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, are solidly behind strike action, Mr. Grealy said.

All hurdles have been cleared in preparation for a strike and the union has only to give the hotel 48 hours' notice of the actual day.

The situation could be serious for hotel owners, Canadian Pacific Railway Co., whose prairie hotels in Calgary and Winnipeg are also embroiled in labor trouble.

PRAIRIE VOTES

A strike vote was to be taken among 200 employees at the Royal Alexandra, Winnipeg, and at the Palliser in Calgary another 200 workers were to vote on a conciliation board award.

"The employees in this hotel (Empress) feel the CPR has gained a lot from this city of Victoria in such things as tax exemptions," Mr. Grealy said.

"Now they feel why should they have to subsidize the company for the poor way they operate the hotel.

"If they are going to cry poverty, it's not the employees' fault. They feel they have no alternative but to strike because the management has not bargained in good faith.

He said the union was prepared to accept a suggestion by Mr. McLaughlin as a nucleus for agreement.

This would provide for a total seven cents an hour wage increase at three cents, two cents and two cents over three years from date of signing a new agreement.

It would also include a $50 lump settlement per regular employee in lieu of retroactive pay and adjustments to certain categories.

There was no indication by management that this would be acceptable, Mr. Grealy said.

ORIGINAL REQUEST

The union originally asked five cents an hour wage hike Jan. 1, 1962. After 12 months of dispute, the union accepted a conciliation award of four cents for the one-year period, but this was rejected by the company and a strike vote was held.

Mr. Grealy blamed the long wrangle on CPR vice-president Ian Sinclair, of Montreal. He asked why Mr. Sinclair did not take part in bargaining instead of vetoing from Montreal.

"It's a shame that one man could split a city down the middle as he did in the Royal York strike in Toronto. I hate to think of it happening in Victoria," Mr. Grealy said.

'WE ARE DESIRING YOU SEE'

Japanese Send Art For Exhibition Here

In March, in a Japanese town about 80 miles from Hiroshima, more than 3,000 people attended an exhibition of 50 paintings and drawings by Victoria youngsters.

Starting Thursday, Victorians will be able to see works of art by 50 boys and girls of Yanai. The display will be on the third floor of the Hudson's Bay Co. store for a week.

The exchange of paintings took place between the local Douglas Rotary Club and the Rotary Club of Yanai, Yamaguchi, Japan, as part of a "world understanding week" project.

PARK SCENES

They were hung in a hall at Yanai March 19 to 21. The mayor of the city cut a ribbon to open the exhibition which, it was reported, attracted more than 3,000 visitors.

A Yanai Rotary spokesman wrote to Douglas Rotary saying "all enjoyed the skillfulness of technique and wonderful sense" shown by our young artists.

"We are desiring that the pictures might be able to fulfill their parts to develop the friendship and mutual understanding between our two peoples," he wrote.

The Victoria showing is taking place later than that in Japan due to a mix-up in shipping the Yanai exhibits here. As the Japanese Rotary official explained:

"Until today we got report from Iwakuni, an unbelievable report, that the pictures were still stored in Iwakuni because of their mishandling, which made us so much surprise and disappoint.

"As soon as we got the report we ordered them to send them immediately, first send them without delay, and second who will take the responsibility for the fault, we said so."

However, it turned out the shipping master at Iwakuni was away "on legitimate business" so all was forgiven.

New Air Maps Ready Friday

Release of aeromagnetic survey maps of four northern Vancouver Island areas was announced this morning.

The maps are expected to be of wide interest in mining circles since it is the first time an area of relatively high relief has been surveyed by the two government agencies—Geological Survey of Canada and B.C. Mines Department.

Three of the areas, Kyuquot, Alice Lake and Port McNeill, are in a continuous block running from 50 degrees to 50 degrees, five minutes north and from 127 degrees to 127 degrees, 30 minutes west.

The fourth area, San Josef, in the Cape Scott region, runs from 50 degrees, 25 minutes to 50 degrees, 45 minutes north and from 128 degrees to 128 degrees, 30 minutes west.

Release of the maps will be made simultaneously Friday at the B.C. mines department office in the Douglas Building and at the Geological Survey office at 79 W. Hastings in Vancouver.

Mrs. John, who was born in Bermuda, came to Saanichton in 1888. She was a former member of the Saanichton Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association.

Her husband, Edwin Richard John, well-known Saanichton pioneer farmer and first white child to be born in Barkerville, died in 1930.

Ask The Times

Q. When did nylon stockings first come on the market? M.G.M.

A. Nylon hosiery was available in limited quantities in 1938, made by Du Pont de Nemours Company, of the United States, but due to the fact that one of the two principal raw materials for nylon was manufactured commercially only in Germany at that time, nylons were not available in quantity until the mid-1940's.

Q. Could you please tell me the population of Canada at present? W.R.C.

A. Most recent accurate figures are those of the 1961 census. At that time the total population was 18,238,247. Of these, 5,537,857 lived in rural areas. The other 12,700,000 were city dwellers.

The next food stall will be held Saturday at 732A Cormorant, for distribution to the needy of Victoria.

This between-seasons period creates a surplus food deficit, "but maybe some people are renewing their deep-freeze stocks," Mrs. Harper said.

No-Baseball Rule Up for Revision By School Board

Greater Victoria School Board may revise its policy of forbidding baseball on school grounds, it was learned today.

Buildings and grounds committee chairman George Curran said today the "no hardball" policy was under review.

But at the same time he pointed out that little league officials were breaking the law in holding games on school property despite the standing rule.

"I don't think much of officials who would let the boys play ball right under signs saying it was forbidden," he said. "The officials haven't even talked to us about it this year."

But he indicated he would make a recommendation to the board at its next meeting to review the situation.

"I think there will be a change of policy," he said.

Only Tuesday city parks committee asked the inter-municipal committee to find a way to persuade the board to permit more use of playground and gym facilities by amateur sports groups.

NO BUTTS ABOUT IT

Non-Smokers Decry Lung Torturers

Canada's first non-smokers' conference opened in Victoria today with a warning from B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin that smoking shortens life and increases danger from malignant diseases.

Organized by the 600-member Non-Smokers' Association of Canada, the conference was held in the new Saanich Health Centre and attracted representatives of the PTA council, the B.C. health and education departments and local churches.

Mr. Martin, a senior member of the association, said 38,000 people die from lung cancer every year and heavy smoking is now considered "an important cause" of lung cancer and other fatal diseases.

"It is a very risky thing for politicians to support a movement like this, because people don't like having their habits interfered with . . .

"I would certainly resent anyone interfering with my drinking habits, although the amount of drink I take is beneficial rather than harmful."

Robert Ludwig, Vancouver, who is secretary of the Non-Smokers' Association, said he hopes Victoria will be the "launching pad" for non-smokers' seminars all over Canada and the United States.

"I believe we shall soon be as famous at Alcoholics Anonymous."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Corner Searching Reveals Bargain Hats and Dresses

By PENNY SAVER

"Aren't they terribly expensive?" exclaimed Linda when I told her where I'd been shopping for a hat."

"Not if you know which part of the store to shop in," I crowed in true Penny Saver fashion. "On a mezzanine floor they have nothing but hats which are $6.98 or less, and many of them are less. Why right now . . ."

But Linda had gone, thinking perhaps that the store was about to close this special section before she got there.

But I could have told her that the store has had this "budget balcony" for quite a while and probably has no intention of giving it up. What I was going to add when she dashed off in such a rush was that right now the store has regular $6.98 hats on for $3.99.

There is the ever-stylish navy with white flower trim that makes the hats suitable for spring or fall. There are greys and beiges in many tones and all different styles. So many different styles in fact that I may have seen one or two the same but not many more.

Penny wandered into a back corner of another store and discovered several racks of cotton casuals. These dresses, in various styles and a riot of colors, are all priced from $2.98 to $6.98, and are in half sizes from 12 to 22½.

One in green print that caught my eye has basic shirt waist styling with button front and pleat down centre front of gathered skirt. Short sleeves are cuffed and skirt boasts two fairly large pockets. To add to styling, the neck can be worn either of two ways—buttoned up into a Peter Pan collar or unbuttoned with a V-opening extending from collar.

Made of glazed cotton, the dress would even take you shopping during the hot summer months, and price was only $3.98.

If you want to know the names of stores where Penny has been bargain hunting, call me at 382-3131.

Couple Wed in Duncan Church

St. John's Anglican Church at Duncan was the scene of a wedding that united Sharon Hope Rimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Rimer, 1306 Johnson Street, and Douglas William Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Turner, of Duncan.

Mauve and white lilacs, tulips, dogwood, blossom and spring flowers decorated the church. C. A. Howard was organist and Miss Margaret Cleough was the soloist. Rev. R. F. Stephenson officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white taffeta that was styled with a full skirt, highlighted with bows; scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The finger-tip veil misted from a satin headpiece. The cascade bouquet was of white stephanotis and pink Delight roses. Only jewelry was a single strand of culture pearls, a gift of the groom.

Seventy guests attended a reception in the Maple Bay Yacht Club. White candles in silver candelabra, lily of the valley and spring flowers, arranged on fulle was the setting for the wedding cake on the head table.

Les Salmon, Victoria, proposed the toast. J. C. Calverley was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Salmon was dining-room hostess, assisted by Mrs. Calverley and Mrs. A. Webb.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to the mainland, Lake Louise and Banff, the bride donned a three-piece Italian knit suit in Nile green, with trim of white and dark green, white gardenia hat, white accessories and gardenia corsage.

The couple will make their home in Vancouver.

DEAR ABBY . . .

The Basic Motivation

By ABIGAIL VAN-BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am getting a little sick of all those deep-rooted psychological reasons why children do this and that. One, for instance, is the theory that when a child steals something it is a symptom of an unfulfilled need. They say the child who steals a flashlight really wants his mother's love and is not getting it. Couldn't there possibly be another more obvious reason why a child steals a flashlight?

DOUBTING THOMAS.

DEAR DOUBTING: Yes, I suppose the child could simply want a flashlight.

DEAR ABBY: What can a sensible wife do about a husband who is excessively generous to an employee? She is very well paid, so all these extras are uncalled for in my opinion. We get bills from the dentist for Susie's teeth straightening, and from the optician for Robert's glasses. He has lent money to this employee and, as far as I know, she has never paid him back. We are not poor, but if I am going to give away that kind of money I'd rather do it through my missionary work at church, or CARE.

VERY MUCH ANNOYED.

DEAR ANNOYED: Tell your husband that every day isn't Christmas, and he is not Santa Claus. I usually advise wives to stay away from their husbands' offices—but in your case I think I'll make an exception.

DEAR ABBY: For the past 16 years an old shipmate of my husband's from Second World War has come to spend his summer vacations with us. He stays about three weeks. He never wants to go out. He only wants to sit around and have dinner at home every night. Naturally, I have to cook company meals while he's here. Also, I would never think of serving him leftovers, which makes it hard. My husband says that after four days he is no longer a "guest," and I should go back to my normal way of cooking. I can't do that, Abby. To me a guest is a guest as long as he stays. I would appreciate your advice.

JOHN'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: I think your husband is right. Give your "guest" the company treatment for the first few days, and after that relax and pretend that he is "one of the family." And don't hesitate to serve the leftovers.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MOTHER MARY: And when HER birthday rolls around, forget the past and remember the present!

Yes, Abby will send you a personal reply if you send her a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your problem.

PARLIAMENT OPENING

Gala Dinner, Reception Postponed

OTTAWA (CP) — For the second time in a row, the vice-regal state dinner and reception that usually precedes the opening of a new Parliament will not be held this year.

The gala affair was not held before the 25th Parliament opened last September because of renovations to Rideau Hall, official residence of the governor-general.

This year, it has been postponed until the opening of the fall session of Parliament because Governor-General Vanier still is recovering from a mild heart attack suffered last month.

The two main social functions connected with the 26th Parliament's opening Thursday will be receptions tendered by the Speakers of the Senate and House of Commons after the opening ceremonies.

Alan Macnaughton, government nominee for Commons Speaker, is expected to receive about 1,000 guests including members of the diplomatic corps, the Senate, the Commons and their wives.

About the same number are expected to meet Senate Speaker Maurice Bourget in his chambers.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Women have long depended on a new hat to perk up a blue day or to provide a change of pace from a humdrum schedule of daily living. Why not give the man in your life a lift by helping him choose a lightweight straw hat either for business or for fun.

In order to help you help him, I went to an institute of men's and boys' wear for information. These experts told me that different hat blocks and shapes can do much to influence a man's appearance. They add height to those who are short, compensate for prominent features and properly frame the very full face.

Here are the rules the institute gave me:

The short slender man will want to add to his height when hatted. He should wear a hat with a well tapered crown, with not too much brim snap. Otherwise he may look overpowered by the hat.

For the big fellow, a full crown and a brim which is not too narrow is indicated.

Here's a bit of interesting information. According to one of the leading makers of men's hair pieces, the high quality hair used in the hair pieces is obtained from people who keep their hair covered when outdoors. This protects it from dust, grime and overexposure to the sun. The expert said that when hair is exposed to these elements it quickly weathers and fades.

At the third annual dinner meeting of the Alumni Association of British Columbia, Victoria College, to be held Friday evening, Adele Lewis, right, and June Gruber will entertain with a selection of songs during the dinner hour. An informal reception will be held at 6:30 p.m., in the cafeteria building on the Gordon Head campus followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Guest speaker will be Willard Ireland, provinciaal archivist and librarian, and his subject "University of Victoria—Castle to Campus."

Honors Mrs. FDR

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Newspaper Women's Club has established an international fellowship in the name of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to provide study and travel for newspaper women. Dr. Kelsey Praised by Fellow 'Old Girls'

Tribute was paid to Dr. Frances Kelsey (Frankie Oldham), a former pupil of the school, at annual St. Margaret's old girls' luncheon, held last Saturday in the school. Work of Dr. Kelsey prevented sale of the drug thalidomide in the United States.

A letter was read from Miss Margaret Barton, a former headmistress now living in England and from Mrs. Kenneth Moore, representing the Vancouver members of the group.

Toasts were proposed by Mrs. Lauder Ramsay, Mrs. R. R. Wilde and Miss Joan Biddle with Miss Sandra Moore replying to the toast to the graduating class.

New officers for the year are Mrs. V. Gadsby, president; Miss Gail Buckle, vice-president; Miss Pamela Paver, secretary; Miss Janet Davis, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Pember, publicity, and Miss Sylvia Rheinhart, social.

School colors, red and white, were used to decorate the dining hall and spring flowers and silver candelabra were used on the luncheon tables. Later in the afternoon a hockey match took place between old girls and the present girls of the school, the former being the winners.

Foul Bay Job Underspent

Foul Bay Road redevelopment project now nearing completion by Saanich and Oak Bay may be considerable underspent, Oak Bay works committee was told Monday night.

Some of the excess estimate will be used up by slight overspending in other works, but up to last week the books showed $91,564 unspent in the $192,900 job.

Two more weeks should see the end of project, providing a new, widened street between Lansdowne and Fort, new ornamental boulevard trees, new curbs, sidewalks and street lighting, engineer Geoffrey White said.

HURON JOINS IROQUOIS

Warrior Sent to Reserve

HALIFAX (CP) — HMCS Huron, one of eight Tribal class destroyers built for the Royal Canadian Navy, has been officially retired after 20 years and two wars.

Huron was paid off April 30 and after several weeks at the naval dockyard here being prepared for operational reserve she was to join HMCS Iroquois, Canada's first Tribal, which was retired last October and now is at Point Edward Naval Base, Sydney, N.S.

The Tribals, built as destroyers and later converted to destroyer escorts, were named after North American Indian tribes.

Retirement of the Huron is part of the navy's long-range program of gradually replacing older warships with nuclear-age vessels.

Of the original eight Tribals, five remain in the fleet. They are Nootka, Micmac, Cayuga, Athabaskan and Haida.

Huron, an anti-submarine destroyer escort, had been attached to the Third Canadian Escort Squadron based here.

WAR SERVICE

She was commissioned in Britain in 1943, the third Tribal to come into service. In her first year she escorted convoys to the Soviet Union and took part in operations along the Norwegian coast.

Huron was with the convoy that lured the German battle cruiser Scharnhorst to her destruction by HMS Duke of York off Norway's North Cape in December, 1943.

From 1944 on, she was engaged in offensive operations in the Bay of Biscay and English Channel.

When the war in Europe ended in May 1945 plans were made for Canadian ships, including Huron, to participate in operations against Japan. Huron returned to Halifax for refit but when Japan surrendered in August she was paid off and entered maintenance reserve.

After extensive alterations Huron was recommissioned in 1950 and the following January sailed for Korean waters. She had three tours of duty during the Korean War, returning to Canada in March 1955.

Huron displaces 2,700 tons, is 377 feet long and has a 37-foot beam. Her normal complement was 200 officers and men.

He was remanded for preliminary hearing May 22 after bail was refused. Provincial police said Trottier had two airline tickets to Paris when they arrested him Monday night.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

After months of preparation and hours of television coverage, Astronaut Gordon Cooper got only 90 feet off the ground yesterday.

Stephen

That was the distance to the top of the Atlas rocket which he reached by elevator.

To top it off, while the electronic media were giving the event coverage it was electronic gear (radar) in Bermuda which forced the postponement.

Despite this, there will always be an aura of excitement surrounding planned space shots.

A person would have to be completely emotionless not to tingle to the thrill of expectancy of a shoot.

The hours of live coverage of yesterday's postponed flight was television at its best. Camera crews and commentators worked as complete units with assurance gained from previous coverage of space shots.

It was still dark in Victoria when all networks began coverage of Cooper's planned flight.

Again we shared the moments of anxiety with those in Mercury Control for two hours as the countdown was stalled at T-minus 60 minutes.

The commentators took the occasion to interview former successful astronauts, interviews with Cooper prior to Tuesday, and shots of the homes of his relatives.

When it was called off at 7:57 a.m. there was a distinct feeling of disappointment.

The CBS coverage of the early morning hours again proved to be the best of the three networks. Anchorman Walter Cronkite has the special knack needed to fill the time created by the wait in countdown.

The future looked forward to are the shots from Cooper in his capsule as it zooms through space.

He will achieve this with the use of a special two-pound aluminum TV camera which will relay pictures to ground stations on earth. We, thus, share the flight.

I'm looking forward to the ride.

IT DOES HAPPEN DEP'T: Naked City, to be axed in the fall, has been nominated for six Emmys. The program was also hailed by Newsweek as the best and most stylish show on American television, and by Time as one of the 10 best TV shows of the year. In addition to the show itself being selected as one of the five best in the field of drama, regulars Paul Burke and Nancy Malone were cited for their performances, as well.

★ ★ ★

One of the best Pierre Berton shows was the interview with Lester Pearson prior to the April 8 election. In fact, CTV network ran the program twice.

The network is entering the interview episode in the international category in the Emmy awards.

CTV is also entering Telepoll in the same category.

★ ★ ★

Replacing the weekly Chet Huntley Reporting July 2, NBC will offer a 12-program summer series on what people of a dozen leading cities of the world are preoccupied with at present, from sports to art to politics.

'Outdated' Tax Methods Rapped

TORONTO (CP)—After hearing about federal tax matters for four weeks, the royal commission on taxation got its first taste of municipal problems today when a private individual from Woodbridge, Ont., teed off on the "outdated" methods of assessment.

Roger Pocock told the commission that existing assessment methods discourage property improvement, cause community eyesores, bring on fire hazards and result in uncompleted buildings.

His brief said it wasn't logical for a brick building to be taxed more heavily than a wooden one, when both require the same services and the wooden structure is a greater concern to the fire and police departments. It also wasn't logical for a house, without front steps, to get a lighter assessment than a well-finished dwelling.

KEEP FULL FILES

This is what Mr. Pocock suggested: First, assessors should be qualified for their work and well trained. Complete files should be kept on all property, and when one property is found to be poorly kept one year, the assessment should be raised the next.

Industrial or apartment properties that produce excessive amounts of air pollution should pay heavier taxes. Industries that impose a heavy burden on the sewage disposal system should pay accordingly. Buildings likely to cause fires—wooden houses with space heaters—should have an increased assessment for fire hazard.

"Property owners who persist in the outside storage of machinery, packing cases, raw material, steel, lumber, etc., paint cans, storage drums, unused and partly wrecked vehicles, should be assessed for this type of outside storage in an effort to produce a respectable-looking neighborhood."

TAX VACANCIES

Land held vacant in a developed area should bear heavier taxes to "complete the pattern of development in that district." The practice of reduced assessments for unfinished buildings should be abolished.

Since all municipalities should have identical regulations, said the brief, "a degree of federal or provincial control would be necessary."

The brief also suggested that a high tax rate be imposed on real estate transactions in which the seller has not made any improvements to the property while he owned it. This, said the submission, would apply particularly to land speculators.

Mr. Pocock suggested that a reasonable gain—"say two per cent per annum" — be allowed along with expenses. Above that the profit should be subject to a tax of about 50 per cent.

This suggestion followed another one that a capital gains tax be imposed in relation to the time in which the capital was gained. This would discourage short-term trading which tends to discourage investors who are "prepared to take either a reasonable profit or dividend over a reasonable period of time."

Mr. Pocock said short-term trading is of no assistance to a company seeking capital expansion through the sale of stock, and a heavy tax on such transactions would discourage the "day-to-day trader" and help the "genuine investor."

The brief suggested a tax of 50 per cent on capital gains above seven per cent a year.

Labor Claims Gain of 866

LONDON (Reuters)—The opposition Labor Party today claimed a net gain of 866 seats and capture of control of 54 councils in last week's municipal elections.

This compared with a net loss of about 600 seats in 1960, when the same vacancies were contested.

With a few results still to be checked, the Labor party said 1,772 of the party's candidates had been elected.

PEARSON WRITES TO PREMIERS

Biculturism Study Help Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Letters to provincial premiers from Prime Minister Pearson are expected to go out today asking provincial co-operation in a royal commission on biculturalism, a reliable informant said Tuesday night.

Mr. Pearson said last week the terms of reference proposed to the provinces for the commission's study won't be made public before the letters are in the hands of provincial premiers.

It is understood that the federal government is suggesting a nine-man commission with joint chairmen — one English and one French. Mr. Pearson has said that all members of the commission will be familiar with both of Canada's official languages.

MAKE MANY SHOES

Britain produces some 180,000,000 pairs of shoes a year and exports about 12,000,000.

The royal commission, first proposed as Liberal policy by Mr. Pearson last December in Parliament, has been assigned as a priority task to Privy Council President Maurice Lamontagne.

Jobless Rate Drops To Seven Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—With job oportunities rising in industry and on the farm, Canada's unemployment total dropped last month to 462,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the federal labor department reported today in a joint statement.

The mid-April jobless total was 87,000 lower than the total for March and 23,000 lower than the total for April last year.

It represented seven per cent of the labor force, compared to unemployment rates of 7.5 per cent in April, 1962, and 9.7 per cent in April, 1961. It was also a sharp drop from the 8.4 per cent rate of March of this year.

The statement said employment increased and unemployment declined more than usual for this time of year. Total employment jumped by 134,000 to 6,097,000 during the month.

Boost Quota

TORONTO (UPI) — Prime Minister Errol Barrow of Barbados says chronic unemployment in his West Indian island nation would be eased if Canada would liberalize its immigration laws.

His country does not wish to unload its unemployable workers on Canada but does hope this nation will allow a greater number of skilled workers to come here, Barrow said Sunday.

Barrow said many West Indians trained as school teachers and stenographers come to Canada as domesties because their chances of being accepted as immigrants are better if they are willing to do housework.

Admit it . . . you've never had such special treatment! But you deserve to be spoiled, Mr. Johnson. After all, you just bought your family a new Valiant, the best compact car on the road today. And, Mr. Johnson, your new Valiant will spoil you, too, with its Slant-Six power, smooth dependable ride, big car comfort and thrifty money-saving ways. This kind of value is likely to spoil you for any other car. For good! Your wife loves Valiant too—we can tell. (She didn't open doors for the old car!) The fact is, Valiant wins most people on the very first ride . . . which only goes to show what impelling good looks and polished good manners will do for a compact. But Valiant doesn't rest on its first-impression laurels. Fifty-thousand miles later—you'll still bless the day you bought Valiant. Relax and enjoy it, Mr. Johnson. Live the life of Riley. He drives a Valiant, too!

No other compact does so much for you

- The 5-year—50,000-mile power-train warranty—protects you against major repairs (including parts and labour) and this warranty stays with the car for greater trade-in value.
- Valiant's standard-equipment alternator keeps your battery fully charged and ensures fast, positive starts!
- Valiant outperforms all the other compacts with its 101 hp Slant-Six engine (biggest standard engine in its class) and with its optional 145 hp "six"—it's terrific.
- Valiant means savings—with Slant-Six economy, with 4000-mile intervals between engine oil changes, and 32,000-mile intervals between chassis lubrications.
- Valiant's self-adjusting brakes have far more usable brake lining area than any of the other compacts, for greater safety.

nobody beats Valiant for value

SOLUTION FRIDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Encyclopedia to Stephen Scott, age 11, of South Portland, Me., for his question:

Why Does the Grass Turn Green in Spring?

In many places, the meadows are hidden under wintery snow. There may be a few snowless spots, and in some places there is no winter snow at all. Then we notice that fields and lawns are matted with brown, dead stalks. Nothing it seems could reawaken this dead grass to life. But spring is full of miracles, and soon the grass is green again.

Now is the time when an alert boy casts a sharp eye at the lawns along the street. There will be grass to be cut and mowing money to be earned through the summer. It is pleasant to think of the jingling coins and the items they will buy. But if you want a successful, summer - long lawn mowing contract, you need to know something about grass and how it grows.

There are some 5,000 different grasses in the plant family Gramineae. There may be half a dozen or more different turf grasses matted together in a lawn. Most of these grasses are similar to those cultivated in fields and the wild varieties that carpet the hills and valleys. All of them depend upon a sturdy root system which forms a matted network of threads mixed with the surface soil.

The sturdy root system of a turfy lawn, field or hillside can lie dormant through droughts and months of winter. But during these periods of hardship, it cannot support the green surface growth. The blades of grass whither and die, and the turf seems to be dead.

Grasses Produce Flowers

But spring comes around and thaws the frozen ground, melts the snow and pours down showers or warm rain. Water seeps down and fills the pockets in the loose soil and grassy root systems. Conditions are right for regrowth of new greenery. Many turf grasses spread by rootstocks. These modified stems are long and in jointed sections. Each joint can sprout both root fibers to pierce into the soil and a shaft of greenery to grow up into the sunshine.

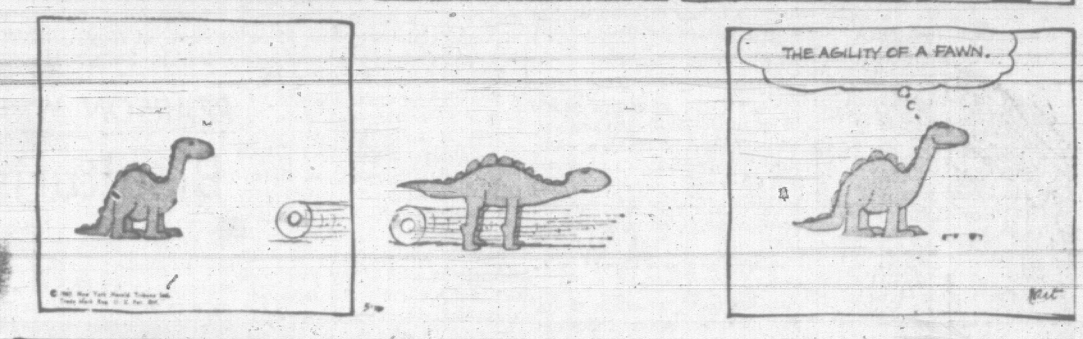

The green growth is a stem enfolded in pairs of leafy blades. It, too, grows in sections. In many turf grasses the first section turns brown when a new green section is added at the top. If you mow off the top greenery, you are left with a shaggy brown lawn which may stay brown all summer.

The pastures are cropped short by grazing cattle which is why many meadows stay grassy green through most of the summer. But when grasses are left to grow as they choose, they soon reach their proper height and produce modest flowers which become crops of dainty grass seeds. By summer, the grasses of the fields and waysides have lost their vibrant green, and they will not regain it until next spring coaxes forth new growth.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—I asked the B.W. to be my leg-women (she's got the legs for it!) and fly to Las Vagas to get some Frank Sinatra news . . . Press people were junketing out for a party that Frank & Paramount pictures were giving to salute his film, "Come Blow Your Horn."

"O.K. Your Beautiful Wife will get the same treatment from Sinatra as any other reporter or columnist," Paramount said . . . "If it's going to be that bad, she can't go!" I said.

But they're old friends, so she went, and latched onto him at the Sands. She found him exulting about Frankie Jr.'s singing success in Dallas.

Frankie Jr. wanted to send his dad a gift from the famous Dallas store, Nieman-Marcus. Finding nothing suitable, he got some matzoh balls from a Dallas delicatessen, and had them extravagently disguised in a Nieman-Marcus gift-wrapping. Frank Sr. was delighted.

Shirely Jones — returning from Italy to find her husband Jack ("She Loves Me") Cassidy practically a matinee idol, went to Robert Clary's Bon Soir opening with him . . . Proudly . . . Errol Garner confides he wrote "Misty" on a plane, tapping it out on his knees, imaginatively. A woman passenger told a stewardess "That man must be airsick!"

Jimmy Durante's 303-pound night club partner, Jenie Jackson (58-44-60) wants me to ask men if they aren't sick of emancipated glamor girls who look like they're on the 9-day diet unable to make it to the 10th day. Glamor gals, she says, should be for cuddly and pinchable. Well, are they?

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . . If you're president, you can have your birthday any time. The "N.Y. Birthday Salute" to JFK May 23, six days early, headed by Arthur Krim, was arranged "for the president's convenience" . . . Rex Harrison considered Rolls-Royceing out of Hollywood for "Fair Lady," but decided to ship it instead . . . Dorothy Malone's split-up spouse Jacques Bergerac wants to open a Hollywood restaurant with Mike Drinkhouse called "Le Moustache" after the Paris spot.

George Maharis joined the tambourine-pounding "gospel train" parading through the Sweet Chariot cafe . . . Edith Piaf, critically ill in Paris recently, got a transfusion from her young husband, Teo Sarapo . . . Mike Todd Jr., feeling fit again, was at the Colony . . . Rita Hayworth and Sue (Lolita") Lyon are due to start their new film here May 28 if the rest of the roles are cast by then.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A local fellow complains his wife's a sloppy housekeeper. "I won't say how dirty the rug is—but when we have trouble with crabgrass, it's inside the house."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Taffy Tuttle's beau claims she's like a Picaso painting: "Beautiful to look at, but difficult to understand."

EARL'S PEARLS: The worst combination you can have in an office is a clerk who's a clock-watcher and a boss who's a clerk-watcher.

Nothing changes much. In 1933 it was the depression that kept us out of expensive restaurants; in 1963 it's the Internal Revenue Service. That's earl brother.

Dictators Meet

MERIDA, Spain (UPI) — The two strongmen of the Iberian peninsula arrived unexpectedly in this Spanish town Tuesday for a two-day summit meeting. Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 70, and Portuguese Prime Minister Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, 74, motored from their respective capitals for the unheralded meeting, believed to be concerned with international problems.

The Alexandria Station cattle ranch in Northern Territory, Australia, covers 7,207 acres.

Turbine Car Revolutionary or Bust?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chrysler Corp.'s new turbine car could herald an automotive revolution or it could be a multi-million-dollar bubble waiting to burst.

It is all up to the public and Chrysler is first to admit it. The turbine car was introduced to newsmen Tuesday when they gave it a brief test ride at Roosevelt raceway.

It looks much like Ford's popular Thunderbird but the power plant is all new and the result of years of research.

Chrysler said 50 turbine cars would ultimately be built and distributed to some 200 motorists, each driving the car for about three months. The results of the test drives, Chrysler said, would determine the future of the turbine program.

"It is a test program," Chrysler vice-president Robert Anderson said. "The results of the test will determine if the car is to go into production or if we are to go back to the laboratory for further testing."

The rear is something new in automotive styling. Chrysler styling vice-president Elwood P. Engle described the rear of the car as "aerodynamic."

The rear bumper is a part of the car. Taillights, turn signals and backup lights are recessed in large chrome-plated horizontal sections that are almost triangular.

RIOT HALTS CAIRO GAME

CAIRO (Reuters)—Twenty-eight persons were injured, including four policemen, when a crowd watching a football match here hurled stones, bottles and chairs at each other and the players, Cairo newspapers reported Tuesday.

Landing Set Late Thursday

Hours later he was reported in good spirits and health "and very much on top of his mission."

Minutes after entering orbit, Cooper reported that everything was "mighty good."

Astronaut Walter Schirra, in communication with Cooper at Cape Canaveral, said: "Great sport, isn't it?"

"It sure is," Cooper replied as he whizzed along.

The 36-year-old air force major rose into the sky atop an Atlas rocket at 9:04 a.m. EDT (6:04 a.m. PDT) under orders, if all goes right, to soar around the earth 22 times in about 34 hours.

As he went into his fourth orbit at 1:35 p.m. EDT, Walter C. Williams, operations chief of the Mercury flight program, issued this word:

"He is very much on top of his mission. He is in good spirits and in good health."

Cooper completed his first orbit at 10:33 a.m. EDT, his second at 12:06 p.m., the third at 1:35 p.m., and the fourth at 3:03 p.m.

He had reported at the end of his second flash around the world that he was "very comfortable."

Williams said after the third round trip that Cooper was performing all of his space experiments—designed to aid the longer Gemini and Apollo moon flights of the future—on schedule.

Experiment Not Complete Success

As Cooper's Faith 7 spacecraft sped high above the South Atlantic Ocean during the third of his intended 22 orbits, the pilot pushed a switch which ejected a 10-pound sphere from the base of the capsule.

The sphere, 5.75 inches in diameter and equipped with two high-intensity flashing lights, settled into an orbit slightly different from that of Faith 7.

The idea was to see whether astronauts could easily spot beacons in the sky. Such beacons might be used to guide astronauts of the Gemini and Apollo programs to other spacecraft in orbit.

Cooper reported to a tracking post on Ascension Island that the sphere had been released successfully. But there was no immediate report on his observance of the xenon-gas lights which were to blink once every second.

However, Mercury control centre reported later that it had received a partially-garbled message from Cooper which indicated that perhaps the experiment was not as successful as originally thought. A full report was expected later.

100 to 166 Miles Above Earth

Faith 7 reached a peak speed of 17,546 miles an hour and circled the globe once every 88.45 minutes.

The flight, conducted in the full glare of publicity in contrast with the secrecy of Russia's manned space flights, was hailed by people around the world.

President Kennedy in Washington expressed happiness at the success of the launching and said he would follow the flight closely.

"Beautiful," was the way Cooper's wife Trudy described the launching, which she watched on television in her Houston, Tex., home, with their two teen-age daughters, Camala, 14, and Janita, 13.

Tears were the only visible emotion from the 82-year-old astronaut's grandmother, who rocked slowly in a rocking chair as she watched the rocket rise.

As Faith 7 whirled through the heavens, Cooper continually made satisfactory reports about his personal condition and the systems in the spacecraft. Early in the flight, there was some concern about high temperature in the cabin, but this quickly cleared up.

As he passed above California near the end of orbit No. 2, he told the tracking station at Point Arguello that he was "comfortable, real comfortable in fact; I even had a little nap."

If Cooper completes the full flight, he will have been up for more than 34 hours, dropping to a parachute landing in the Pacific Ocean southeast of Midway Island shortly after 7 p.m. EDT Thursday.

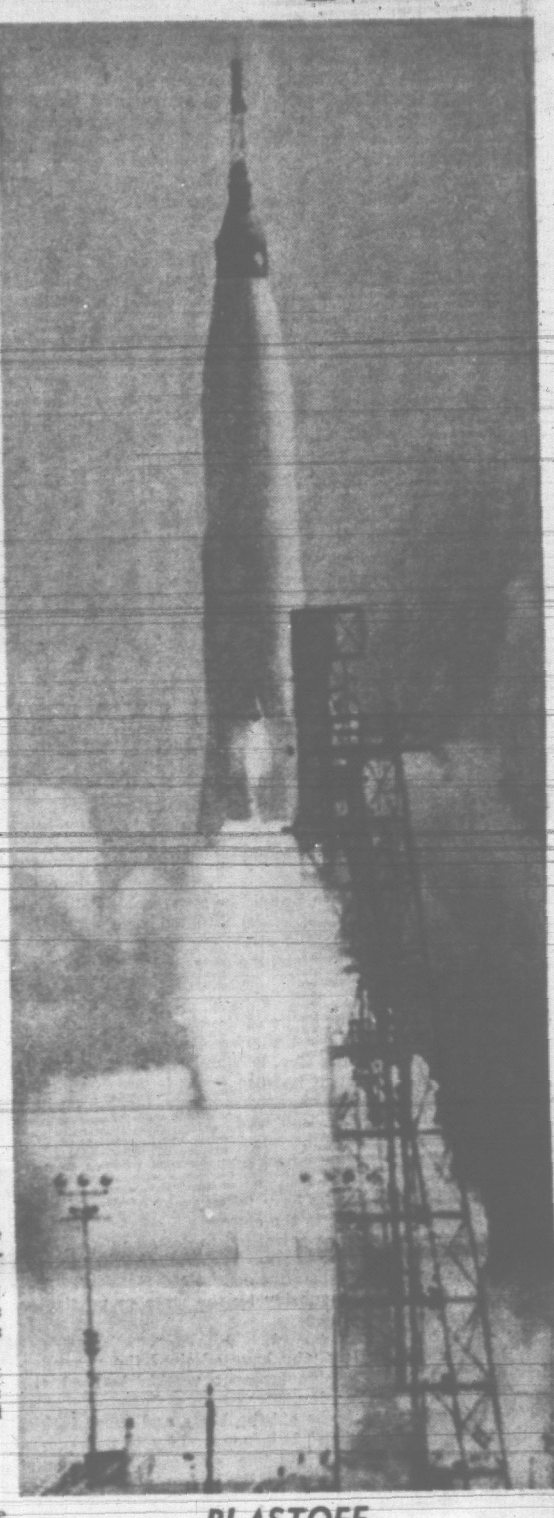

During the first orbit he gave his spacecraft systems a thorough wringing out and pronounced them all in excellent shape. Mercury control centre at Cape Canaveral then relayed the word that he was "go" for at least six more orbits.

That was the first of three critical "go" or "no-go" decisions scheduled for the 34-hour flight. The other two were set for orbits seven and 17.

Principal landing areas in the Atlantic and Pacific were at the end of each of these passes. However, alternative landing areas were located around the world in case of an emergency.

The decision was passed on to Cooper by astronaut Gus Grissom, capsule communicator at the Guayamas, Mexico, station.

'Action Stations For Grits'

By ALEX YOUNG

OTTAWA—The Liberals take their "action stations" in Parliament Thursday and begin to deliver in volume on their promised "60 days of decision."

It is the day the Progressive Conservatives formally take their place as the official opposition, after having tasted for six years the joys and troubles of governing.

And it is the day the other two parties, in opposition as always, try to regroup their diminished forces.

It is the opening of the first session of Canada's 26th parliament.

Actual preparations have been going on feverishly in offices of the Liberal cabinet ministers, working over legislation to be introduced, for three weeks.

CAUCUSES HELD

Today all four parties held caucus meetings to discuss sessional strategy and tactics.

The governing Liberal party, although in a minority position, was making no secret of its strategy. It is simply to keep pouring out a steady supply of business for the House of Commons and Senate to work on.

During the session the Liberal emphasis will be on measures to improve the economic development of Canada. During the election campaign Mr. Pearson foreshadowed his approach to the business of the nation in these words:

"The first 60 days of a new Liberal administration will be days of decision, with Liberal members at action stations. This will be in startling contrast to the delays, confusion and bad management of the last session. A Tory government and Tory leadership was fumbling and indecisive, even when it had a large majority. When it was supported by a minority in parliament it was completely hopeless. Our session of decision will be very different."

FEW SURPRISES

The throne speech is usually the big newsworthy event of the day at the opening of any session of Parliament. This one, however, probably will contain few surprises.

For, again, the government's intentions have been made quite clear. During the campaign Mr. Pearson promised for his first session (and these things wil be mentioned in the throne speech):

- Action for investment expenditures and setting up new machinery of government to bring jobs and full employment through expansion of production;
- Establishment of a municipal development and loan fund to help create 200,000 new jobs in Canada;
- Promise of a June budget with fiscal and tax provisions to stimulate production and create jobs, at the same time aiming for fiscal measures designed to balance income and outgo;
- Establishment of a department of industry, and legislation to create the post of another minister of agriculture, to look after eastern agricultural interests;
- Creation of a national development corporation, a national economic council, and provision of a capital fund for the present Atlantic Development Board;
- Establishment of a federal agency for development of economically backward areas;
- Work towards establishment of a contributory and portable pension plan;
- Action to strengthen national unity by setting up a national commission on biculturalism;
- Setting up of all-party committee on defence policy, to provide for a review and discussion of the issues of Canada's acceptance of defensive nuclear warheads as pledged by the Liberals;
- Action towards providing Canada with a distinctive national flag and anthem.

As this session opens, the question of how long a government can last wtih only minority status is not the much-discussed topic that it was prior to the last session, when the declining Diefenbaker gov-

Armed Forces Get Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay increases for all ranks in the armed forces were announced by the government today. They are retroactive to Oct. 1, 1962.

The last general increase in wages and salaries for the forces was in October, 1960.

The announcement by Associate Defence Minister Lucien Cardin added that procedural changes have been made so that increases can be "granted at more frequent intervals than heretofore."

Increases also will result from a revision in the system of trades pay. This, too, is retroactive to last Oct. 1.

The revisions apply to both the regular and reserve forces.

The boost in basic pay means an annual increase of $48 for the first four ranks in each of the three services.

Other examples of pay boosts:

Rear admiral, major-general and air vice marshal—$1,008 more annually.

'COPTERS STANDING BY AS MACKENZIE RISING

EDMONTON (CP)—The water of the Mackenzie River delta was reported rising today by Canadian Army officials in Edmonton.

An army spokesman said at the current rate the peak flood conditions would occur within a week to 10 days. The river was reported jammed by ice north from Norman Wells, N.W.T., about 925 miles north of Edmonton.

About 500 residents in the Mackenzie Delta area, where the river empties into the Arctic Ocean about 1,600 miles northwest of Edmonton, would be affected by a continued rise of the river level.

RCAF helicopters have been ordered to the area on a standby basis in the event they are needed.

U.S. to Have Custody Of A-Arms in Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today that American servicemen will be responsible for the custody of nuclear warheads that are to be acquired for Canadian armed forces.

He said following a cabinet session that negotiations for an agreement with the United States on acquiring the warheads will start in a day or so.

Custody by American servicemen is the course now followed by all nations which have worked out arrangements to take U.S. nuclear weapons, he said.

Mr. Pearson was asked about a Toronto Star report that Canadian troops would be given the right to guard nuclear warheads.

He replied:

For "any American warheads which were on a Canadian base or on a Canadian camp, the actual guarding—the immediate guarding—of the warheads is the responsibility of the United States."

He said the report may have been confused "by the fact that if it were a Canadian base the security outside the particular place where they are stored would be a Canadian responsibility."

DEATH DEADLINE TODAY

Duvalier Still Controls Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—President Francois Duvalier remained firmly in control of Haiti from within his heavily fortified palace today despite the arrival of an announced deadline for his assassination.

Rumors circulated outside the country, however, that he planned to fly to European exile today via the Dutch Island of Curacao.

A Haitian exile leader in Santo Domingo, capital of the neighboring Dominican republic, charged Tuesday night that Dominican authorities blocked preparations for an invasion of Haiti today by raiding rebel headquarters near the border and taking arms away from 67 men.

"We planned to invade Haiti early Wednesday when constitutional government ends, but now we are forced to postpone it," khaki-clad Jacques Casagnol said.

In New York, a spokesman for Pan American Airways said Tuesday night that "a party of four registered in the name of Duvalier" had booked passage on a Pan Am flight from New York to Paris tonight.

The spokesman said there was no indication the "Duvalier" on the passenger manifest was the Haitian president.

FLYING SINCE A BOY

'Destined for Space'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—As a boy, Gordon Cooper read the comic strip Buck Rogers and wondered whether man would fly into space before the 25th century.

Today he's amazed at the swiftness of events which have sent astronauts into space in his lifetime—and his participation as one of the pioneers of this great effort.

If anyone seemed destined for space flight, it was Cooper. He has been flying as long as he can remember.

His father, an air force colonel, was a close friend of such aviation greats as Wiley Post and Amelia Earhart and Gordon used to listen to their flying conversations. The elder Cooper took his son aloft almost before he could walk.

"Gordo"—as his fellow astronauts call him—recalls first handling the controls of a plane when he was six and flying his first solo at 16.

Cooper's mother says her son always was interested in airplanes.

"Gordon made a lot of model planes," she reported recently at her Carbondale, Colo., home. "Later, when he was a senior in high school, he had a good friend who ran an airport. Gordon worked there to pay for flying instruction. He soloed then, while his father was serving with the air force in the Pacific."

The senior Cooper died of cancer in 1960.

Had Mrs. Cooper ever worried about Gordon's early-day flying?

"I worried about it, yes," she replied. "But once I asked that question of another mother who had three boys who were flying. She said 'Don't you know that God's up there the same as on the

TV BEAMED TO EUROPE VIA RELAY SATELLITE

By United Press International

Americans, President Kennedy included, watched the air force major blasted into space on instantaneous live teleçasts from Cape Canaveral and within a few hours millions of Europeans also saw the liftoff in a videotaped transmission across the Atlantic via relay satellite.

Other millions in Europe, Asia, Latin America and Africa followed the early stages of Major Cooper's orbital mission on radio. His flight was covered minute-by-minute in some European countries and on the U.S. armed force's worldwide radio network.

ON THE TIMES — By ART STOTT

Requiem for Ichabod

CHARLES GUIGUET, a gentleman who knows such things, tells me that a Great Blue Heron may live to be 15 or 20 years old —with much more than a little bit of luck.

Stott

"The point is," he explained, "that you must distinguish between longevity and life expectancy. Among all wild creatures, life expectancy can be very short."

In some species of game birds, or water-fowl, I wasn't sure which, a "population turnover" of 80 per cent isn't unusual or necessarily unsatisfactory from a reproduction point of view. That means that a generation of birds large in fall after the year's hatch, may be down to a fifth of its number by the following spring, after the winter kill, starvation and the attacks of predators, humans included.

Big birds, if they survive a season or two, develop particular caution—much more than most little birds who aren't such easy targets. And if a Great Blue Heron gets past its years of indiscretion, it may reach a reasonable old age.

This knowledge comes to me late and destroys a concept I had developed about Ichabod.

* * *

Long before we knew that the big waders fishing in the shallows of Foul Bay and roosting out by the kelp beds were Great Blue Herons, we used to call the species cranes. This is wrong, ornithologically, but if my long-legged acquaintance was a heron and not a crane, he looked enough like the latter to call him Ichabod in a simple translation from a Washington Irving character.

I thought I had known Ichabod from my childhood. On Charlie's vital statistics, I must have known a succession of Ichabods—two at least, maybe many more.

My first memory of him (or perhaps the first Ichabod) runs back to early boyhood when, from our boathouse deck I watched the dignified, angular heron fishing at low tide where the eel-grass covers the spongy sand between our rocks and Pig Island.

Ichabod was an angler of rare patience and amazing efficiency. He would stand on his pipe-stem legs minutes at a time without apparent movement. Suddenly he would drive his wedge-shaped head down into the water with a whip of his long neck and bring it up with a fish in his bill. The performance would be repeated almost by the hour.

A person naturaly lazy could justify his indolence by explaining that he was watching Ichabod fish. Ichabod and I, he as the fisher, I as the bird-watcher, were completely complementary. Inert staring is one of the things I do rather well.

Over the years I developed a genuine affection for the ungainly creature, though, as a small boy, he had given me moments of terror.

At one time, our home was a sort of summer resort for relatives and friends from other parts of Canada. When they descended on us in July and August, I vacated my bedroom and slept in the boathouse, which was a sort of Boy Scouty thing to do in several ways.

Alone, in the dark of night during the first week of this routine, I was awakened by an unearthly noise at approximately the same hour. This, to a boy who had just finished Sherlock Holmes and "The Hound of the Baskervilles", was a pretty shaking experience. The hair bristled on the back of my neck. I was certain that I had heard the anguished cry of a lost soul floating in torment.

* * *

One night, greatly daring, I stayed awake and crept outside about the time the noise was due. It came. Looking upward, I saw a darker shape drifting down the blue-black sky above the boathouse and I knew I had encountered a lost soul. This I duly reported to my elders. They didn't believe in lost souls and made appropriate inquiries. The inquiries provided a simple, factual explanation. The ghosting shape was Ichabod gliding to roost at the kelp line and offering his form of a goodnight to me on the way.

After that I listened for Ichabod in the darkness, bade him goodnight also and went to sleep.

So we've been friends ever since, with me thinking it was the same old heron returning year after year to the shallows.

Now, it turns out, it could have been any of a half a dozen herons—according to the Guiguet statistics on longevity and life expectancy.

Which makes it a little less sad to report that the other day, while beachcombing, I found the remains of a blue heron, awkward-seeming even in death, on the tide line of Woody Bay. That might explain the absence of Ichabod from his favorite fishing ground.

Perhaps it wasn't even Ichabod—and at all events the bird, everlasting, was a misconception on my part. A nice misconception, nevertheless, and one that I hope will be replaced by more Ichabods from the heronries Charlie tells me exist on Chatham Island and where tall trees stand by Island View beach.

WALKER
. . . Home's successor?

His Target: Diplomatic Complacency

LONDON (AP) — Patrick Gordon Walker—an intellectual and a tennis-playing suburbanite—expects to be Britain's foreign secretary by this time next year.

If he gets the post, he intends to war on some of the complacency in diplomacy.

The Labor party must win Britain's next general election if Walker is to succeed the Earl of Home. However, the Laborites are convinced that their long trials in the political wilderness are drawing to an end.

Walker, 56, believes diplomats everywhere need to rethink their basic concepts. It is not good enough, he says, to regard the Western-Soviet rivalry in terms of conditions eight years ago. If you do, you tend to miss the point of "the growing division betwen the world's rich and poor countries which cuts across the old pattern in places."

Or, take the business of Britain's special relationship with the United States. For 12 years Conservative governments have used that phrase like a magic incantation.

In the end, Walker says, this created tension inside the North Atlantic alliance — with the French, West Germans, Italians and others getting to feel like second-class members of NATO.

"We don't want a special or privileged relationship with Washington," Walker told an interviewer. "Naturally we expect a close understanding to exist."

"We are prepared to accept the United States as the nuclear power in the West with a monopoly of weapons if the American government gives us a proper degree of sharing in the deployment and targeting of such weapons," Walker says.

LONDON LETTER — By WALLACE REYBURN

Britain's Horse-Loving Royalty

LONDON—At random . . . The royal love of horse racing can cause those who live at Buckingham Palace and environs to get things a bit out of perspective.

Reyburn

The Queen comes in for a degree of cattiness every now and then over her devotion to horse racing, which, it's said, is exceeded only by her husband's ardor in killing other animals.

The Queen's face is not normally too animated, but it does come to life when she's watching the races, and it's not unusual to hear the odd snide remark, about that.

Now the Queen Mother, who is as ardent a follower of the geegees as her daughter, has come in for criticism for a gesture she has just made which is generous enough, but not too good from a public relations point of view.

The Big Freeze meant that Britain went without winter racing for seven weeks, which was a hardship for the jockeys who ride the horses "over the sticks" (steeplechasing).

* * *

Since their earnings were nil over the period that should have been the height of their season, a fund has been set up for the National Hunt jockeys. The Queen Mother gladly contributed $300.

But it has been rather tartly pointed out in the press that the Big Freeze also threw out of work 141,000 building workers, 4,000 farm workers and 12,00 industrial workers —and there is no record of Royal interest in a fund for their benefit.

Jack Hylton, former dance band leader and now theatrical impresario and TV tycoon, has gone right to the top of the Age-marrying-Youth League by his marriage to New Zealand beauty queen Beverley Prowse.

Among celebrities Earl Beatty and Charles Chaplin had been joint leaders, each taking a bride of 18 when 54—a 36-year gap. Character actor Wilfred Hyde White was runner-up, marrying a girl 29 years his junior when he was 54.

But Hylton, 70, emerges easy leader of the league as he honeymoons in Spain with his Beverley—31 years younger than he is.

HOME GARDEN — By HILDA BEASTALL

'Some Have It; Some Don't'

It is not always easy to find a reason for a plant failing to grow happily in a garden, especially when another member of the same family appears to be thriving under the same conditions.

Hilda

This peculiarity may seem impossible to casual folk, but we who live with our hobbies find that among the perennial family known as geum is one variety, Prince of Orange, which will endure a stiff wet soil in winter, while the more usually seen Mrs. Bradshaw (red) and Lady Stratheden (yellow) disappear during the second winter.

In some instances plants which have this habit are classed as biennials, and others can be restrained from the tendency by preventing flowers from developing in the first year.

But in the case of the red and the yellow geums we believe the cause to be something inherent in the strain which does not endure winter wetness in heavy soils, yet they will be long-lived in sandy loam.

We have lost two-year-old plants and also divisions of two-year-olds. First-year plants from seed live over the first winter almost 100 per cent.

Other gardeners with predominantly stiff garden soil also report the loss of geums, but state that the variety Prince of Orange lives on year after year.

The color is that pleasing warm orange which has a tinge of red and a gleam of yellow. The individual blossoms are double, on long, branching flower stems, and the ultimate stem length is likely to be around 18 inches.

This is a wholly delightful addition to the perennial garden. With the long flowering season of the varieties Mrs. Bradshaw and Lady Stratheden, combined with longevity in a stiff soil, it will make a reliable cut flower if not given too rich a diet.

It is said that fertilizer or fresh manure tends to make soft growth on guems which certainly will not live over winter.

JOHN W. GILLIS

Office Bosses Name Officers

John W. Gillis, Royal Jubilee Hospital chief accountant, was named 1963 president of National Office Management Association Victoria branch Tuesday at the club's annual meeting.

He succeeds A. C. V. Hall, of Underwood Ltd., as head of the 62-member organization that will play host next year to NOMA's Pacific northwest conference.

Other members of the new executive are vice-president W. J. Krimmer, of Macdonald's Consolidated; secretary Ruby Masters, of Capital Broadcasting System Ltd.; treasurer M. H. Flett, of Moore Whittington Lumber Co. Ltd.; and directors Ernest Charlton, Island Tug; Edythe McCormick, Esquimalt High School teacher; Peter Dobbin, of Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart; C. A. Burgess, of B.C. Hydro; H. A. Fraser, Speedway Motors, and Bill Claxton, St. Joseph's Hospital.

The ladies' night program featured a talk on bone china by Courtney Haddock, and a demonstration of flight bag packing by TCA stewardess Dianne Reader.

It was reported that 26 of the 30 members taking the NOMA university extension course in personnel and business administration had qualified for certificates at second-year level.

Mayor Happy Talks Re-Open

Mayor R. B. Wilson Tuesday welcomed Saanich council's decision to reopen negotiations with the city over Saanich purchase of Elk-Beaver Lake property for park purposes.

Coun. Gregory Cook had suggested "starting a little dicker" with the city over aquisition of the land even though last week Saanich council had vowed to let the matter die.

"I think rather than reject the city's value outright, we should offer them what was once the suggested value of the property and get an outright refusal," he said.

Coun. Leslie Passmore suggested Saanich should be able to get the land for "less than $1,000 per acre."

'FORGIVE AND FORGET'

Willing to forgive and forget, Mr. Passmore did say he thought the city "could have been a little more discreet in their proposal."

This morning the city parks committee tabled the earlier Saanich reply saying council had received and filed the letter from the city giving the figure of about $3,500,000 as the appraised value of the land.

Mayor Wilson said he would be "very pleased," to reopen negotiations.

"The city's attitude is reasonable. We realize that the land could be a long range asset to the whole community," he said.

But he would not comment on the "less than $1,000 per acre" price suggested by Coun. Passmore.

PTA Meet Asks 'Supps'

The plea to the provincial education department was in a resolution to be presented to the federation's annual convention which opened Tuesday at University of B.C.

The federation also will be asked to press for a provincial board to censor newsstand novels and magazines considered obscene.

Also sought is a royal commission on school financing and a request that B.C. have a full-time education minister.

Councils Meeting On Cricket Patch

By JEAN BAINS

DUNCAN—City council plans to meet members of North Cowichan Council in the near future to discuss a proposal to save the 53-year-old cricket grounds from being sold by the cricket club.

Council will suggest that if North Cowichan council helps maintain some of the parks in Duncan, particularly Pioneer and Kinsmen Parks, the city will use some of the money budgeted for parks to buy the cricket grounds.

The suggestion that North Cowichan share the costs of maintaining some Duncan parks was made by Ald. Robert Mason who noted that 65 per cent of registered players who use Pioneer Park are from North Cowichan.

A parks agreement between the two councils would enable Duncan to raise sufficient funds to buy the historic cricket grounds for playground use, he felt.

The proposed sale of the grounds is the subject of a controversy here, even among some members of the cricket club.

Some members feel that the grounds should be preserved because of historic background.

Trout Are There Ready to Bite

A spokesman said today that lakes across the province were stocked with 223,237 trout in the last half of April.

Measuring from three to 12 inches, the trout were put into 23 lakes.

On Vancouver Island the biggest stocking was 2,665 fish at Quamichan Lake near Duncan.

Other lakes stocked in the area: Durrance 980, Kemp 864, Divers 380, Glen 975, Fullers 1,080, Westwood 2,350, Maple 1,830 and Henderson 900.

Monte Roberts

If you are one of the loyal constituents who has been asking, where on earth has Roberts gotten to, I will be happy to answer.

And I submit that Alaska is mighty big.

If I ever got into the pan itself, you wouldn't hear from me for nigh unto 40 years.

The way I got to see the Alaska Panhandle was aboard the Alaska Cruise ship Glacier Queen, a perky little ship which loves to rub noses with glaciers at the end of long and scenic fjords.

On the contrary, I determined to find All the Facts about Alaska, and to report them in this space.

Accordingly, at the Glacier Queen's first port of call, namely, Ketchikan, I enquired at dockside where I might find the state representative, this being Saturday evening.

You will find him, I was told, at his place of business.

On a Saturday evening? I asked.

Of course, I was told, because his place of business is none other than the Sourdough Bar and Liquor Store.

Visiting bars had been no part of my intention on this trip, but duty called. And thus I met Wally Kubley, state representative for the Ketchikan area, and we discussed statehood and what will you have? and all like that.

Still being conscientious, and with my duty to the constituents firmly planted in my mind, the first call I made at Skagway, on the northern end of the Lynn canal, was at the city hall.

There I met the mayor, a thin-lipped, razor-minded individual who had many facts to parade before me.

But it was then 9 o'clock in the morning, and the mayor had a little work to do.

Why do you not meet me at my place of business at, say, 10 o'clock? asked the mayor.

My place of business, he added, is the Frontier Saloon. You can't miss it.

I assure you, I didn't miss it, and the mayor gave me many facts, and we discussed statehood, and what will you have? and all like that.

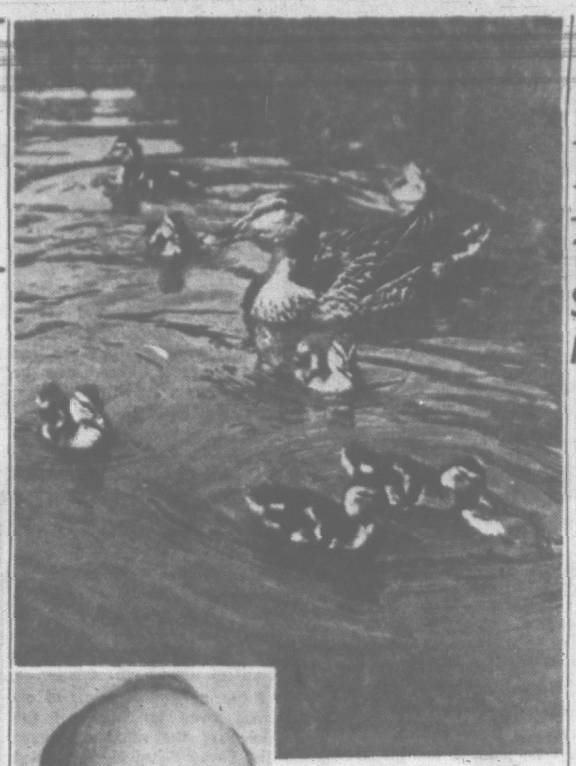

So I said to the mayor, whose name is Malcolm Moe, now that I have the civic viewpoint, do you think I could find the state representative?

And Mayor Moe said, sure, why not, his name is Morgan Reid. You can't miss him, said the mayor. His place of business is the Igloo, third bar down the street on the left-hand side.

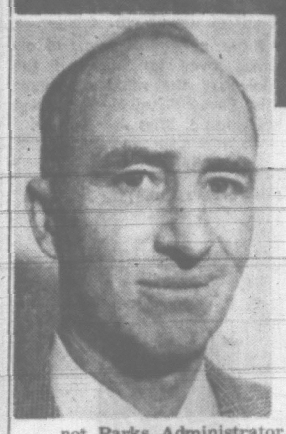

Thus I met Representative Reid, and we discussed statehood, and what will you have? and all like that.

Oh, I almost forgot to tell you, I failed to meet Hon. William Egan, the governor of Alaska, because he was in Fairbanks when I was in Juneau, the capital city of Alaska.

However, I did talk to him on the phone, and I guess that was good enough, Governor Egan being one of the few elected officials in the Alaska Panhandle who doesn't own a bar.

They're Mother Nature's responsibility . . .

. . . not Parks Administrator Herb Warren's

PARK BOSS DUCKS DUCK OWNERSHIP

To whom it may concern: parks administrator W. H. Warren does not own the mallard ducks—or any others for that matter.

"Apparently everyone thinks every stray duck around here belongs to us—it just isn't so," he said today.

"The mallard ducks are wild—they don't belong to anyone and can fly away at will."

Every spring Mr. Warren is harried by numerous calls from citizens in the city and even deep in the surrounding countryside asking him to pick up "his" ducks.

"They'll waddle along streets, through people's gardens and even parade around with their young," he said.

"People see them, associate them with the mallards they see in Beacon Hill Park and then call us to take them back.

"We don't feed those in the park and in fact they go out every evening and spend the night at sea."

THINGS THAT SHOULDN'T REACH PRINT

Weather forecaster William Mackie today said "one or possibly two weather systems approaching us" could make it a gloomy holiday weekend.

He said clouds and showers are on the horizon for late Thursday and Friday.

The outlook after Saturday "may be a little more encouraging but of course nothing is settled yet."

He indicated that hopes for fine weather depended on the second weather system, expected to arrive Saturday.

Hotel Strike Now 'Certain'

Empress Walk-Out Imminent

Breakdown of special conciliation talks will bring a strike at the ivied Empress Hotel "in the very near future," union general chairman J. R. Grealy said at noon today.

"I'm very sorry to have to say that, but the decision could come at any time. It is just a matter of considering when to strike," Mr. Grealy said.

Two separate approaches to management since provincial conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin last met the sides Tuesday have brought no reply, the union spokesman said.

SOLID FRONT

Empress employees — 300 strong—and the executive of Local 276 Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, are solidly behind strike action, Mr. Grealy said.

All hurdles have been cleared in preparation for a strike and the union has only to give the hotel 48 hours' notice of the actual day.

The situation could be serious for hotel owners, Canadian Pacific Railway Co., whose prairie hotels in Calgary and Winnipeg are also embroiled in labor trouble.

PRAIRIE VOTES

A strike vote was to be taken among 200 employees at the Royal Alexandra, Winnipeg, and at the Palliser in Calgary another 200 workers were to vote on a conciliation board award.

"The employees in this hotel (Empress) feel the CPR has gained a lot from this city of Victoria in such things as tax exemptions," Mr. Grealy said.

"Now they feel why should they have to subsidize the company for the poor way they operate the hotel.

"If they are going to cry poverty, it's not the employees' fault. They feel they have no alternative but to strike because the management has not bargained in good faith.

He said the union was prepared to accept a suggestion by Mr. McLaughlin as a nucleus for agreement.

This would provide for a total seven cents an hour wage increase at three cents, two cents and two cents over three years from date of signing a new agreement.

It would also include a $50 lump settlement per regular employee in lieu of retroactive pay and adjustments to certain categories.

There was no indication by management that this would be acceptable, Mr. Grealy said.

ORIGINAL REQUEST

The union originally asked five cents an hour wage hike Jan. 1, 1962. After 12 months of dispute, the union accepted a conciliation award of four cents for the one-year period, but this was rejected by the company and a strike vote was held.

Mr. Grealy blamed the long wrangle on CPR vice-president Ian Sinclair, of Montreal. He asked why Mr. Sinclair did not take part in bargaining instead of vetoing from Montreal.

"It's a shame that one man could split a city down the middle as he did in the Royal York strike in Toronto. I hate to think of it happening in Victoria," Mr. Grealy said.

'WE ARE DESIRING YOU SEE'

Japanese Send Art For Exhibition Here

In March, in a Japanese town about 80 miles from Hiroshima, more than 3,000 people attended an exhibition of 50 paintings and drawings by Victoria youngsters.

Starting Thursday, Victorians will be able to see works of art by 50 boys and girls of Yanai. The display will be on the third floor of the Hudson's Bay Co. store for a week.

The exchange of paintings took place between the local Douglas Rotary Club and the Rotary Club of Yanai, Yamaguchi, Japan, as part of a "world understanding week" project.

PARK SCENES

They were hung in a hall at Yanai March 19 to 21. The mayor of the city cut a ribbon to open the exhibition which, it was reported, attracted more than 3,000 visitors.

A Yanai Rotary spokesman wrote to Douglas Rotary saying "all enjoyed the skillfulness of technique and wonderful sense" shown by our young artists.

'We are desiring that the pictures might be able to fulfil their parts to develop the friendship and mutual understanding between our two peoples," he wrote.

The Victoria showing is taking place later than that in Japan due to a mix-up in shipping the Yanai exhibits here. As the Japanese Rotary official explained:

"Until today we got report from Iwakuni, an unbelievable report, that the pictures were still stored in Iwakuni because of their mishandling, which made us so much surprise and disappoint.

"As soon as we got the report we ordered them to send them immediately, first send them without delay, and second who will take the responsibility for the fault, we said so."

However, it turned out the shipping master at Iwakuni was away "on legitimate business" so all was forgiven.

Parking Ban Proposed Near Willows

Rowdyism on Willows Beach can be stopped by banning car parking on Esplanade after 11 p.m., Reeve George Murdoch said today.

The reeve, also chairman of police commission, said the commission has made this recommendation to council.

At its last regular meeting, council heard complaints by petitioners of excessive traffic noise, wild parties, rowdyism and beatings taking place in the early hours of the morning along the three-block stretch of sand.

Mr. Murdoch said police reports disclosed the only "beating" dealt with involved three young men who were fighting, and subsequently charged in juvenile court with disturbing the peace.

Police also investigated a considerable time ago an alleged mugging of a Victoria College student, but could not substantiate his story. In fact, records showed a police car had actually patrolled the Esplanade at the time of the reported incident, the reeve said.

Policy Blocks Victoria Bid On Timber

A new B.C. government policy has blocked sale of timber at Squamish to a Victoria man who bid almost three times more than a competitor.

Forests Minister Ray Williston said today there were two reasons for his decision to cancel the sale.

PROXY BUYER

Mr. Cottyn was actually trying to buy the timber for somebody else, which the forest service frowns upon.

His bid was so high it was uneconomic and violated a new policy set at the request of the legislature's forestry committee this spring.

The committee will continue investigation of what is known as "spite bidding" at next year's session.

Mr. Brennan sought the timber under terms of the forest service quota assigned to him in the area. If he lost the sale to an outsider, his quota would have been reduced.

MANY COMPLAINTS

The forestry committee heard numerous complaints from small operators that outsiders were deliberately bidding unreasonable prices to try and squeeze them out of the areas in which they held quotas.

Mr. Williston said his new policy is to cancel a sale if the high bid is more than double the "upset price."

This is an evaluation by the forest service, representing the lowest amount it can accept from any operator.

The "upset price" at Squamish was $44,530 for 1,600,000 feet of timber. Mr. Cottyn bid $113,165.

"Basically you are losing money when you are past twice the upset," Mr. Williston said. "There's no point in allowing him to commit economic suicide."

Ex-Victorian Wins Post In Virginia

Dr. John Redford, 34, son of Capt. and Mrs. Walter Redford, 105 Beach Drive, attended Oak Bay High School and Victoria College here.

He received his BA degree from the University of B.C. and graduated in medicine from University of Toronto in 1953.

For the past three years he has been at the University of Washington, Seattle, where he was appointed assistant professor at the Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Centre.

No-Baseball Rule Up for Revision By School Board

Greater Victoria School Board may revise its policy of forbidding baseball on school grounds, it was learned today.

Buildings and grounds committee chairman George Curran said today the "no hardball" policy was under review.

But at the same time he pointed out that little league officials were breaking the law in holding games on school property despite the standing rule.

"I don't think much of officials who would let the boys play ball right under signs saying it was forbidden," he said. "The officials haven't even talked to us about it this year."

But he indicated he would make a recommendation to the board at its next meeting to review the situation.

"I think there will be a change of policy," he said.

Only Tuesday city parks committee asked the inter-municipal committee to find a way to persuade the board to permit more use of playground and gym facilities by amateur sports groups.

New Air Maps Ready Friday

Release of aeromagnetic survey maps of four northern Vancouver Island areas was announced this morning.

The maps are expected to be of wide interest in mining circles since it is the first time an area of relatively high relief has been surveyed by the two government agencies—Geological Survey of Canada and B.C. Mines Department.

Three of the areas, Kyuquot, Alice Lake and Port McNeill, are in a continuous block running from 50 degrees to 50 degrees, five minutes north and from 127 degrees to 127 degrees, 30 minutes west.

The fourth area, San Josef, in the Cape Scott region, runs from 50 degrees, 25 minutes to 50 degrees, 45 minutes north and from 128 degrees to 128 degrees, 30 minutes west.

Release of the maps will be made simultaneously Friday at the B.C. mines department office in the Douglas Building and at the Geological Survey office at 79 W. Hastings in Vancouver.

Topics of the Day

Victoria's Mr. Y—Archie McKinnon—will take part in a panel discussion at 8 p.m. Tuesday in S. J. Willis school auditorium.

Ask The Times

Q. When did nylon stockings first come on the market? M.G.M.

A. Nylon hosiery was available in limited quantities in 1938, made by Du Pont de Nemours Company, of the United States, but due to the fact that one of the two principal raw materials for nylon was manufactured commercially only in Germany at that time, nylons were not available in quantity until the mid-1940's.

Q. Could you please tell me the population of Canada at present? W.R.C.

A. Most recent accurate figures are those of the 1961 census. At that time the total population was 18,238,247. Of these, 5,537,837 lived in rural areas. The other 12,700,000 were city dwellers.

NO BUTTS ABOUT IT

Non-Smokers Decry Lung Torturers

Canada's first non-smokers' conference opened in Victoria today with a warning from B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin that smoking shortens life and increases danger from malignant diseases.

Organized by the 600-member Non-Smokers' Association of Canada, the conference was held in the new Saanich Health Centre and attracted representatives of the PTA council, the B.C. health and education departments and local churches.

Mr. Martin, a senior member of the association, said 38,000 people die from lung cancer every year and heavy smoking is now considered "an important cause" of lung cancer and other fatal diseases.

"It is a very risky thing for politicians to support a movement like this, because people don't like having their habits interfered with . . .

"I would certainly resent anyone interfering with my drinking habits, although the amount of drink I take is beneficial rather than harmful."

Robert Ludwig, Vancouver, who is secretary of the Non-Smokers' Association, said he hopes Victoria will be the "launching pad" for non-smokers' seminars all over Canada and the United States.

"I believe we shall soon be as famous at Alcoholics Anonymous."

Great Sport, Says Astronaut

COOPER THROUGH 6 KEEPS GOING ROUND

Due to Land Late Thursday

He was reported in good spirits and health "and very much on top of his mission."

Minutes after entering orbit, Cooper reported that everything was "mighty good."

Astronaut Walter Schirra, in communication with Cooper at Cape Canaveral, said: "Great sport, isn't it?"

"It sure is," Cooper replied as he whizzed along.

The 36-year-old air force major rose into the sky atop an Atlas rocket at 9:04 a.m. EDT (6:04 a.m. PDT) under orders, if all goes right, to soar around the earth 22 times in about 34 hours.

As he went into his fourth orbit at 1:35 p.m. EDT, Walter C. Williams, operations chief of the Mercury flight program, issued this word:

"He is very much on top of his mission. He is in good spirits and in good health."

Cooper completed his first orbit at 10:33 a.m. EDT, his second at 12:06 p.m., the third at 1:35 p.m., the fourth at 3:03 p.m., and the fifth at 4:32 p.m.

He had reported at the end of his second flash around the world that he was "very comfortable."

Williams said after the third round trip that Cooper was performing all of his space experiments—designed to aid the longer Gemini and Apollo moon flights of the future—on schedule.

Experiment Not Complete Success

As Cooper's Faith 7 spacecraft sped high above the South Atlantic Ocean during the third of his intended 22 orbits, the pilot pushed a switch which ejected a 10-pound sphere from the base of the capsule.

The sphere, 5.75 inches in diameter and equipped with two high-intensity flashing lights, settled into an orbit slightly different from that of Faith 7.

The idea was to see whether astronauts could easily spot beacons in the sky. Such beacons might be used to guide astronauts of the Gemini and Apollo programs to other spacecraft in orbit.

Cooper reported to a tracking post on Ascension Island that the sphere had been released successfully. But there was no immediate report on his observance of the xenon-gas lights which were to blink once every second.

However, Mercury control centre reported later that it had received a partially-garbled message from Cooper which indicated that perhaps the experiment was not as successful as originally thought. A full report was expected later.

100 to 166 Miles Above Earth

Faith 7 reached a peak speed of 17,546 miles an hour and circled the globe once every 88.45 minutes.

The flight, conducted in the full glare of publicity in contrast with the secrecy of Russia's manned space flights, was hailed by people around the world.

President Kennedy in Washington expressed happiness at the success of the launching and said he would follow the flight closely.

"Beautiful," was the way Cooper's wife Trudy described the launching, which she watched on television in her Houston, Tex., home, with their two teen-age daughters, Camala, 14, and Janita, 13.

Tears were the only visible emotion from the 82-year-old astronaut's grandmother, who rocked slowly in a rocking chair as she watched the rocket rise.

As Faith 7 whirled through the heavens, Cooper continually made satisfactory reports about his personal condition and the systems in the space-craft. Early in the flight, there was some concern about high temperature in the cabin, but this quickly cleared up.

As he passed above California near the end of orbit No. 2, he told the tracking station at Point Arguello that he was "comfortable, real comfortable in fact; I even had a little nap."

If Cooper completes the full flight, he will have been up for more than 34 hours, dropping to a parachute landing in the Pacific Ocean southeast of Midway Island shortly after 7 p.m. EDT Thursday.

During the first orbit he gave his spacecraft systems a thorough wringing out and pronounced them all in excellent shape. Mercury control centre at Cape Canaveral then relayed the word that he was "go" for at least six more orbits.

That was the first of three critical "go" or "no-go" decisions scheduled for the 34-hour flight. The other two were set for orbits seven and 17.

Principal landing areas in the Atlantic and Pacific were at the end of each of these passes. However, alternative landing areas were located around the world in case of an emergency.

The decision was passed on to Cooper by astronaut Gus Grissom, capsule communicator at the Guaymas, Mexico, station.

'Action Stations' For Grits

By ALEX YOUNG

OTTAWA—The Liberals take their "action stations" in Parliament Thursday and begin to deliver in volume on their promised "60 days of decision."

It is the day the Progressive Conservatives formally take their place as the official opposition, after having tasted for six years the joys and troubles of governing.

And it is the day the other two parties, in opposition as always, try to regroup their diminished forces.

It is the opening of the first session of Canada's 26th parliament.

Actual preparations have been going on feverishly in offices of the Liberal cabinet ministers, working over legislation to be introduced, for three weeks.

CAUCUSES HELD

Today all four parties held caucus meetings to discuss sessional strategy and tactics.

The governing Liberal party, although in a minority position, was making no secret of its strategy. It is simply to keep pouring out a steady supply of business for the House of Commons and Senate to work on.

During the session the Liberal emphasis will be on measures to improve the economic development of Canada. During the election campaign Mr. Pearson foreshadowed his approach to the business of the nation in these words:

"The first 60 days of a new Liberal administration will be days of decision, with Liberal members at action stations. This will be in startling contrast to the delays, confusion and bad management of the last session. A Tory government and Tory leadership was fumbling and indecisive, even when it had a large majority. When it was supported by a minority in parliament it was completely hopeless. Our session of decision will be very different."

FEW SURPRISES

The throne speech is usually the big newsworthy event of the day at the opening of any session of Parliament. This one, however, probably will contain few surprises.

DEATH DEADLINE TODAY

Duvalier Still Controls Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—President Francois Duvalier remained firmly in control of Haiti from within his heavily fortified palace today despite the arrival of an announced deadline for his assassination.

Rumors circulated outside the country, however, that he planned to fly to European exile today via the Dutch Island of Curacao.

A Haitian exile leader in Santo Domingo, capital of the neighboring Dominican republic, charged Tuesday night that Dominican authorities blocked preparations for an invasion of Haiti today by raiding rebel headquarters near the border and taking arms away from 67 men.

"We planned to invade Haiti early Wednesday when constitutional government ends, but now we are forced to postpone it," khaki-clad Jacques Casagnol said.

In New York, a spokesman for Pan American Airways said Tuesday night that "a party of four registered in the name of Duvalier" had booked passage on a Pan Am flight from New York to Paris tonight.

The spokesman said there was no indication the "Duvalier" on the passenger manifest was the Haitian president.

VENEZUELA BREAKS TIES

President Romulo Betancourt's government also announced that it will not recognize any Haitian government in exile.

A-Arms Custody With U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today that American servicemen will be responsible for the custody of nuclear warheads that are to be acquired for Canadian armed forces.

He said following a cabinet session that negotiations for an agreement with the United States on acquiring the warheads will start in a day or so.

Custody by American servicemen is the course now followed by all nations which have worked out arrangements to take U.S. nuclear weapons, he said.

Mr. Pearson was asked about a Toronto Star report that Canadian troops would be given the right to guard nuclear warheads.

He replied:

For "any American warheads which were on a Canadian base or on a Canadian camp, the actual guarding—the immediate guarding—of the warheads is the responsibility of the United States."

Armed Forces Get Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay increases for all ranks in the armed forces were announced by the government today. They are retroactive to Oct. 1, 1962.

The last general increase in wages and salaries for the forces was in October, 1960.

The announcement by Associate Defence Minister Lucien Cardin added that procedural changes have been made so that increases can be "granted at more frequent intervals than heretofore."

Increases also will result from a revision in the system of trades pay. This, too, is retroactive to last Oct. 1.

The revisions apply to both the regular and reserve forces.

The boost in basic pay means an annual increase of $48 for the first four ranks in each of the three services.

Other examples of pay boosts:

'COPTERS STANDING BY AS MACKENZIE RISING

EDMONTON (CP)—The water of the Mackenzie River delta was reported rising today by Canadian Army officials in Edmonton.

An army spokesman said at the current rate the peak flood conditions would occur within a week to 10 days. The river was reported jammed by ice north from Norman Wells, N.W.T., about 925 miles north of Edmonton.

About 500 residents in the Mackenzie Delta area, where the river empties into the Arctic Ocean about 1,600 miles northwest of Edmonton, would be affected by a continued rise of the river level.

RCAF helicopters have been ordered to the area on a standby basis in the event they are needed.

FLYING SINCE A BOY

'Destined for Space'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—As a boy, Gordon Cooper read the comic strip Buck Rogers and wondered whether man would fly into space before the 25th century.

Today he's amazed at the swiftness of events which have sent astronauts into space in his lifetime—and his participation as one of the pioneers of this great effort.

If anyone seemed destined for space flight, it was Cooper. He has been flying as long as he can remember.

His father, an air force colonel, was a close friend of such aviation greats as Wiley Post and Amelia Earhart and Gordon used to listen to their flying conversations. The elder Cooper took his son aloft almost before he could walk.

"Gordo"—as his fellow astronauts call him—recalls first handling the controls of a plane when he was six and flying his first solo at 16.

Cooper's mother says her son always was interested in airplanes.

"Gordon made a lot of model planes," she reported recently at her Carbondale, Colo., home. "Later, when he was a senior in high school, he had a good friend who ran an airport. Gordon worked there to pay for flying instruction. He soloed then, while his father was serving with the air force in the Pacific."

The senior Cooper died of cancer in 1960.

Had Mrs. Cooper ever worried about Gordon's early-day flying?

"I worried about it, yes," she replied. "But once I asked that question of another mother who had three boys who were flying. She said 'Don't you know that God's up there the same as on the ground?' and she went on knitting. I have always tried to remember that."

Cooper, a Methodist, feels much the same way.

Cooper was born March 6, 1927, in Shawnee, Okla. After graduation from high school in 1945, he entered the Marine Corps and spent some time at the Naval Academy Preparatory School. After his discharge in 1946 he attended the University of Hawaii for three years.

WIFE A PILOT

At the university, he met and married the former Trudy Olson of Seattle, Wash. Under Cooper's instruction, Trudy soon had a pilot's licence and the couple explored the Hawaiian Islands in a Piper Cub. They took their first baby for a plane ride soon after she was born.

The Coopers now have two daughters, Camela, 14, and Janita, 13.

While at the University of Hawaii, Cooper received an army commission and then transferred to the air force. He was assigned to the air force experimental flight test school, Edwards Air Base, Calif., in 1956, and helped design and test experimental fighter aricraft.

Cooper, now a major, has logged more than 2,600 hours flying time, 1,600 in jets.

NARROW ESCAPES

As a test pilot, he has had several close calls. He and fellow astronaut Virgil Grissom had a near-fatal plane accident before their selection in 1959 as space candidates. They were taking off in a T-38 jet trainer when the landing gear collapsed. The plane crashed and burned but both men escaped unharmed.

Trudy was elated when Cooper was selected to make a space flight which could keep him in orbit for more than a day.

"I'd go with him if I could," she said.

She also shares his enthusiasm for wanting to travel one day to the moon.

ABOARD THE USS KEARSARGE (UPI)—Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper will spend 34 minutes of his scheduled 22-orbit space flight over Red China and probably would face imprisonment and prosecution as a spy if he should be forced to land there.

John Graham, national aeronautics and space administration team leader aboard the aircraft carrier Kearsarge, told newsmen Tuesday he knows of no agreement to rescue Cooper should he fall in Chinese territory.

Graham recalled that other airmen who accidentally violated Communist Chinese air space have been either killed or imprisoned by the Reds, who conduct an unceasing anti-American campaign and label all such intrusions as "spying attempts by the imperialistic Americans."

The probability of a Red China landing is extremely remote, but the possibility has to be considered, Graham said. However, nothing has been done in anticipation of such a mishap because of the lack of diplomatic communications between the United States and Communist China.

"Recovery units would move immediately to the boundaries of the country and await instructions from the state department, which would try to arrange for the rescue teams to enter the country," Graham said.

He pointed out that Cooper would be in serious trouble on another count if his space flight ended in Red China. The great desolate area in the interior would make it extremely difficult to locate the capsule without special recovery and locating equipment.

"You're go for seven," Grissom—who made a sub-orbital flight two years ago—reported.

As Cooper completed orbit No. 1, he talked with astronauts Alan Shepard, the first American into space, and Walter Schirra, whose six - robit American space flight record he was to break.

Schirra, who was serving as capsule communicator in Mercury control centre, shouted "have a good ball" as Faith 7 zipped out of radio range and on into the second orbit.

During the first orbit Cooper became the first American space television personality. As his Atlas pushed him into space, a TV camera in his spacecraft relayed pictures of him in action and they were converted from their jerky slow - scan speed to normal television by the TV networks.

As he whirled into his second orbit, Cooper shut off all controls and electrical power and commenced drifting flight, allowing the craft to move freely on its yaw, pitch and roll axes.

ROTATES SLOWLY

In this condition the vehicle rotates slowly, making about one revolution every 30 minutes if control is not re-established by the pilot. The capsule will not move far off course because it is flying an orbital path determined by the laws of nature.

The only concern during the first orbit was a high cabin temperature reading of 118 degrees made by an instrument at one of the tracking stations. But control officials believed the reading was in error because the astronaut reported his cabin temperature a continual 100 degrees.

As he swung into orbit No. 2 Cooper reported he was slightly warmer than normal but felt there was no problem.

His suit temperature was only 58 degrees but the cabin heat made him feel warmer than that.

In his discussion with Grissom at Guaymas, the 36-year-old U.S. Air Force major said he had seen many of the same sights witnessed by previous American astronauts, including the air-glow layer on the horizon. As he passed over the Pacific near the end of orbit No. 1, he saw the "fireflies" first seen by John Glenn on his pioneer U.S. orbital flight last year.

The fireflies are created by flakes of frost falling off the capsule and being illuminated by the rays of the rising sun.

As on all previous American manned-robit flights, the city of Perth, Australia, turned on all its lights as a greeting. Cooper said he saw the lights clearly from his vantage point about 160 miles in space. He hit the high point of his orbital path over Australia.

Five minutes after launching, Cooper took the control stick to rotate his capsule 180 degrees on its yaw axis so that he was riding upright and backward, with the craft's blunt heat shield pushing a path through space.

As he turned the capsule around, Cooper told Schirra he could see his spent Atlas booster following close behind him in another orbit.

Cooper reported that it was "silver."

TALK BACK AND FORTH

A tape recording played at the press site at Cape Canaveral several minutes after launching showed this exchange of conversation between Schirra and Cooper when the Atlas released Faith 7:

Cooper—"Boy, oh boy!"

Schirra—"Have a good ride, boy."

Cooper — "Thank you, buddy."

Cooper is the 10th man and sixth American to rocket into space.

The scheduled mission is nearly four times longer than Schirra's six-orbit trip last Oct. 3. But it falls far short of the tandem flights made last August by Russian cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich, who remained aloft for 64 and 48 orbits respectively.

The shot had been postponed Tuesday because of trouble with a tracking radar on Bermuda.

Family Hears Dad's Words

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Special radios taken from Walter Schirra's Sigma 7 capsule were placed in astronaut Gordon Cooper's Texas home today so his family could hear his words as he spun across the United States.

The radios from Sigma 7, which flew last October, were able to pick up Cooper's transmissions from Faith 7 whenever he passed near Houston. The Cooper home is located near there.

B.C. Expert Plays Part In Flight

Ken Archibald, head technician of Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corp., is responsible for relaying most of the messages from tracking stations in Australia and parts of Asia to the Cape Canaveral launch site-control centre.

He must listen to Cooper's heart beats and record his body temperature.

"We are also connected with the direct line from Washington to Cape Canaveral and there is nothing that goes on in the space capsule or control tower that we don't hear about."

The corporation, a Crown company, has the only cables from North America to Australia and Hong Kong. The first was laid in 1907, the second in 1929 and a third is planned for telephone calls.

Trout Are There Ready to Bite

There's a catch to what the provincial fish and game branch has been doing—now it's up to B.C.'s anglers to find it.

A spokesman said today that lakes across the province were stocked with 223,237 trout in the last half of April.

The fish came from the Cultus Lake, Summerland, Nelson and Loon Creek hatcheries.

On Vancouver Island the biggest stocking was 2,665 fish at Quamichan Lake near Duncan.

Other lakes stocked in the area: Durrance 980, Kemp 864, Divers 380, Glen 975, Fullers 1,080, Westwood 2,350, Maple 1,830 and Henderson 900.

Liferaft, Whistle On Board

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—If all goes well, astronaut Gordon Cooper will land in the Pacific Ocean off Midway Island after 22 orbits—and scientists have loaded down his capsule with safety devices to keep him alive and well until a rescue ship arrives.

The liferaft is equipped with a first aid kit, distress signals, a signal mirror and a portable radio beacon. There also is water, survival rations and matches, a whistle and 10 feet of nylon cord.

Cooper has a hand-held radio, if he needs it.

The liferaft, which weighs just slightly better than three pounds, is painted orange to make visibility easier for the recovery team.

Soviet Schedules New Rocket Tests

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union was scheduled to start a series of rocket tests in the Pacific today which western observers said may be the prelude to some new space spectacular.

The Soviet press played down the space shot of U.S. astronaut L. Gordon Cooper. It all but ignored the postponement of Cooper's launching Tuesday. The only mention was a brief Tass News Agency item, without comment.

Two Loggers Hurt

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver Island loggers, injured when hit Tuesday by a rolling stump west of Zeballos, are recovering here in hospital.

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Details of a $6,000,000, four-building high-rise complex for West Bay, heralded in Monday's Times, were announced Wednesday afternoon by city lawyer Lloyd McKenzie.

Mr. McKenzie was acting for a group of eight Vancouver Island businessmen, headed by Harold R. Hines of Nanaimo.

He is president of West Bay Investments Ltd., the developing company which has purchased four acres of land and taken an option on two additional acres, with about 450 feet fronting on Esquimalt Road and running to the waterfront.

The plans call for four 12-storey buildings containing a total of 600 one and two-bedroom suites in a park-like setting and with a private marina connected to the property by a causeway.

First step necessary to get the project going, Mr. McKenzie said, was to secure rezoning of the property to high-rise use. Then the developers would enter negotiations for long-term financing. Several large financial institutions were interested, he said.

OLYMPIC POOL

Initially, one building would be put up with 190 suites and the whole project, including a covered gymnasium and Olympic-size swimming pool for year-round use, would be completed within three years.

Architect will be Wilfred Buttjes of Vancouver who has designed the Beacon Towers, Bickerton Court and Rudyard Kipling apartment buildings here.

Announcement of the project was made to an audience mainly composed of city councillors, city officials and district planners who questioned Mr. McKenzie closely on a number of details.

It was pointed out by city engineer James Garnett that sewage disposal in the area would be inadequate for the project and a high-lift pump system would be needed.

Mr. McKenzie said his principals were aware of this need.

Mr. McKenzie was also questioned on the financial capabilities of his clients and their willingness to go ahead if the land were rezoned for high-rise use.

He replied: "I can assure you of the good faith of the developers," and added that they felt no aprehension about their ability to raise the additional funds needed for construction.

STREET LOCATION

As well as rezoning, the plan calls for relocation of Maitland and part of Seaforth Streets and this was questioned on the basis that, according to the plan, the required 50-foot setback requirement for high-rises would not be met.

The lawyer said that the project would put the land to the "best and highest use" and would bring in an estimated $100,000 a year in taxes, as well as benefits to the city from a population of about 1,000 people who could generally be expected to be retired with good incomes.

Rentals for the suites would range from $105 to $120 for one bedroom and from $125 to $140 for two bedrooms.

Reds to Buy Wheat

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Free Press says negotiations are underway for the first credit sale of Canadian wheat to Communist East Germany.

. . . GRITS

for his first session (and these things wil be mentioned in the throne speech):

- Action for investment expenditures and setting up new machinery of government to bring jobs and full employment through expansion of production;
- Establishment of a municipal development and loan fund to help create 200,000 new jobs in Canada;
- Promise of a June budget with fiscal and tax provisions to stimulate production and create jobs, at the same time aiming for fiscal measures designed to balance income and outgo;
- Establishment of a department of industry, and legislation to create the post of another minister of agriculture, to look after eastern agricultural interests;
- Creation of a national development corporation, a national economic council, and provision of a capital fund for the present Atlantic Development Board;
- Establishment of a federal agency for development of economically backward areas;
- Work towards establishment of a contributory and portable pension plan;
- Action to strengthen national unity by setting up a national commission on biculturalism;
- Setting up of all-party committee on defence policy, to provide for a review and discussion of the issues of Canada's acceptance of defensive nuclear warheads as pledged by the Liberals;
- Action towards providing Canada with a distinctive national flag and anthem.

As this session opens, the question of how long a government can last wtih only minority status is not the much-discussed topic that it was prior to the last session, when the declining Diefenbaker government still clung to minority power.

The reason for this is that the Liberals were the only party to advance in strength during the April 8 election; all others suffered setbacks and thus wil be little inclined to try to force the Liberals out of office.

The prospect is that the Liberals will be able to comfortably chart the course of the nation for at least two years and probably, with deft manoeuvring, will be able to last out a full four-year terms before the next election arrives.

Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said he would invite the party's former whip, Dr. Guy Marcoux, MP for Quebec-Montmorency, to explain his position.

Dr. Marcoux quit the party's Quebec wing during the weekend and announced he will sit in the Commons as an independent Social Credit member.

However, Dr. Marcoux said Tuesday night on the CBC television program Inquiry that he has not been invited to the Social Credit caucus. He also said he would not attend if invited.

250 Flee Hotel Fire

Mayor Happy Talks Re-Open

Mayor R. B. Wilson Tuesday welcomed Saanich council's decision to reopen negotiations with the city over Saanich purchase of Elk-Beaver Lake property for park purposes.

Coun. Gregory Cook had suggested "starting a little dicker" with the city over aquisition of the land even though last week Saanich council had vowed to let the matter die.

"I think rather than reject the city's value outright, we should offer them what was once the suggested value of the property and get an outright refusal," he said.

Coun. Leslie Passmore suggested Saanich should be able to get the land for "less than $1,000 per acre."

'FORGIVE AND FORGET'

Willing to forgive and forget, Mr. Passmore did say he thought the city "could have been a little more discreet in their proposal."

This morning the city parks committee tabled the earlier Saanich reply saying council had received and filed the letter from the city giving the figure of about $3,500,000 as the appraised value of the land.

Mayor Wilson said he would be "very pleased," to reopen negotiations.

"The city's attitude is reasonable. We realize that the land could be a long range asset to the whole community," he said.

But he would not comment on the "less than $1,000 per acre" price suggested by Coun. Passmore.

PTA Meet Asks 'Supps'

The plea to the provincial education department was in a resolution to be presented to the federation's annual convention which opened Tuesday at University of B.C.

The federation also will be asked to press for a provincial board to censor newsstand novels and magazines considered obscene.
